U.S. Demands Secret Files On Securities To Aid Buyer

New Rulings Apply To 2,300 Concerns

Salaries and Bonuses of All Officers Must Be Set Forth.

In the most important set of rules it has so far issued, the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday laid down the requirements for the permanent registration of corporation securities listed on stock exchanges.

Designed to make available to investors a maximum amount of pertinent information "succinctly and clearly expressed, while burdening the corporation to the least possible extent," the regulations will apply to more than 2,300 corporations with listed securities valued in the neighborhood of $60,000,000,000.

Not only must these corporations, if they wish to sell their securities to the public on stock exchanges, reveal details of their financial operations, particularly in the method of computing profit and loss, but they also must disclose the salaries and bonuses, if any, paid to high-ranking officers.

"Privileges" Must Be Shown.

Details of profit-sharing arrangements, options to buy securities and of security ownership by officers of the corporations also must be given. The commission, however, pointed out that corporations may petition it to have parts of this information kept secret if it is shown it would be of no help to investors.

The commission made no effort to require a uniform system of accounting for all corporations. But the new requirements set up for the first time a uniform standard which the various systems must meet. This standard, according to the commission, "represents a high level which has so far been reached only by a relatively few companies."

"The commission's emphasis in this respect has been on substance rather than on form," explained Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the agency. "It is something like a bridge game. We don't care what system you play, just so you let us know your system, and so long as you do not change it in the middle of the game."

Explanations Required.

In this respect the new regulations require explanations for changes in balance sheet items from year to year. This information, along with details regarding the computation of profits, it was held, would be of great value to analysts of financial data.

Mr. Kennedy explained that he and his colleagues believed the new rules were reasonable and would not unduly burden corporations. The commission has left the way open to modify its requirements if

Baby Kidnaper Seized Quickly

Woman Placed in Mental Ward After Abducting 4-Day-Old Boy.

Indianapolis, Dec. 20 (AP).—Three hours after a four-day-old baby was abducted from a modest home on the South Side here by a well-dressed young woman who posed as a social worker, police announced they had recovered the infant and arrested the kidnaper.

The woman, who gave her name as Mrs. Dorothy Marsh, 19, and said she had a husband living in Flint, Mich., was placed in the psychopathic ward at City Hospital for examination. The baby also was taken to the hospital.

She was taken into custody at her rooming house in the neighborhood of the little two-room home from which William Joseph Robbins, the baby, was abducted. The infant was found in her room, officers said.

To police, who found her with the aid of a taxicab operator who had driven the cab in which she escaped with the baby, Mrs. Marsh insisted the child was hers, and said it was born in the rooming house.

When he was taken from his home, William oseph was covered only by a blanket, the mother, Mrs. Grace Robbins, said.

Mrs. Robbins told police Mrs. Marsh had spent Tuesday and Wednesday at the home, posing as a social worker who wished to aid the family.

Mrs. Robbins, who was in bed at the time, said the woman asked if she could hold the baby for a minute and then ran out of the front door, leaping into the waiting taxicab. Screams of the young mother attracted neighbors, who called police.

The father of the child, Joseph Robbins, 29, is a FERA worker. Mr. and Mrs. Robbins have five other children, all young girls.

Mrs. Roosevelt Heads the List Of 1934's Best-Dressed Women

Kay Francis, Elsa Maxwell, Ina Claire, Fannie Hurst and Amelia Earhart Are Among Others Chosen by American Fashion Designers.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The critical eye of American fashion designers surveyed the style scene today and selected the country's best dressed women, heading the list with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

They made it an All-American selection, covering several fields of women's activities, and, while in the mood, also nominated a best dressed baby.

Mrs. Roosevelt was selected as the best dressed American woman in public life. Here are the others:

Kay Francis, best dressed film actress.

Mrs. Robert H. McAdoo, smartest dressed society matron.

Mrs. William Woodward, most fashionable dowager.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, best attired sportswoman.

The best dressed baby lives simply as befits any 2-month-old infant. He affects woolly and pink sweaters and soft white muslin, sometimes with a wisp of lace. His grandmother is Princess Hohenlome Schillingfurst, widow of Gifford Cochran, millionaire turfman.

First Lady's Clothes Conservative.

Mrs. Roosevelt dresses with admirable taste for her manifold activities. Her clothes are conservative, but of excellent materials.

Amelia Earhart has flawless sports clothes, and designs them herself. So has Mrs. John Hay Whitney, the great horsewoman.

The best-dressed "deb," the blue-eyed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gouveneur Morris, has light brown hair, chic but fairly simple clothes, and a frank, open face.

Jocund Elsa Maxwell's black satins and heavy crepes have an air. "Bucketty," one columnist called her.

The most chic society matron, the dark, distinctive daughter-in-law of Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, is individual, but not ultra; she depends more on line than detail.

Oversupply of Electricity Denied as LaGuardia Leaves for N.Y.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who is both public works administrator and chairman of the President's power policy committee, emerged yesterday as the spearhead of the Rooseveltian drive for cheaper electricity.

"We haven't begun to touch the market for power," he declared, in flat contradiction of the industry's contention that this country is oversupplied with electric power.

He made this statement as Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, after a whirlwind descent on the Capital, flew back to New York City with assurances of support in his fight with private New York companies. LaGuardia will put into definite form his plans for a publicly operated power system.

$108,900,000 Cost Cited.

It will be up to New York to determine policies, such as whether the proposed system will serve only municipal needs or will be extended to domestic customers, Mr. Ickes said. It will be up to the PWA to determine whether it can finance it.

The sum originally mentioned was only $15,000,000. But this would be only a starter, LaGuardia declared, since plans already drawn before the controversy set $108,900,000 as the ultimate cost of a New York system. If the city opens up in the power business, selling to other customers, even more might be spent.

Attack Turns to East.

Many millions have been poured into "yardstick" dams in three of the four corners of the Nation. Now the Administration's attack on the power interests has shifted to

Mais Gangsters Get $48,000 In Philadelphia Payroll Raid

Philadelphia, Dec. 20 (AP).—In a swift daylight invasion of a crowded pay-roll office, a five-man bandit gang—in which authorities said they saw once again the threads of Robert Mais' elusive trail—made off with $48,000 hold-up loot today.

Entering a second floor branch office of the Philadelphia Electric Co. while two of their confederates took up lookout posts outside, three of the bandits slugged three men, fired a shotgun into the cashier's cage, forced 60 employes to lie on the floor, and, scooping up the money, made their getaway in a stolen car with the other two.

At least three victims, shown pictures of the fugitive killer Mais, sought for a Virginia jail break and for his alleged connection with a gang involved in a kidnap-slaying, were virtually certain he and the robber leader were one and the same.

Investigators, hunting for Mais since he shot his way from a cordon of officers a week ago, lent credence to the partial identification after being told by witnesses that the bandit head gave his orders in a "high, squeaky" voice—a voice, detectives said, similar to that of Mais.

Three hours after the robbers escaped, their car was found abandoned inside the gates of a cemetery adjoining Montgomery County. The sedan in which the five gun-

LaFontaine's Locks Doors In D.C. Drive

Scared Employes Leave; 'Clients' Are Denied Admittance.

A "campaign of harassment" to smash the gambling house of Jimmy La Fontaine was started yesterday by police of the District of Columbia, and last night "Jimmy's Place" was closed.

First, District officials moved to make Jimmy's Place strictly a Maryland affair, at least from a geographical standpoint.

In so doing, it frightened scores of gamblers from the place, who fled through a hole in the wall to freedom.

For years Jimmy's Place, a 30-acre reserve, has straddled the District of Columbia-Maryland line, although the gambling house itself always has been on Free State soil.

Property Purchased.

Two years ago the District government purchased part of the property which is on this side of the line, its purpose being to convert it into an extension of a boulevard —Eastern avenue.

Yesterday, on orders of city officials, District highway employes tore down that part of a fence which was in District territory, and for the first time in 25 years the establishment was exposed to public view.

The aim was to force patrons to enter or leave Jimmy's place through entrances and exits on Maryland territory. Actually, however, it frightened them away altogether—at least, for the time being.

Police at Line.

Meantime, for the psychological effect, Maj. E. W. Brown, superintendent of police; Inspectors Albert Headley and L. I. H. Edwards, together with scores of policemen, were mobilized at the celebrated gambling den, remaining, of course, on the District side of the line.

The vice squad, in charge of Lieut. George M. Little, was there, too.

His men stationed themselves at the District outlet to Jimmy's, and, as fugitive gamblers came out, they halted them, took the license numbers of their cars and asked their names, addresses, and permit numbers.

These, it was understood, were to be turned over to Maryland authorities.

Comment of Bowie.

However, Alan Bowie, State's attorney for Prince Georges County, Md., said last night that he was not prepared to announce any campaign against Jimmy's Place. He added:

"I will welcome any information that would be presentable to the grand jury, and any evidence given to me will be presented to the grand jury."

The grand jury does not meet until April 1, although a special session might be called by Circuit Judge Joseph Mattingly.

"Jimmy's Place," one of the best-known gambling establishments on the Eastern Seaboard, has drawn virtually all of its trade from the City of Washington. The local police and reformers have said that a "clean-up" in this city was impossible so long as the place remained.

In Prince Georges County, meantime, there have been sinister reports as to why Jimmy's Place was permitted to continue. Following the recent election Harry W. Nice, the Republican Governor-elect, promised an investigation.

Until yesterday, however, nothing happened to cause the patrons any real alarm.

Senate Foes Fail to Oust G.O.P. Chief

Borah and Nye Admit Party Chairman Will Stay.

Poll of 43 States Shows Republican Standard Same Until '36.

By Robert C. Albright.

The movement to force the resignation of Henry P. Fletcher as chairman of the Republican National Committee collapsed yesterday, as Republicans turned attention to the approaching congressional session in a search for 1936 campaign issues.

The collapse came with word that a poll of the Republican national committee showed 43 of the 48 States' representatives against the reorganization move. Since 16 Stataes must be represented on a petition to force a meeting of the committee for the purpose, the outcome made it certain that the party would remain in the present conservative hands until the next presidential campaign.

All but five States—Minnestota, Montana, Idaho and the two Dakotas—had been heard from last night in the canvass of the Republicn ntional committee, which ws conducted by some of the committee members. These members believed that not more than two of these remaining States, and hence two in the Union, would be committed to an immediate attempt to reorganize the Republican Party.

Challenged Foes.

Henry P. Fletcher, Republican national chairman, had challenged his opponents to go out and force a committee meeting and reorganization under the 16-State rule if they had the popular support they claimed.

In the light of Senator William E. Borah's earlier insistence that reorganization in 1936 would be too late to impress the country that a concession of defeat in the most conspicuous liberalizing venture was seen in an admission by his co-leader, Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, that "nothing can be done to liberalize the national committee until 1936." Senator Borah, himself, virtually conceded failure of his effort to force the party leftward.

"I know what I'd do if I had the power," he said when asked what his course would be. "I'd elect another national committee."

Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, pronounced the whole affair "silly in the extreme."

Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, and Couzens pointed out that the 1936 election will afford the first opportunity for committee reorganization, and then it will be up to the voters, not to any group of Senators.

"I was convinced from the start they wouldn't get anywhere," said Couzens. "Senator Borah offered no substitute for what he was seeking to displace.

"Wrong to Anticipate."

"Measures come before men, not men before measures. In my opinion, the next session of Congress will provide us with all the issues we need in our next platform."

Senator Dickinson, who will make a plea for G. O. P. unity "upon sound principles" when Senate Republicans meet in conference January 2, declared it "wrong to anticipate at this time what the voters will want in 1936."

"You can't reorganize from the top down; you've got to begin at the bottom and work up," Dickinson said yesterday. "There are about 13,000,000 Republicans who will want something to say about this. I am convinced the Democrats will leave enough undone, and do enough that they shouldn't, to give us all the ammunition we want."

Stone Amphibian Sets 191:17 m.p.h. Record

Coast-Guard Flier Clips 12 Miles Off Seversky Mark in Hampton Roads Trial; Post Correspondent Asserts.

By Harris B. Hull.
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Langley Field, Va., Dec. 20. Streaking over a measured three-kilometer course at an average speed of 191.17 miles an hour, a new Grumman amphibian plane piloted by Lieut. Comdr. Elmer Stone, of the United States Coast Guard, today set a new world's flight record. The writer served as assistant to Comdr. Stone during the record run in the big land and water plane.

While Army, Navy, Coast Guard and National Aeronautic Association officials watched, Stone pushed the new single-engine ship to a high speed of 196.89 miles an hour. His average speed, on which the record is computed, was 12 miles an hour better than the old world record formerly held by Alexander P. De Seversky, set in Mineola, Long Island, last year.

Although the flight was made at a considerably lower speed than recently was flown by the Italian De Agello in a sea plane, officials attach importance to it in view of the fact that it was set in an all-utility type of ship capable of military and naval service on land or on water.

The flights were undertaken on the Hampton Roads Aero speed base, a measured course just off the Atlantic Coast Line near Langley Field. A super sensitive electrical timing camera device which made pictures of the plane as we entered and left the race course was used to record the speed. In addition delicate barographs and other instruments were carried in the plane. National advisory committee for aeronautics officials timed the trials.

Taking off from the water at the nearby Hampton Roads Naval Air Station we flew to the racing course, signaled that we were ready, then made eight trips over the short 1.86-mile course, flying past the markers and out to the sea after each run. The best consecutive four trips were used to figure the new world's mark. Before starting each trip we flew to an altitude of 1,300 feet. Here

Ickes and Norris Decry Plan Of Business for Direct Relief

President Too Busy to See Delegate Aimes With Parley's Platform.

By Felix Bruner.

Reaction in Washington to the recovery program adopted by business leaders at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., ranged yesterday from indifference to biting criticism.

A copy of the program was left at the White House by C. B. Ames, chairman of the board of the Texas Co. and chairman of the business conference. Ames had been delegated by the conference to present the document to the President. It was explained that the number of the President's engagements prevented his receiving Ames personally.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, in a characteristic statement, declared he did not think there "could be anything worse for America" than the proposal of the conference that direct relief be substituted for work relief.

The United States Conference of Mayors issued a statement in which it said it would "bitterly fight any attempt to hold up a work relief program at the coming session of Congress."

Commenting on the suggestion of the conference that the securities act be amended on the ground that it is retarding a flow of capital into private business, Chairman Joseph Kennedy of the Securities and Exchange Commission said he believed it was too early to tell whether the act should be amended.

When first questioned concerning the proposal for direct relief, Hopkins suggested that the business men "wrap up their plan and send

(Associated Press.)

A World War profit of more than $250,800,000 by the du Pont Powder Co., after expenses and taxes had been deducted, was detailed yesterday before the Senate Munitions Committee.

As business figures totaling more than $1,000,000,000 were unfolded, Alfred I. du Pont simultaneously was reported by a committee investigator to have had a gross income of $29,586,000 between 1920 and 1926 on which he did not pay "one cent of income tax."

"What was his taxable income?"

Losses Offset Gains.

Evidence then was put forward that Alfred du Pont had incurred such large losses in the Nemours Trading Co. that his gains were offset.

In showing that the Delaware company had a net war profit of $228,731,000, Hiss, a graduate of Harvard only a few years ago, by oral testimony and the introduction of documentary evidence produced the following figures:

The company's gross business between 1915 and 1918, inclusive, was $1,156,000,000, of which $225,000,000 was for salaries. A total of $602,000,000 went into materials, $72,000,000 into taxes and $15,000,000 to employes in bonus payments.

Successful du Pont efforts to obtain high postwar tariffs on chemical imports were credited by officials of the Delaware company with saving the American people millions of dollars.

Defends Firm's Tactics.

In a defense of the firm's tactics before the committee, Irenee du Pont asserted the price of dyes had been reduced more than 50 per cent, rubber tires made doubly durable and numerous other eco-

Japan Warned Of U.S.-British Pact on Navies

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

London, Dec. 20.—Japan must consent to continue the 5-5-3 naval ratio provided in the 1923 Washington Treaty or see the United States and Great Britain make their own bilateral agreement, an American spokesman said today.

As the tripower naval negotiations closed here after two months of futile efforts to devise something to replace the treaty Japan means to denounce before the year's end, the spokesman said flatly an Anglo-American accord was likely.

Await Abrogation of Pact.

Such an agreement has not yet been discussed, he emphasized, and probably will not be considered before Tokyo's abrogation of the Washington pact, which limited the three powers' navies to their relative strength at that time, takes effect December 31, 1936.

The American delegates to the conversations, Norman H. Davis and Admiral William H. Standley believe the Japanese delegation fully realizes the situation facing Japan as result of her insistence on naval parity, the spokesman said, but naval treaties are such political footballs in Japan that the outlook for future naval limitation is highly uncertain.

Defense Steps Uncertain.

No prediction as to whether another general agreement restricting the world powers' fighting ships is possible can be made, he said, in announcing the likelihood of an Anglo-American pact.

The spokesman asserted the British and the Americans have made it clear to the Japanese delegation that Great Britain and the United States will play ball by themselves if the Oriental empire does not want to play in the same league.

His statement followed quickly after an address Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, delivered over the radio last night, in which he said Great Britain and the United States coincided in opposing the Japanese thesis that equal-

Two Lifers Freed for Risking Death by Tuberculosis Serum

Denver, Dec. 20 (AP).—A pair of prisoners, gray-haired yet ignorant of the ways of a new world, today stepped gingerly into freedom won by successfully demonstrating an antituberculosis serum at the peril of their lives.

Mike Schmidt, 53, youngest of the two life-termers, came back to Denver by motor car from the Canon City Prison, awed by the bustle of a city he had left 13 years before. Carl Erickson, 68-year-old convicted wife slayer, preferred a train to carry him toward a mining claim he believes will yield pay dirt.

"It's too big, too busy," exclaimed Schmidt as he caught his first glimpse of the city he once called home.

"A ranch for me. I have a ranch friend. I want to go there," he continued.

"Well, they came to us—doctors and prison officials—eight months ago," said Schmidt. "They told us how we might die and how we might live and get out free if this medicine worked against tuberculosis.

"First, they gave us the serum in 12 shots in one day and the same day they put the tuberculosis germs into us. Both arms were used.

"But I wasn't scared. They told us how we might help others.

"I was a little sick, but not much. My arms were sore, but that didn't last long. After some months I even gained weight. I was glad to do it," was Erickson's chief remark.

Drastic Reorganization of Service Pacts Is Speeded.

Regional Agencies Will Be Created

Price-Fixing Clause to Be Dropped From Agreements.

By Douglas Warrenfels.

Drastic reoranization of all service codes by regions to spur real enforcement of labor provisions involving 3,000,00 workers has been decided on by NRA, it was learned yesterday.

The Blue Eagle administrative board, headed by S. Clay Williams, will announce formally before January 1 creation of ten or more regional administrative agencies in principal cities. Those units will revolutionize direction of such industries as hotels, cleaners, dyers, barbers and laundries.

This was generally regarded as the most important decision made by the Williams board since it assumed control of NRA on the departure of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson last October. The service trades, the TNT of the code structure, have been demoralized for months, due to lack of definite policy on their operation and widespread collapse of compliance machinery.

Trade association executives have besieged NRA with demands for revival of price-fixing clauses, stricken out of the pacts by President Roosevelt last May when he ordered regulation of service industries on a local rather than national b forms of price control, howe be carefully avoided in the gram.

Warning to Employe

Recovery chieftains dec tablishment of regional o der the direction of trained experts would definitely remove the service trade from the category of "forgotten codes" and constitute warning to the tens of thousands of employers concerned that provisions governing maximum hours and minimum wages must be observed or criminal prosecution will be swift.

Board members were encouraged in mapping an intensive enforcement program by recent comment from President Roosevelt that he was dissatisfied with the cumbersome existing legal set-up under which chiselers ran so little risk of prosecution they often found it profitable to flout wage and hour regulations.

As an integral part of the new movement, NRA officials will encourage enactment of State enforcement laws patterned after the national act. This would make the conduct of violators doubly precarious by opening the way for legal action in either Federal or local courts.

States Act.

This phase of the campaign already has progressed to the point where perhaps half of the 48 States will have separate recovery laws within a few months. Among the 14 Commonwealths which now have their own NRA laws in one form or another are such States as New York, Illinois, California, Virginia and Ohio.

The enforcement drive will be concentrated at first in large population centers. Among the cities already selected for regional offices are New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago. The district administrative officers will be empowered to initiate prosecution through United States attorneys or State counsel. Authority to approve regional codes, however, will be retained at Washington headquarters.

There now are virtually no regional service codes. Hundreds probably will be approved within two months. It is understood that fair trade practice provisions other than price fixing will be permitted if a majority of the members in a given area vote for their inclusion in a code. Once sanctioned, such clauses will be binding on even those who opposed their adoption.

Nearly all of the more than 500 local pacts already submitted will require sharp revision because in every instance they contain some price-fixing device. The Roose-

Silver Buying By U. S. Scored Again by China

Nanking Sends New Protest Policy's Modification Is Expected.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Continued severe drains on China's silver stocks, with an increasing dislocation of that country's economic structure, again has caused the Nanking government to appeal to the United States for relaxation of the latter's silver purchase policy, it was learned yesterday.

Even though, as evidenced by silver import figures, the Treasury apparently has eased up on its silver purchases abroad during the last month, the Chinese situation has grown worse and is expected by monetary experts here to become further aggravated as long as the Treasury continues to make purchases at rising prices.

China's representations of the effect of the United States silver policy may force revision of the silver policy voted by Congress last June. Weakening of China's stability through the silver policy is contrary to the Far Eastern policy of this Government, and comes at the moment when Asiatic affairs, through breakdown of the naval conversations, have become critical, it is pointed out.

Modification Expected.

There are other reasons for the belief that the existing silver policy may be modified. It is contended that none is satisfied with the results of the last six months, but for different reasons. The silver bloc on Capitol Hill expresses disappointment because silver prices have not risen faster and the nationalization order and subsequent purchasing failed to boost commodity prices to the extent expected.

Such leaders of the silver bloc as Senators Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and Patrick McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, apparently feel the fault lies with the failure of the Treasury to pursue the policy more vigorously. Senator Wheeler yesterday announced he would demand as soon as Congress meets an accounting from the Treasury of the purchases it has made.

Thus, it appears that the Roosevelt Administration again will be confronted by a militant bloc led by the Senators from the silver-producing States demanding that something be done for the white metal. In the past the President has yielded to the pressure of these groups, first in the Thomas inflation amendment in 1933, and in the silver purchase act last June.

Favor Dropping Program.

A suggestion receiving some attention in official quarters, although it has not been adopted, is that the price paid by the Treasury for newly mined silver might be raised to pacify the silverites and perhaps as the price for abandoning the purchase policy. The price now paid for newly mined silver is the equivalent of 64½ cents an ounce.

Orthodox monetary men in the Administration believe that in the long run it would be cheaper for the Government to pay 75 or 80 cents an ounce for newly mined silver than it would be to go on with the purchase program—although they see no reason why any further premium should be paid to the silver producers whose stocks have became a favorite in Wall Street.

These obvervations were brought to the surface by the revelation yesterday that Chinese Minister Sao-Ke Alfred Sze again has been in communication with the State Department on the subject of silver. In September and October the Chinese and this Government exchanged several notes, without arriving at any conclusions.

Rogers' Warning.

Incidentally, in any silver agitation occurring on Capitol Hill this winter the report made to Secretary of the Treasury Harry Morgenthau by Prof. James H. Rogers on China and silver is certain to figure. Prof. Rogers made his report after a visit to China, and he is believed to have warned the Administration of what has now happened. His report was never made public and the economist returned to Yale University.

The Chinese situation is well known to this Government, since its representatives in that country have been reporting weekly. A. Bland Calder, acting commercial attache at Shanghai, cabled Tuesday that in the preceding week the silver stocks of Shanghai banks declined 8,000,000 ounces.

This made a total decline of 224,000,000 ounces or almost 50 per cent in Shanghai silver stocks since last May when it became evident that the silver purchase legislation would be enacted. The result has been a panicky condition in Shanghai and other parts of China, growing out of a fear of suspension of the redemption of paper currency.

Money Scare.

A tight money condition exists in part of China as a result, especially in the Shantung Province, where native bank interest rates have risen to 20 per cent per month. Chefoo banks are reported refusing to redeem notes in amounts above 10,000 yuan.

Chinese foreign trade has suffered from the situation, with the result that in the first ten months of this year the country had an unfavorable trade balance of 432,000,000 yuan, an amount almost as great as the total exports.

The Chinese government undertook to stop the export of silver when this Government refused to help in October by levying a substantial export tax on the white metal. But the drain of silver continued, partly due to smuggling.

Earlier this month the finance ministry promulgated stringent penalties for smuggling silver out of the country and forbade its shipment out of Shanghai to other Chinese cities or ports, except under permit. More recently a reward of 100 per cent of the silver confiscated for infraction of these rules was offered informers.

In an effort to stop the outflow of silver, the Chinese have given some thought to balancing their foreign trade. But to accomplish this it would be necessary to decrease imports by a quota or control system.

A $2 Dolly Stumps NRA; Where Roosevelt Gets His Hunches; 30-Hour Week Hit.

By Raymond Clapper

ONE perplexing problem has been solved at NRA and just in the nick of time, too, because it concerns the Christmas dolls which a chain of drug stores gives away as premiums.

Each year these stores give tickets with each purchase and award the $2 flaxen-haired doll to the person holding the winning ticket. Managers of the drug chain, thinking it to be a harmless way of encouraging Christmas business, had done it for years, then suddenly learned they were violating the law—that is the NRA retail code. The NRA compliance director in Florida discovered what was going on and laid a firm, restraining hand on the alleged lawbreakers. They protested and were told that the retail code prohibited anything being given away free unless its cost was charged into the purchase prices of the goods sold. They asked how you could divide the cost of a $2 doll into the infinitesimal fractions necessary to distribute it among the prices of the hundreds of articles sold during the contest. Furthermore, if each customer was charged with his share of the cost of the $2 doll, would the company have to refund to those who didn't win the prize and levy an extra assessment on the prize winner?

NRA didn't quite know the answer but was sure the practice was wrong. Experts studied the problem leisurely from all angles. This week they finally solved the problem. They decided that since Christmas was so near that they might as well let the matter drop this year. Next Christmas, if NRA is still in existence and the retail code is still the law of the land, they may take the matter up again.

Sometimes Mr. Roosevelt gets his best hunches from reading his morning newspapers. One morning this week he noticed in a dispatch that Mayor LaGuardia was having rate trouble with New York utilities companies.

Mr. Roosevelt recalled that the mayor was coming to Washington the next day to see him about another matter. In an instant he had his hunch. He sent word to the White House reporters that Mayor LaGuardia would be in Washington within 24 hours and that they would discuss how the Federal Government could help him in his fight. That was to get the thing started in the afternoon newspapers. He instructed his secretary to telephone the mayor to come prepared to discuss the power situation.

For Mayor LaGuardia it was just like Santa Claus coming down the City Hall chimney to have this unexpected help from Mr. Roosevelt.

And for Mr. Roosevelt, it was having the enemy unexpectedly delivered into his clutches, because he had been burning for 24 hours over the attitude of the Edison Electric Institution in opposing the Administration power policy. LaGuardia's trouble gave him something definite to swing at.

This alertness in seizing on the breaks and rushing his opponents is what makes Mr. Roosevelt the All-American Quarter Back.

Another nail has been driven into the coffin of the 30-hour week advocated by the American Federation of Labor. The National Industrial Conference Board estimates that this drastic measure would increase employment only by some 700,000 workers, a jump of 11 per cent over the number now employed. That would still leave some 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 unemployed to the mercies of the dole or the Administration work relief plan. Opposition to the 30-hour week law is one thing on which the Administration and business agree.

Unless the Governors of oil-producing States agree within the next two or three weeks upon methods of conserving natural gas from oil wells, the Federal Government may attempt to declare oil a public utility. Secretary Ickes is thinking of doing it.

Natural gas is found not only among politicians but also in most oil pools. It is this gas which gives the pressure that makes the oil gush out of the well. Many producers let this gas go to waste. Secretary Ickes makes the point that if the oil producers are not interested in capturing and selling this gas, there are methods of turning it back into the sand, where it will serve to increase the well pressure and aid again as it did originally, in recovering oil. He says that unless the States and industries stop this waste of a natural resource, the Federal Government has a moral obligation to step in.

One method he is considering is to declare oil a public utility. That might lead to many things, because if such a step is taken the Government might decide to follow the oil after it leaves the ground.

All of this may be nothing more at the moment than a gleam in Mr. Ickes' eye, but it's a tip as to what may be in the offing if the oil State Governors don't get results.

President Roosevelt never knows when he makes even the most casual remark, how far its influence will reach. One Sunday afternoon some weeks ago he was riding in his automobile and passed the Library of Congress. Making conversation, he said in a purely off-hand way that the library seemed out of style in comparison with the House and Senate office buildings and the new Supreme Court Building nearby. With that the matter dropped out of his mind.

What was his astonishment to discover this week that his remark had been taken seriously and that a project had been drafted with the explanation that Mr. Roosevelt believed the entire structure should be refaced and its dome, which has dazzled so many thousands of tourists in the reading room gallery, removed!

One of these days, Mr. Roosevelt will complain about the weather and PWA will come through with a project to do something about it.

House Leaders See Early Vote On Bonus Issue

Disposition of Question Regarded as Need for Harmony.

(Associated Press.)

A desire for a quick vote on the bonus so as to remove that issue as a possible trouble-maker was disclosed yesterday by House leaders.

As a result, it was reported likely that a bill to pay off soldiers' adjusted compensation certificates would be brought up for House action within two or three weeks after the new Congress convenes January 3.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, now Democratic leader and probably the next Speaker, said yesterday: "I think we ought to dispose of the bonus as quickly as possible."

Other leaders, who did not comment publicly, expressed little doubt privately that the bill would pass. Bonus advocates contend they have sufficient pledges to assure its passage by both House and Senate over a veto.

Seek Harmony.

One reason the leaders seek speed is a desire to get the new House with its 322 to 102 majority over Republicans off to a harmonious start.

At the last two sessions, committees kept the bill dormant from opening day until it was forced to a vote by 145 members signing a petition to discharge the committee and bring the measure up on the floor anyhow.

Both times, the House passed the bill by substantial majorities.

Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, bonus leader, says that at this session he expects 350 of the 435 House members to vote for the bill the first time, and at least 300 to ballot to override a Presidential veto, if there is one.

Senate Support Seen.

He says, too, that more than 70 Senators will favor it the first time and more than 63—the necessary two-thirds—will answer a second roll call the same way, regardless of a veto.

Patman said the Ways and Means Committee this time would approve the bill promptly because 14 of the 25 members of that committee voted for the bonus last session.

He flatly declared there would be "no compromise" so far as he was concerned this session. His bill would pay off the full $2,200,000,000 immediately.

Talk is being heard, however, about attempts to win the Ways and Means Committee to a compromise, possibly that of giving the money only to "needy" veterans.

Gettle 'Plot' Note Blamed on Crank

Crudely Written Letter Had Aroused Kidnap Fears.

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 (AP).—Friends of William F. Gettle, wealthy victim of a kidnaping plot last spring, today put down as the work of a crank a crudely written letter which had again aroused fears for his safety.

Arcadia police, Capt. William Bright, of the sheriff's office, and other officials said they had received no report of the letter, reputedly received by Gettle from Long Beach last Friday, and knew of no guard placed at his home. Rumors that police were on watch there had been circulated widely.

Gettle could not be reached for comment. He is living at the Arcadia estate where he was kidnaped May 10 by three men later captured and sentenced to life-prison terms. They failed in an effort to collect $60,000 ransom.

Hopkins Derides Direct Reilef As Advocated by Business

"Loans to Railroads."

Later he expanded his statement. "Some people," he said, "spending two or three days thinking about how relief should be handled decided in the sacred precincts of White Sulphur Springs that the unemployed should receive baskets on Christmas.

"No doubt they have visited many families in need and know all about these people. No doubt they have visited this office and made a complete investigation. Otherwise, they wouldn't presume to tell the American people how relief should be administered.

"I haven't changed my mind about relief. Nothing in that memorandum would make me change my mind. I am 100 per cent for work relief and always have been."

Hopkins said that 2,100,000 people are on work relief and that a total of 19,000,000 are on relief rolls. He said that, including people who were employed under the Civil Works Administration last year, the number on relief is lower than it was 12 months ago.

Continuing his comment on the business program, he said:

Opposes a Dole.

"I don't think anything worse could be done to a man than to put him on a dole. I don't see how anyone could have suggested anything worse for America than these people have suggested."

Asked about the amount business proposed to pay in direct relief, Hopkins said: "I wasn't consulted."

Asked to comment on the direct relief recommendation, Secretary Ickes replied: "Taking men off public works and putting them on the dole doesn't appeal to me."

Leaving the White House after he had left a copy of the business program, Ames said that the "President's conferences were so numerous that I simply left the recommendations with Marvin McIntyre, one of his secretaries. This carried out the mandate of the conference."

Ames indicated he did not wish to leave the impression that the President had refused to see him. He said that he had been offered an appointment tomorrow, but repeated that he had carried out the wishes of the conference.

Earlier in the day it was said at the White House that President Roosevelt would welcome an appointment with representatives of the business conference and that the resolutions would be given attention. The White House said that in normal course the resolutions would be referred to the departments concerned for detailed consideration.

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, visiting the White House, said in connection with the relief recommendations:

"I think if the Administration had started out with the dole, this organization would have advocated what we now have. I say this without disrespect. It is simply that we see the bad points more than the good of what we have. Personally, I don't favor the dole."

The statement of the conference of mayors was issued after a meeting between Hopkins and a conference subcommittee, including Mayor LaGuardia of New York.

The statement said that "business now suggests we keep the unemployed in storage on a starvation basis, until such time as private business has the opportunity to exploit human resources again."

It added:

"Every thoughtful student of the unemployment situation knows that what the unemployed want is work. Human resources are too valuable to let decay under a system of pauperism, charity and idleness.

"With over 10,000,000 people on relief in America's major cities, we shall continue our efforts to secure adoption by President Roosevelt of a sound financial plan which will give jobs instead of the dole to these citizens."

MacArthur Drops Libel Action Here

Suit Against Pearson, Allen and Newspaper Settled.

The suit of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Army Chief of Staff, alleging libel against the Washington Times Co., Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, was withdrawn formally yesterday in the District Supreme Court. The sum of $250,000 was asked in each of seven counts.

Attorneys for Gen. MacArthur filed notice that the suit was "settled and dismissed."

The suit was based on articles written by Pearson and Allen in a column named "Washington Merry-Go-Round," appearing in the Washington Herald.

Airplane Parts Found On Island Not Ulm's

Honolulu, Dec. 20 (AP).—Parts of an airplane found on Niihau Island belonged to a scrapped naval plane, Navy officers reported today, thus ending hope that trace had been found of Lieut. Charles T. P. Ulm and two other Australian fliers missing since December 4.

Intensive search of Hawaiian waters by naval air and surface craft, Army airplanes and scores of fishing boats has been futile for Ulm and his companions, L. J. Skilling and George Littlejohn, who dropped into the sea while attempting to fly here from Oakland, Calif.

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—Back home after a look at the aviation industry in Europe, L. B. Manning, president of the Cord Corporation, said tonight he found the leading European nations in a "frantic race" to build airplanes and he proposed that the United States start at once to build at least 9,000 planes.

The company Manning heads controls several aircraft building and transportation companies. Manning has just returned from a visit to Italy, France, Russia, Germany and England.

Multiple Tax Burden Under Treasury Probe

Morgenthau Orders Study of Baffling Revenue Levy Problem.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury experts were ordered to work yesterday by President Roosevelt on the problem of overlapping and double taxation—a problem previous investigators had termed insoluble by law.

A House Ways and Means subcommittee which studied the question exhaustively in 1932 said sincere cooperation between Government, State, city and public seemed the only practical way to bring order out of the present tax tangle.

The Treasury review is preparatory to a national conference next summer on the involved subject. Means of bringing the suggested cooperation will be sought then.

To Study Centralization.

Secretary Morgenthau said one subject for consideration in the Treasury tax scrutiny would be whether the Government could collect taxes more economically than other agencies, and then distribute shares to the States. Elimination of tax-exempt securities was another item mentioned for study.

The possible creation of "definite zones of taxation" for the governing unit involved was still another goal outlined by Morgenthau for the inquiry into superimposed Federal, State and municipal levies.

The present difficulties of many States and municipalities in finding sufficient revenue sources to finance relief demands and support new borrowings was another factor involved in the study.

The United States conference of mayors, through Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans yesterday pledged Morgenthau its support.

They urged that other governmental units get out of the local tax field.

Revenue Sources Scarce.

Representative Hill (Democrat), Washington, a member of the committee which investigated double taxation two years ago, commented "one reason for all the overlapping is the scarcity of sources of revenue."

Morgenthau named gasoline taxes as an excellent example of overlapping. The Congressional study gave this specific example:

A citizen of Mobile, Ala., who purchased 623 gallons of gasoline, paid $6.23 to the Federal Government, $37.28 to the State, $9.35 to the county, and $6.23 to the city.

Similar findings were made on income, inheritance, sales and other taxes.

Secretary Morgenthau also announced another Treasury survey into the availability of bank credit. This time the Cleveland Federal Reserve district, covering Ohio and portions of Pennsylvania, Kentucky and West Virginia, will be investigated.

Actress Accused of Speeding.

Livermore, Calif., Dec. 20 (AP).—Bette Davis, screen actress, was arrested for speeding near here yesterday. Highway Patrolman Harold Atkins cited her for doing 70 miles an hour. She is to appear in justice court January 8.

Mooney Appeal Contested in Supreme Court

Scottsboro Plea Also Opposed as Outside U. S. Jurisdiction.

(Associated Press.)

Principals in two of America's most famous criminal cases will learn early in the new year whether the Supreme Court will take up their pleas for an escape from prison in one case and death in another.

The attorney general of California, U. S. Webb, yesterday filed with the court his opposition to Thomas J. Mooney's effort to file habeas corpus proceedings before the highest tribunal in an effort to gain his freedom.

Thomas E. Knight, jr., attorney general of Alabama, also presented the opposition of his State to a review sought by Clarence Norris and Haywood Patterson, Negroes held in the famous Scottsboro case.

The court probably will announce on January 7 whether it will review the death sentence imposed on Norris and Patterson on charges of assaulting a white woman near Scottsboro, Ala.

The condemned men claim they were deprived of their constitutional rights because men of their own race were not allowed to serve on the jury.

Mooney, serving a life term on conviction of participating in a San Francisco bombing, argued that he was convicted on perjured evidence.

The California attorney general asserted the prisoner's only avenue of relief was through passage of new laws to permit reopening the case or a pardon by the California Governor.

Webb's brief will not be placed before the court until January 7 and the tribunal probabaly will announce whether it will allow him to present his case on the succeeding Monday.

Fraud Is Denied By Martin Insull

Closing Arguments Made, Case Nears Jury.

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—The trial of Martin Insull neared the jury stage tonight with an accusation of embezzlement from the prosecution and a denial of guilt from the former millionaire utility operator.

Closing arguments were begun in a tense criminal court room late in the day with the intention of placing the case in the hands of the jurors during a night session.

Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hara reviewed the transaction forming the foundation of the State's charges—that the silver-haired defendant deliberately drew $344,720 from the treasury of Middle West Utilities Co. and gave in exchange a bundle of Insull stocks that were all but worthless.

Long's Senate Assures Him 'Imperial City'

Huey Launches Seizure of Baton Rouge; Taxes Its Chief Industry.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 20 (AP).—Huey P. Long tonight had tightened his dictatorial reins over Louisiana by grasping, through a submissive Legislature, power to replace elected municipal officials, levy a general manufacturers tax, and select the State's 15,000 school teachers.

Before permitting his lawmakers to go home the "Kingfish" compelled them to "pass" a bill they had "defeated" a few minutes previously, and wound up the third special session in the last four months with his every wish granted.

Dictator Long twice encountered opposition. He outmaneuvered his thin opposition to clothe himself with control over the State's pedagogues, then blasted through a minor bill which had received an unfavorable Senate vote.

Session Adjourns.

Long's smashing blow was delivered shortly before the session adjourned sine die at noon and recorded entry of a new governmental era for Louisiana.

With little dissension, Long slammed through the two houses a bill ejecting from office the mayor and councilmen of the City of Alexandria, where he was "rotten egged" a year ago while delivering a political harangue.

Two other measures were enacted to establish his "seat of empire," by directing appointment by his subordinate, Gov. O. K. Allen, of officials to cancel the will of ballot-chosen officials of the parish of East Baton Rouge, and to give him a hand in the municipal government of Baton Rouge.

Other acts which went to the Governor's desk, where their approval is assured, authorize his appointment of enough police jurors in the East Baton Rouge Parish to offset the number elected, thus clinching the "Kingfish" control of that parish's affairs.

To "Coordinate" Government.

That, Long explained, was the first step toward his establishment of a small "District of Columbia," from which he intends to rule the State.

The imperial "Kingfish" followed that up with an act abolishing the office of the Baton Rouge commissioner of streets and parks and consolidating it with that of the mayor.

Long declared that was to "coordinate the city government with the State government."

Mayor V. V. Lamkin and Commissioners R. W. Bringhurst and V. M. Ake, of Alexandria, a city of more than 23,000 in the heart of the State, were declared removed, and Long assumed the power to say, through appointment, who should govern the city.

Louisiana's governmental master then topped off that dish of legislation with a sweeping tax on manufacturers of every commodity but ice, bread and milk, ranging up to a $4,000 maximum.

Long took another whack at the parish of East Baton Rouge by placing a 5-cents-a-barrel tax on oil refining, sharply affecting the operation of the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana's great refinery that is practically the life of the parish.

Long Fails to Evade Trial in Libel Action

Overruling the contention of Senator Huey P. Long that he was immune from civil suits in the District because he was a resident of Louisiana, Justice Peyton Gordon, in the District Supreme Court yesterday disposed of the latest of the Senator's maneuvers to escape trial of a $500,000 libel suit.

Senator Long is defendant in a suit brought by Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, former judge advocate general of the Army, who charged the Senator with slandering and libeling him. The slander charge was knocked out in the courts because of the immunity which attaches to remarks made on the floor of the Senate.

However, the libel count, which related to Senator Long's distribution in pamphlet form of the things he said about Gen. Ansell, were permitted to stand. After the United States Supreme Court upheld the charge, Senator Long asked that the suit be dismissed on the grounds that he was a citizen of Louisiana and was in Senate attendance here in pursuance of his official duties.

Justice Gordon dismissed the motion to quash the service of legal papers on Senator Long. Unless other motions are filed by Senator Long the case will be tried in the District Supreme Court next year.

Church Court to Try Rebellious Minister

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Presbytery of New Brunswick today charged Dr. J. Gresham Machen, of Philadelphia, organizer of the Independent Board of Foreign Missions, with disobedience and appointed a church "court" to try him.

Dr. Machen, opposing the church's board of foreign missions as being too liberal in theological views, organized an independent board. The general assembly of the church last May ordered resignation of the independent board members and disciplinary action if they did not obey.

Betty Gow Vanishes Near Sailing Time

Glasgow, Scotland, Dec. 20 (AP). The whereabouts of Betty Gow, baby Charles A. Lindbergh, jr.'s nurse at the time he was kidnaped, were unknown tonight even to her relatives. She was last seen Saturday at a Piccadilly club.

While it was believed she was scheduled to sail for the United States from Glasgow next Saturday aboard the Duchess of York, some newspapers said she had gone undetected on the Aquitania, although this was denied by the ship's authorities.

Wagner Offers New 13-Point Recovery Plan

Senator Declares Much of New Deal Should Become Permanent.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—A thirteen-point recovery program, including conditional abandonment of several phases of the New Deal experiment, was urged tonight by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, one of President Roosevelt's legislative advisers.

"Certain portions of the New Deal must become embodied in permament law and crystallized in public sentiment," Wagner told a meeting at the Catholic Club; then, at another point, he said:

"Other types of our program are more susceptible to modification. A certain amount of experimentation is an essential element of domestic government. We have not sought the pretended finality of a dictatorial state with all the mock certainty of its glorified blueprints.

"Whatever may be the case in other lands, I do not believe that the methods of freedom are outworn or even discredited in the United States. On the contrary, they have been retested and reconfirmed during the past 20 months."

Wagner advocated the following program:

1. A qualified scrapping of price fixing under the NRA.
2. Ending of NRA's production limitation phase.
3. Reduction of "widespread Federal expenditures to stimulate industry when industry is completely revived and prepared to stand entirely on its own feet."
4. Extend Federal control over some public utilities.
5. Continue to regulate minimum wages.
6. "Excessively long" hours shall remain proscribed.
7. Sweatshops to be kept closed.
8. Child labor to remain banned.
9. Continued protection afforded the small bank depositors and investors.
10. Employes shall be "safeguarded" in their right to organize and bargain collectively.
11. Business shall have the right to guard itself against destructive competition of the trickster and gangster.
12. Combining the share-work idea with old-age pensions.
13. Compulsory unemployment insurance.

Wagner, who helped frame the recovery act, said he had held from its inception that "price fixing, when it goes beyond the bounds of establishing minimum wages and prohibting the cut-throat practice of selling below cost, has no place in a program designed to shield the individual business man against the onslaught of monopoly."

Nation's Largest Flying Ship Succeeds in Baltimore Test

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—The largest flying ship ever built in this country—a craft that may blaze an air passenger trail to the Orient—was lifted off choppy water today for a successful test flight.

She is Pan-American Airways' 48-passenger craft, now known only as flying clipper No. 7. The plane will carry a crew of six.

Pan-American officials already have plans to send the clipper on a mail flight from California to China by way of Midway Islands, Honolulu and Guam. It will not be an official mail route, but will be used to test the assertion of Assistant Postmaster General Harlee Branch that regular Pacific transport service is only a question of time. Preliminary studies have been made of West Coast bases.

Officials of the United States Department of Commerce, the Navy Department and a group of airplane designers assembled to watch Kenneth Ebel and L. C. McCardy send the giant skimming across the water and into the air.

Ebel and McCardy sped down the water runway at 60 miles an hour, lifting the plane after a run of more than a mile.

The flying clipper No. 7 stayed in the air about 15 minutes.

Interior accommodations have not been fixed as yet, sandbags being used as ballast in today's test flight to approximate both passengers and interior finishings. According to present plans, sleeping accommodations will be installed, but for how many persons has not been determined.

Tennessee City May Balk Mob With Vigilantes

Officials Debate Proposal; Clash Death Toll Now Is Three.

Shelbyville, Tenn., Dec. 20 (AP).—Formation of a vigilante committee to aid in maintaining order in this riot-torn town was proposed late today in a mass meeting of business men.

Meanwhile, a third death resulted last night from the outbreak following an attempt to seize a colored prisoner, which brought 600 National Guardsmen here to restore order.

Gilford Freeman, 45, was the third victim of the clashes between a mob and National Guardsmen and officers. He died of an abdominal wound.

The vigilante plan designed to prevent any further outburst of race hatred, even after the withdrawal of the National Guard troops now stationed here, came as Shelbyville counted its losses from yesterday's violence, buried one of the men known dead and considered housing of county officers left without headquarters by a $150,000 fire, set by the mob, which destroyed the courthouse.

Vigilantes' Duties.

C. C. Smith, city recorder, said of the vigilante proposal that such an organization "would be to assist the city and county authorities in maintaining peace and order."

"They would serve as an armed body if it should be found necessary after the guardsmen leave," he added, "and would also assist in any other way possible while troops are here."

The frenzy of the mob had apparently abated tonight and the peaceful citizens looked at the black hulk of the courthouse in silence which contrasted strangely with the disorder in the public square last night.

Killed in Charge.

The two members were killed as between 500 and 600 persons made three unsuccessful attempts to take E. K. Harris, young colored man, on trial for attacking a 14-year-old white girl, from the courtroom.

Troopers fired tear gas to repulse the first storming of the courthouse entrance, but in the second foray the guardsmen turned on the crowd with riot guns, gas and bayonets. Raleigh Edwards, 30, a house painter, fell mortally wounded. The other victim was unidentified.

Inquiry Delayed.

Meanwhile, investigation by authorities was delayed pending a conference between Judge T. L. Coleman and Prosecutor W. B. Knott. Judge Coleman said he was putting off the conference until certain that "things had quieted down."

The grand jury is in recess until January 21, but the court can call it into session at any time.

Although a jury had been selected, the Harris case was ended by the judge's declaration of a mistrial. Shortly after the soldiers resorted to the gunfire. Garbed in trooper attire, Harris was rushed to Nashville.

First Lady Replies To Flock's Appeal To Save Church

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 20 (AP).—Encouraged because Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt paid some attention to their cause, the Negro congregation of the Church of Christ in God continued prayers today to save their church building from foreclosure on a $11,000 mortgage.

Recently the pastor, A. E. Schadd, and his flock wrote Mrs. Roosevelt, saying they had been led, "after praying for several days, to ask you would you intercede for us in saving our little church, which is about to be foreclosed, after the poor colored folks of our congregation have put much of their life savings into the church."

"God revealed to us," they wrote, "that you would help us if we would appeal to you."

This week the church received a letter from the Home Owners Loan Corporation at Washington, written at the request of Mrs. Roosevelt, explaining the corporation was not authorized to loan money for financing church property.

The pastor said the church has 90 members, but only 12 of them are working.

A Special Notice for Boys and Girls

How would you like to see a fine show tomorrow morning at Keith's R. K. O. Theater—a full-length feature picture, a cartoon in color with an extra added attraction—the National Capital Cadet Band of 60 boys and girls? And all for an admission of one new toy.

Well, that is the program tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. All the toys collected will go into The Washington Post's toy fund for distribution to children who might otherwise not be remembered this Christmas.

U. S. to Request More Weapons In Crime War

Attorney General Also Would Aid Families of Slain Officers.

(Associated Press.)

Attorney General Cummings wants more men, ammunition and other weapons to fight crime and he plans to ask Congress for the money to get them.

He also said yesterday that he intended to ask for an appropriation of $12,000 for each of the families of the eight Government agents killed in line of duty since the Division of Investigation was formed back in 1908.

The Attorney General said that only "hand-picked" lawyers and accountants — recently graduated from college—will be enlisted as Federal agents. The little army of Federal men now numbers 568. A year ago the division totaled 367 agents.

Surveys of the latest models of rifles, machine guns, revolvers, gas bombs and high-powered squad cars are now under way in anticipation that Congress might grant the funds requested.

Cummings mentioned specifically the families of Samuel P. Cowley, Herman E. Hollis and W. Carter Baum, victims of the machine gun of George (Baby Face) Nelson.

He said agents in the division are underpaid and find it difficult to maintain insurance policies. He has in mind asking Congress to authorize the Government to pay their insurance premiums.

Families of agents killed in pursuit of duty are at present entitled to monthly payments from the Government at the rate of $61.50 for widows and $17.50 for each child.

Present salaries of the agents range from $2,900 a year to the $9,000 a year paid J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division.

Roosevelt Thanks Dance Commission

Group Will Manage Funds From Birthday Balls.

President Roosevelt yesterday expressed his appreciation of the services of a commission appointed to administer funds collected at the President's birthday balls to be held January 30.

Thirty per cent of the funds will be spent for infantile paralysis research. The remainder will be spent in the communities raising the money.

Middletown Fire Unit Reelects Boileau Head

Middletown, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.). At the annual meeting of the Middetown Volunteer Fire Company last night, Albert Y. Boileau, who has headed the organization for several years, was reelected president without opposition.

Other officers chosen were M. Frank Holter, vice president; Edgar H. Koogle, secretary; Austin L. Main, treasurer; the Rev. L. Ralph Tabor, pastor of the Lutheran Church, chaplain; Eyster E. Biddle, Frank H. Darner, Earl M. Kepler, Floyd C. Main and Russell M. Hoffman, members of executive committee. The new officers will meet next week and announce the appointive officers, including a chief to succeed the late Charles B. Darner.

Lions Club Will Hold Yule Party Tomorrow

Middletown, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.). More than 300 children of Middletown and vicinity will be special guests of the local Lions Club at the second annual Christmas party in Memorial Hall Saturday evening. Tickets have been distributed through Middletown merchants to children up to 8 years of age and each child, who might not otherwise be paid a visit by Santa, will receive a box of candy and a gift from the Lions Club.

The entertainment of the evening will be furnished by "The Puppeteers," a group of 12 young people from Harrisburg, Pa. The features of the program will be a three-act play, "The Adventures of Puss in Boots," the Russian story of "Abdul and Ivan," and the dramatization of "Good King Wencelaus."

George Garrett Abdicates Crown

His Modesty Wins the Selection as Jury Chairman.

Sensations startled the sartorial sector yesterday.

His modesty of demeanor, which comports so well with his modesty of well-chosen attire, caused him to abdicate. As he left the throne to which he had been temporarily elevated, and which for nearly a week has been threatened only by the presence of Rexford Guy Tugwell and his rustic supporters, he nominated Hugh S. Legare to take his place.

But although he refused to be considered as possible winner of the best-dressed title, he will still be active on the fashion front. Mr. Garrett has consented to serve as chairman of the jury which will select for The Post the Beau Brummel of Washington for 1934.

Rest of Jury Kept Secret.

Other members of the jury will be kept secret. This secrecy is to forestall any possibility of a social lobby getting in any dirty work with a view to influence the solemn verdict of the jury. Since the days of Peggy O'Neill, social lobbies have done more to undermine organized government than any other thing. The Post and the community desire above all things that the verdict shall be fair and shall be accepted as such.

Under the leadership of Mr. Garrett, The Post jury will be untrammeled. Whomever it chooses as title holder will have been selected purely on the basis of sartorial splendor. Social politics will not be allowed to interfere.

The selection of Chairman Garrett does not mean that Hugh S. Legare's name can not be considered. In fact, before Mr. Garrett abdicated, Walcott Clarke Waggaman named him and his brother, Alex Legare.

A Vote for Bliss.

"I'd say that my step-father, Alex Legare, and his brother Hugh are by far the best turned out men in town," he declared. "I don't say that just to keep the honor in my own family, but because they are as neatly turned out gentlemen as you would find anywhere."

A letter was received by The Post yesterday from one who was associated with Robert Woods Bliss, for many years Ambassador at Buenos Aires. The writer stated that while Ambassador Espil may be highly regarded as a dresser in Washington, no one in Argentina during Mr. Bliss' tenure of office was considered equal to him "in taste, refinement, variety and extent of wardrobe and grace in wearing clothes."

Bearing in mind a recent statement that Latin and Oriental races are the best dressers, the writer felt that the ability of Ambassador Bliss to shine in South America entitles him to a heavy vote. The letter came from one who knew Ambassador Bliss intimately and who is now in Washington. Many Post readers can guess who.

Other Candidates.

[The Post regrets that it can print no picture of Legares freres, whose modesty has kept them from the camera. The jury, however, will know them.]

From other fronts came threats to the Tugwell sartorial supremacy. Artistic circles came forth with the suggestion that J. Powell Minnigerode, director of Corcoran Gallery, deserved mention. He is, they said, of the old school, but his neat appearance daily in his dark, well-chosen, beautifully fitting suits, set off by carefully selected ties, puts him in the running.

The Pan American Union—or at least an employe thereof, whose name is withheld, said he was astounded that The Post had forgotten to mention Dr. J. Leo Rowe. It's mentioned.

And several debutantes, or at least they said they were debutantes over the telephone, sighed deeply and demanded that Coleman Jennings, whom they called Washington's most eligible bachelor, be listed. And so here it is.

Printers Decide On Short Week

40-Hour Maximum Set in Close Union Vote.

Indianapolis, Dec. 20 (AP).—Woodruff Randolph, secretary of the International Typographical Union, announced tonight that 781 locals of the organization will be affected by a referendum decision to prohibit subordinate unions from making a work contract for in excess of 40 hours a week.

The vote on the proposition, Randolph said, was 21,914 to 21,857.

Under the existing system, Randolph explained, local unions in newspaper offices are limited to a maximum of 48 hours a week, while those in commercial printing plants have had the 40-hour maximum. Most newspaper unions have been operating on a 45-hour week basis, however, he said. The new ruling will go into effect January 1.

the East, where the St. Lawrence remains an inviting possibility, and on forcing down rates in individual cities.

While a power development in New York City, center of the industry, is calculated to have telling effect, New York is only one of numerous cities to receive loans and grants for municipal plants. Mr. Ickes' position as head of both the power policy committee and the PWA has simplified procedure.

Two such instances of PWA help came yesterday, when the administrator announced grants to Columbus, Ohio, and Lamoni, Iowa. Columbus received a $320,000 grant for a power house, ultimately to cost $1,066,000. This is for extension of the present city system. Lamoni received $97,000 as a grant and loan for an electric system.

Excessive Profits Sought.

Questioned as to where he thought the line should be drawn in public competition with private power companies, Mr. Ickes replied: Where profits are excessive on the prudent investment theory. He declined to be drawn out on what profit he considers reasonable.

Mayor LaGuardia left the city prepared to hasten back, he said, with an application for a 70 per cent PWA loan, which would accompany the usual 30 per cent grant for labor and materials. For the Government, Rear Admiral Reuben E. Bakenhus also is drafting a proposal to supply New York Federal buildings with power.

The battle on the power front moved to another quarter when Secretary Ickes said he had written the mayors of three Alabama cities—Tuscumbia, Sheffield and Florence—suggesting that they get together and make common cause with the TVA. The Tennessee Valley experiment also was discussed when Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the TVA, conferred with President Roosevelt.

No further move has been made by the Edison Electric Institute in its threatened court fight, but the question of TVA constitutionality is being widely debated.

Directors of the TVA are believed to feel they are on sound ground if for no better reason than that the Supreme Court upheld the Government's purchase of forest reserves because they were construed as an aid to "navigation." Trees hold back water, it was explained in one quarter, but the TVA is doing an even better job of it.

Spanish Prince, a Deaf Mute, To Wed Italian Noblewoman

Second Son of Alfonso Wins Beauty With U. S. Ancestry.

Rome, Dec. 20 (AP).—Prince Jaime, second son of former King Alfonso of Spain, who relinquished his claim to the fallen Spanish throne because of physical infirmities, has won the hand of a beautiful Italian noblewoman, it was disclosed today.

The bethrothal was the climax of three months of courtship. Although a deaf-mute, the 26-year-old scion of royalty pressed his suit fervently until he won both the affections of the charming Donna Emanuela and her family's consent to the match.

Sister to Wed American's Son.

The romance is the second in recent weeks linking a member of the Spanish royal house with a person of American blood.

Don Jaime's sister, the Infanta Beatriz, became engaged two months ago to Prince Alessandro Torlonia, son of the former Elsie Moore, of New York.

The engagement of Don Jaime and Donna Emanuela is regarded by Rome society as a genuine love match. Social leaders told of the Spanish prince's persistent wooing from the time he first met Donna Emanuela when his family came here three months ago to establish its winter residence.

The young couple appeared frequently together on the golf links and at dances. One Rome society matron said the Roman elite considered him an attraction in their drawing rooms. His lip reading ability and modest manners, she said, placed his acquaintances immediately at ease.

"Intelligent" Company.

He is, as another described him, "a good golfer, a good horseman, a nice dancer and intelligent company despite his infirmities."

Donna Emanuela is the daughter of Viscount Roger de Dampierre, descendant of French nobility, and Donna Vittoria Ruspoli di Poggia Suasa. Through her mother's side, the family is connected with the Spanish ducal house of Alcudia.

Wholesale Prices Hold to 1934 Gains

Labor Department figures yesterday showed food prices rose to 75.4 from 74.9 the previous week. Farm products fell from 71.7 to 71.1.

The general average compared with 70.8 the corresponding week last year and 63.0 the corresponding week in 1932.

Glass Production Down.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Production of Polish plate glass by members of the Plate Glass Manufacturers of America for November was 6,587,366 square feet against 7,512,052 for October and 4,169,442 for November, 1933.

PWA Aids Study Of Flood Control

Allots $10,000 for Work in Rock Creek Area.

The Public Works Administration has allotted $10,000 for flood-control studies of Rock Creek drainage areas in the District of Columbia and Maryland, it was announced yesterday.

The allotment was made to the National Park Service, Department of the Interior, and provides for a complete topographic survey of Rock Creek Valley and adjacent streams with a view to controlling excessive flow in the creek during and after heavy rainfalls. The studies will be made coincident with a study of Rock Creek pollution.

Chicago Bank Law Suit of RFC Names 13 Here

Action Filed in D.C. Against Stockholders to Collect Loan in Default.

An echo of the collapse of the Central Republic Bank & Trust Co. (now the Central Republic Trust Co.), one of Chicago's leading financial institutions, was heard in the District Supreme Court yesterday when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation filed suit against 13 stockholders who live here.

Stating that it filed suit in the name of all creditors of the bank, the RFC said that the bank had first borrowed $30,000,000 and had later obtained another loan of $50,000,000. The latter is in entire default, and on the former there is now due and owing over $7,000,000 in principal retirement and interest of over $600,000.

Those sued, together with the stockholdings, were: Frederic Bancroft, Metropolitan Club, 182 shares; Ernest P. and Grace V. Bicknell, 1661 Crescent place northwest, 12 shares; Mrs. Rose G. Casey, 1425 Whittier street northwest, 200 shares; Mrs. Edythe Patten Corbin, 2122 Massachusetts avenue northwest, 30 shares; William H. Hawthorne, Navy Department, 6 shares; Hugh Henning, 505 Fourth street northwest, 2 shares.

Grace Hughes, 2125 Kalorama road northwest, 2 shares; Mrs. Emma C. Mann, 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, 159 shares; John T. Marchand, National Metropolitan Bank, 8 shares; Alice Marie Merrill, 3620 Sixteenth street northwest, 2 shares; William B. Pichler, 5402 or 5612 Connecticut avenue northwest, 1 share, and Mrs. Lucy L. Smith, Wardman Park Hotel, 7 shares.

After reciting that the bank was now in default on more than $57,000,000 of the loans it obtained from the RFC the suit alleged that there were many creditors and that the amount of the bank's liabilities was unknown. The court was asked to determine the amount due creditors and then establish the amount due from each of the stockholders, who under the law of Illinois might be liable for a 100 per cent stock assessment on their holdings, which are valued at $100 per share.

Peruvian Cabinet Resigns in Dispute

Cause of Conflict. Finance Ministry Policies

Lima, Peru, Dec. 20 (AP).—A heated battle in Congress over the policies of the finance ministry today caused the resignation of Premier Alberto Rey de Castro's cabinet.

It was the second time De Castro's government had quit since he wsa appointed premier November 25, 1933. In October, President Oscar Benavides refused to accept the ministers' resignations.

The premier, leaving the palace after the cabinet had been in session two hours, said the decision to resign was taken "in order to leave President Benavides full liberty to solve the delicate situation growing out of the conflict between the finance minister and the congress.

Three of the men ran up a stairway, adjusting handkerchiefs over their faces. Two drew shotguns from beneath their coats and the third pulled out a pistol.

"Anybody who moves gets killed," the leader warned as the three burst into the room in which some 60 employes were being paid.

All were ordered to lie on the floor, and one of the bandits was delegated to cover them. Then the leader ordered John F. Trauger, 35, the cashier, to open the door to his cage.

When he delayed, the bandit chief broke in the glass of the door with the barrel of his gun, and, without apparent reason, fired a shotgun charge into the wall. Then he reached inside and unlocked the door.

He picked up a money bag, scooped up all the cash in sight, except for some coins and a few bills, and backed out with his henchmen.

Three times on the way from the building they came upon employes of the company, but in each case they struck with their gun butts, leaving their victims nursing injuries.

Bridge Takes 11 Lives.

San Francisco, Dec. 20 (AP). Eleven men have been killed during the 16-month work on San Francisco's two bay bridges, a remarkably small number considering the magnitude of the work, the State industrial accident commissioner, Frank MacDonald, said today.

Bids on Wells For Hospital Await Money

Ickes Signs Papers Calling for $1,500,000 Loan for Tuberculosis Home.

Bids for construction of artesian wells to supply water for the proposed adult tuberculosis hospital at Glenn Dale, Md., will be asked by the District as soon as PWA funds actually are available, Lieut. Col. Daniel I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, said yesterday.

Digging the wells is to be the first step in the construction program which calls for completion of construction of the sanatorium by July 1, 1936, and its equipment, ready to receive patients not later than the following October 1.

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, public works administrator, yesterday signed a contract agreement between PWA and the District Commissioners providing for an advance of $1,500,000 for construction of the sanatorium. The Commissioners previously had signed the contract.

Authorized by Congress.

Advance of $1,500,000 for the hospital was authorized by a special act of the last Congress. Seventy per cent of the advance is to be repaid out of District revenues. The balance is to be an outright grant similar to arrangements made with various States.

Adequacy and purity of the water supply from artesian wells at the children's tuberculosis sanatorium at Glen Dale was brought into question when the choice of a site for the adult sanatorium still was undecided. These objections were met by District officials satisfactorily. To forestall any future complications about the water supply, District officials already have obtained PWA approval for the plan to sink additional wells to provide water for the new hospital, Col. Sultan said.

Sure of Adequate Supply.

It is planned to sink the wells from 900 to 1,000 feet. Wells already in use supply more water than is needed for the children's institution, it was said. Col. Sultan said there was no question in his mind about the adequacy and purity of the prospective water supply.

Other work incident to construction of the sanatorium is to be pushed with all speed, Col. Sultan said.

"We haven't any time to lose," he said. "We do not want to proceed recklessly and shall not do so. We are going to insist that the successful bidders put on enough workers to speed their individual parts of the whole plan."

Just when detailed plans for the sanatorium would be ready can not be forecast exactly, it was said.

velt Administration's high command has charted a retreat from all forms of price control and will make no exception for the service industries.

One of the first local compacts was approved yesterday and will apply to the cleaners and dyers of Seattle, Wash. It went through in a hurry because it contained no pricing clause.

Price regulation, especially in bread, has inspired vitriolic attacks by archopponents of the New Deal including Senators Borah (Republican), Idaho, and Nye (Republican), North Dakota. They charged such provisions nourished monopolism and crushed small business.

Among the several score service industries are advertising display installation, advertising distribution, bowling and billiards, shoe rebuilders, motor vehicle storage and beauty shops.

Meanwhile, Joseph H. Choate, jr., Federal alcohol control director, announced indictment in western Louisiana Federal court of the Anheuser-Busch Corporation, of St. Louis, for alleged violation of the brewing code. He charged the company furnished bar equipment to 17 retail outlets.

"One of the most important purposes of the brewing code," Choate said, "has been to prevent the brewing companies from securing a financial control over the retail outlets.

"In the contracts involved in these proceedings, the recipients of the equipment were forbidden to use the same for the dispensing of other than Anheuser-Busch beer."

Officials described the prosecution as "historic."

Roosevelt Urges Telegraph Code

In a move to bring under NRA one of its largest "hold-outs," President Roosevelt yesterday summoned leaders of the telegraph industry to the White House for a discussion of a revised code of fair competition.

Those attending the conference intimated, however, that provisions of the new code are just as unacceptable as the agreement Gen. Hugh S. Johnson proposed more than a year ago. They declared the meeting inconclusive, although it was indicated further discussions will be held.

Vanished Wife Of Schaffner Feared Suicide

Sheriff Advances Theory; Search Continued on West Coast.

Carmel, Calif., Dec. 20 (AP).—United States soldiers, airplanes, civilian authorities and artist colony volunteers scrutinized Carmel's picturesque ocean shore foot by foot today in a forlorn search for Mrs. Eliot Boke Schaffner.

The print of a naked foot on the sandy beach, at the end of a trail followed by dogs, heightened Sheriff Carl Abbott's belief that the missing wife of Joseph Schaffner, a director of a nationally known clothing firm, had become distracted over her health and thrown herself into Monterey Bay.

Relatives and friends, however, still clung to the hope the 96-pound society matron might be found, and urged continuance of the hunt.

Meanwhile, records were found in the county clerk's office showing the missing woman had married Walter J. Coburn, noted Carmel author, December 8, 1925, and that they lived together only three weeks, after which she filed suit for divorce, making sensational charges.

The papers showed Mrs. Coburn said they had separated after her enemies had told her husband she was addicted to drugs, drank heavily and was indiscreet with men.

Mrs. Coburn's petition alleged Coburn repeated these things to Carmel residents and that he said he had been inveigled into marrying her and was intoxicated when the ceremony was performed. A divorce decree was entered June 28, 1926.

Dutch Fliers Hunt For 'Flying Hotel'

Van Lear Black's Ex-Pilot in Rescue Craft.

Amsterdam, Dec. 20 (AP).—Two Dutch pilots tonight were ready to take off at dawn for a high-speed dash to the Syrian Desert to seek the famed Dutch "Flying Hotel," sensation of the London-Melbourne Air Derby, lost with seven persons aboard.

One of the rescue pilots was G. J. Geysendorfer, known in America as the pilot of the late Van Lear Black, Baltimore, Md., publisher. The other was Commander Sillevis. They planned to hop off at 6 a. m. for Rutba Wells, Iraq.

The missing ship was the American-built air liner, Universe, nicknamed the "Flying Hotel" when it won the handicap division of the Melbourne Derby. It was last reported forced down last night 450 miles from Rutba, after thunderstorms raged over the desert area.

Miami Plane Sets Record to Chicago

Rickenbacker Cuts Two Hours From Record.

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—Battling a severe snowstorm during the last 150 miles of its flight, an airliner navigated by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker landed at the Municipal Airport here at 4:42 p. m. today, completing the round trip inaugural flight of the new Chicago-Miami route.

Bearing 13 passengers, including Mayor E. G. Sewell of Miami, the plane came from the Southern city to Chicago in 7 hours and 40 minutes, including a half-hour stop at Atlanta.

Officials of the Eastern Air Lines said the flight was the fastest ever made by a transport plane between Chicago and Miami, slicing more than two hours from the ten-hour mark set by a mail plne of the same company two months ago.

District Prohibits Hunt Club Shows

Owners Ignore Order to Obey Fire Regulations.

District officials yesterday announced a ban on all further public exhibitions in the Riding and Hunt Club building at Twenty-second and P streets northwest until fire and safety regulations are complied with.

Announcement of the ban was made by Capt. Hugh P. Oram, chief of the District inspection services. Notice that the building did not comply with existing regulations was dispatched recently to the owners. No answer has been received, Capt. Oram said.

"Until the building is made to comply with the existing regulations governing places in which boxing or other public exhibitions are held, we shall permit no further exhibitions," Capt. Oram said.

Seal Sale Nets $35,054.

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (AP).—Henry F. Baker, treasurer of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, has announced returns of approximately $10,000 from the sale of Christmas seals in the 23 counties of the State. From Baltimore City, a total of $25,054 has been received.

from local territory onto Maryland territory, plus the presence of so many District policemen, caused pandemonium inside the white, three-story structure where millions have exchanged hands.

Seeing that members of the Vice Squad were grilling fleeing patrons on Thirty-fifth street, the District exit, employes of the gambling house cut a hole in the fence so that patrons could drive out on Bladensburg road, in Maryland territory.

As a result of this hole and the tearing down of the fence on District territory, the crowd that had gathered—estimated at 2,000—saw the almost legendary gambling den from all angles.

Patrons Arrive.

With sundown, however, several prospective patrons, ignorant of the excitement, drove up ready for a night of wagering.

"What's doing?"

"Nothing's doing. The boss said to close up—that's all."

A reporter naively asked the doorman if by boss he meant the Philadelphia syndicate that is reputed to have taken over Jimmy's.

Says It "Ain't So."

"That ain't so," he said. "There is only one boss around here and that is Mr. Jimmy La Fontaine."

As a result of yesterday's shifting of billboards, the southern border of Jimmy's big green fence is on an exact line with an historic marker that always catches the eye of the tourist.

This marker says:

"At this point, George Washington first entered Prince Georges County (as now constituted) August, 1751, and made his last exit therefrom, December 18, 1798."

The marker was put up by the Magruder Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

9,580 Pupils Attending Catholic Schools Here

There are 9,580 children attending Catholic schools in the District, the Rev. Dr. John I. Barrett, superintendent of education for the archdiocese of Baltimore, stated yesterday in a report to Archbishop Curley.

Of this number, Father Barrett stated, 4,892 are boys and 4,688 are girls. Washington this year, the report continued, led the archdiocese in increase in school enrollment, with 362 more children than in 1933.

The New Deal's three agencies for consumers joined yesterday to call the death of Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey, chairman of the Consumers Advisory Board, Tuesday "a loss to the cause of the consumers throughout the country."

She was "the moving force behind the New Deal program regarding the consumer," a statement from the Consumers Advisory Board of NRA, the Consumers Counsel of AAA, and the consumers division of the National Emergency Council said.

Board Reveals Rules to Guide Stock Listings

U. S. to Require Complete Data From Firms to Aid Investor.

any of them are found to be burdensome.

The commission specified that "information required must be given unless neither known nor available to the registrant without unreasonable effort or expense." In the latter case an explicit statement to such effect must be filed with the commission.

Calls for Brief Replies.

Warning also was given to registrant corporations that the commission was not interested in lengthy or purely technical statements, pointing out that "where 'brief' answers are required, brevity is essential." In another place where a "brief outline" is asked for various arrangements, such as "dividend rights," it is specified that the answer must not exceed 150 words for each item.

Mr. Kennedy pointed out the rules, which for the most part are technical, resulted from three months of continuous and intensive study by the commission and its staff, with the help and advice of financial and accounting officers of large industrial companies and representatives of the American Institute of Accounts, the American Association of Certified Public Accountants and the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants. Stock exchange officials also were consulted.

Date Effective Not Given.

The new requirements will take the place of the simple rules issued last September for the temporary registration of listed stocks. No date has been set when the permanent registrations must be filed, but they will become necessary not later than July 1.

While the rules issued yesterday apply only to listed securities, except those of corporations now supervised by a Federal agency, the requirements for corporations with unlisted securities to be promulgated later are expected to be similar.

In complying with the resignation requirements each corporation must answer 35 specific questions, some of which have a number of subdivisions. In addition detailed balance sheets and profit-and-loss statements, prepared according to a form, are required. If a corporation controls another, consolidated statements are required, as well as details as to interlocking arrangements and ownership.

Practices established by the requirements include disclosure of gross sales and costs (although the commission may consent to keep these items confidential); separation of earned surplus from capital or paid-in surplus; inclusion in the balance sheet of market value of securities as well as book value and exclusion of securities of the company or its affiliates from classification as marketable investments.

Advantages Are Cited.

"The outstanding advances which these requirements represent over reporting practices already in vogue," the Commission stated, "are first, a greater emphasis on the accounting steps involved in income determination, and, second, a more complete explanation of the changes which have occurred in balance sheet items during the year under report. It is in these matters that the information of greatest moment to investors is to be found.

"The requirements give less attention, on the other hand, to historical information concerning the company, since all companies affected are already listed on the exchanges and have been reporting consistently under existing exchange requirements. Nevertheless in addition to financial statements for the current year, leading questions are asked regarding the accounting practices of the company during the last 10 years, designed to bring out such major adjustments as may have occurred in principal balance sheet accounts."

Reorganization Of Mayflower Wins Approval

Bondholders Accept Plan Evolved in District Supreme Court.

Bearing the approval of both the first and second trust bondholders, a plan for the reorganization of the Mayflower Hotel has been worked out in the District Supreme Court and will be effected as soon as the necessary legal papers can be drawn.

The plan contemplates a change in ownership, with the first-trust noteholders being given bonds for 60 per cent of their present holdings, and capital stock for the 40 per cent balance. All of the capital stock will be owned by the first trust interests.

Second trust securities, there being an outstanding issue of about $2,400,000, will receive cash payments for their interest in the unmortgaged assets of the hotel. It was estimated that the secondary mortgage would eventually be paid off for approximately $115,000.

Joseph Low, attorney, representing 20 per cent of the first-trust note holders, and Paul E. Lesh, who controlled about 75 per cent of the issue of $7,500,000 first-trust notes, agreed upon the reorganization plan, thus practically assuring its adoption. The Mayflower company, present owners of the property, through its representative, Edmund M. Toland, announced in court it would not further contest adoption of the plan which will oust the company from ownership.

Jury Recesses In Dry Hearing

Harrisonburg, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—After hearing witnesses for 20 days, the Federal Court grand jury investigating an alleged conspiracy to violate national revenue laws in Franklin County recessed today until January 21, when it will return to draft its report.

Federal agents who have been working on the case for 14 months, say that unless there are developments over the holidays all of the witnesses have been heard. Most of the evidence this week has been intended to substantiate earlier testimony.

Among the witnesses today was T. W. Carper, of Rocky Mount, clerk of the Franklin County Circuit Court. The grand jurors heard only a half dozen witnesses today, none of whom spent much time in the courtroom. A dozen witnesses who had not been heard were excused after the grand jury decided to halt.

Middletown Grange Elects 1935 Officers

Master, Philip O. Coblentz; overseer, Maurice Ahalt; lecturer, Mrs. Orpha K. Holter; steward, Cyrus S. McBride; assistant steward, Charles Ifert; chaplain, the Rev. John S. Adam; treasurer, J. Vernon Coblentz; secretary, Miss Helen Shafer; gate keeper, Vernon Holter; Ceres, Mrs. Elsie Coblentz; Pomona, Mrs. Charles F. Main; Flora, Miss Katherine Holter; lady assistant steward, Miss Evelyn Holter; executive committee, Miss Nora M. Wise, S. Leslie Shafer, sr., and M. Frank Holter. The officers will be installed January 10.

Bricks in Fire House Found Made by Hand

Warrenton, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Alterations to the firehouse or municipal building here have brought to light the fact that the bricks in the old building, the exact age of which is not known, were made by hand in the brick yard of Bushrod Jolley, of Warrenton. Mr. Jolley had several brick yards in the county following the Civil War. The bricks are still in good condition.

The Warrenton Volunteer Fire Department is having the doorway of the firehouse enlarged and is making other improvements.

Virginia Woman Hurt Badly in Auto Crash

Richmond, Va., Dec. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Charlotte Williams, of Richmond, today was reported as seriously hurt in an automobile accident near here last night. Mrs. Mary Tate, of Harrisonburg, driver of the car, was less seriously injured.

Mrs. Williams received a lacerated scalp and a concussion of the brain, while Mrs. Tate, who suffered a lacerated forehead, was released from the hospital after treatment.

Chester A. Arthur, driver of the other car involved, received chest and nose injuries.

School Urged At Earlysville

County Board Asks PWA Grant of $15,000 to Aid in Project.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—A step toward the erection of a school building at Earlysville, to take the place of the one destroyed by fire last year, was taken by the county board of supervisors yesterday, when application was made to the Public Works Administration for a grant of $15,000 to aid in the construction of the building.

A. L. Bennett, superintendent of county schools, in presenting the matter to the board of supervisors, explained that it was wise to have the application in and approved, so that the grant may be used, if it is to the advantage of the taxpayers of the county to accept it when the building is erected.

The superintendent stated that a loan of $25,000 from the literary fund will be available. This must be repaid in annual installments of $1,667. This amount, plus interest amounting to $1,000, will have to be provided in the budget for next year, if the building is erected.

Dr. Bennett stressed the fact that a new building must be erected to replace the one at Stony Point, which "is now propped up to prevent its falling down," as well as additional classrooms at Greenwood, which, he said, now is crowded so badly that the health of the children is endangered.

Candy Sales Up $21,000,000.

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—The Nation's sweet-tooth grows apace—to the tune of $21,000,000 worth more than last year. Candy consumers paid $160,000,000 for sweets during the first ten months of 1934, a gain of 16 per cent over the same period of 1933.

Coast Guard Sets Amphibian Record

Stone put the big amphibian into a power-dive, straightening it out over the water at an altitude of about 250 feet where the camera clocking device would catch us. As I followed Stone on the controls I found that even though we hit nearly 200 miles an hour as we straightened from the dive to apopened up the big Wright Whirlopened up the big Wright whirlwind engine to its utmost capacity.

At the end of the run, after we had flown the race course, we utilized our high speed to climb to a higher altitude, the momentum we had attained carrying us up quickly several hundred feet.

Lands on Runway.

After the eighth run Stone turned the big ship to the Langley Field Airport, where the landing was made on the runway to prove to officials that the plane had amphibian characteristics, the take-off having been made from the water.

It was understood here tonight from officials who came to Langley to watch the speed trials that the Coast Guard will get nine of the type of planes in which Stone set the world's record, while the Navy will take 27 more.

Weather conditions were ideal for high-speed flying. The ocean was calm as a mill pond, a half dozen fishing smacks putting out from shore to fish and to watch the flights.

Stone, who won his first world's record, is one of the nation's veteran pilots. He first came into aviation prominence in May of 1919, when he flew the Atlantic Ocean in the NC-R, first airplane to make the crossing.

After we had finished I asked him why he had not opened his ship up all the way as long as we were setting a new world's record.

Girl Speed Flier Rushing Pup to Bereaved Texan

Charlotte, N. C., Dec. 20 (AP). Miss Katrina Canning, substituting for Santa Claus in an air race to Abilene, Tex., brought her plane down here this afternoon for gasoline and oil and hopped off again for Atlanta, Ga.

She had with her a champion Irish setter pup which she will deliver as a Christmas gift to C. W. Wilson, veteran Abilene hunter.

Col. Albanus Phillips, Cambridge sportsman and lifelong friend of the Texan, learning that Wilson was mourning the death of his favorite Irish setter, determined to send him another by air express. After experiencing difficulty in finding transportation that would get the dog there by Christmas, he decided to charter a plane.

Miss Lanning's other stops will be Birmingham, New Orleans, Dallas and Houston.

"I am a conservative," the 43-year-old flier replied. "Those last few miles an hour were my margin of safety. After all, we broke the record by 12 miles. That will give them something to shoot at. When they beat that, if they can, then we will open her up some time."

Boundary Body Enters Recess Over Holidays

Oral Clash Features Last Hearing of Commission Until January 3.

The Virginia-District of Columbia Boundary Commission adjourned hearings yesterday until January 3, following a spirited all-day session marked by an oral clash between William C. Gloth and Henry H. Glassie.

Gloth, formerly Commonwealth's attorney of Arlington County, represents Virginia on the three-man commission. Glassie, with G. A. Iverson, is a special assistant to the Attorney General assigned to prosecute the Federal Government's case in the latest phase of the century-old boundary dispute.

Gloth and Glassie came to grips when the former insisted that Federal counsel produce certain maps which had been examined but not entered as evidence. Thursday's hearing had been devoted entirely to the presentation of historic maps of the District by Government witnesses.

In Oral Tilt.

"I do not intend to try Virginia's case for it," Glassie shouted.

"I am not used to being spoken to in such a manner," retorted Commissioner Gloth.

The skirmish, precipitated by Virginia Attorney General Abram P. Staples' request that the maps be produced, was ended by a compromise of the opposing sides.

Principal witnesses yesterday were Charles D. Cook, instructor in civil engineering at George Washington University, and E. A. Schmitt, of the Army Engineer's office. Cook, who was the last witness to testify Wednesday, resumed the stand yesterday to submit further technical evidence. He was formerly a draftsman with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Ruling Favors D. C.

The commission's last ruling prior to holiday adjournment was construed as a minor victory for the United States. When Frank L. Ball, counsel for Arlington County, failed to get Glassie to concede that the Federal Government had completed its case, Chairman Charles H. Brough spoke up as follows:

"As a gentleman from Arkansas (he was formerly Governor of that State), I believe the gentleman from Virginia (Ball) and the gentleman from the District of Columbia (Glassie) will agree to do what is right and fair and gentlemanly."

'Roots of Crime' Struck, Van Meter, Group Sentenced

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 20 (AP).—For playing host to Homer van Meter at a northwoods resort in the Dillinger gangster's last two days, two men and two women were paid off with prison terms today.

Judge Robert C. Bell imposed the penalties in Federal court as another smash at what a high Government official has called "the roots of crime"—those who help make major criminal careers possible.

Sentenced for conspiring to hide Van Meter a few days before he was shot down by St. Paul police August 23 were Marie Conforti, the outlaw's companion on many of his forays, who pleaded guilty before the trial of three other alleged conspirators began here Monday—Thomas Kirwin, 54, St. Paul, leader of the group tried here; Mrs. Marie McCarthy, 35, St. Paul, and William A. Gray, also of St. Paul.

Kirwin, a former convict, was given the heaviest sentence—two years in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth and a fine of $10,000. Gray must serve a year and six months at the same institution and pay a fine of $5,000. The two women received identical sentences of a year and a day and a fine of $5,000 in addition to their imprisonment. Marie Conforti was brought here from Chicago to face the charges.

The four were convicted of conspiring to conceal Van Meter from the law by hiding him at a resort at Leech Lake, Cass County, in northern Minnesota.

H. G. Carter Seized As Parole Violator

Accused of Being Accessory After Melincov Slaying.

Henry George Carter, 34, who gave his address as the Annapolis Hotel, was arrested as a parole violator yesterday by Detective Sergt. Floyd Truscott at the request of the Department of Justice.

A charge of being "accessory after the fact" in connection with the slaying of Sam Melincov, who, with Bryan McMahon, was killed in a gamblers' feud at the Houston Hotel in September, is pending against Carter. He was out on bond.

Carter was paroled from Lewisburg (Pa.) Federal Penitentiary July 29. He was serving a sentence of two years and nine months for assaulting Government officers in Baltimore.

It Was The Truth.

Unpleasant memories that have been smouldering for ten years become once more poignant with the death of Masanao Hanihara, former Japanese Ambassador to the United States. To the great sorrow of this diplomat his name was intimately associated with the act of Congress excluding Japanese immigrants from this country. It would be a graceful tribute to his memory to rectify that blunder.

Mr. Hanihara is said to have died of a broken heart because of the strained relations that developed between the United States and Japan during his sojourn in Washington as ambassador. It was he who carried to the State Department a note predicting "grave consequences" in the wake of the proposed exclusion act. Doubtless that term was, as the ambassador insisted, a clumsy translation of the Japanese government's official viewpoint. But that did not obviate its unfortunate repercussions in Congress. Today it is revealed as a prophetic utterance, having been weighted with more truth than diplomacy.

One has only to glance at the break-up of the naval limitation treaties to realize that the exclusion act has been followed by "grave consequences." And unquestionably one of the reasons why Japan is now insistent upon naval equality is the slur upon that race which Congress ineptly sponsored. It is not hard to understand why many Japanese insist that they must have naval equality to vindicate their national honor and prestige.

The question was not, of course, one of opening our ports to every Japanese immigrant who wished to come here. Under the formula applied to most other countries Japan would have been entitled to a quota of about 200 immigrants per year, and by agreement this number could probably have been curtailed. With nothing tangible to gain we provocatively wounded the feelings of a proud and sensitive people.

Fear in Congress that Japan was trying to dictate a domestic policy to this country helps to explain, though it can not excuse, this unhappy discrimination. For the perpetuation of the insult, however, there does not seem to be even an explanation. Congress has delayed repeal of this act until the effects of its neglect have seriously recoiled upon international stability. The grief with which Mr. Hanihara was stricken because of this bungling incident ought to be more keenly felt by the American legislators of 1924 who are still able to view their handiwork.

The Forgotten Pedestrian.

Because of the appalling total of traffic fatalities this year, any move to curb accidents is welcome. District authorities rightly feel that some constructive action is imperative. They have done well to adopt a broad program instead of trying to find a single panacea. There is a question, however, as to whether their drive is aimed at the chief source of serious accidents.

Most of the new orders issued by Commissioner Hazen are designed to penalize negligent motorists. Unquestionably a general tightening up of traffic law enforcement will have a salutary effect, although there is always danger, when a campaign of this kind is undertaken, that arrests for petty violations will be greatly increased without making the streets noticeably safer. For example, if the police tried rigidly to enforce the 22-mile speed limit, most of the careful drivers in Washington would be lined up in traffic court. Campaigns of the sort now undertaken are chiefly valuable when they penalize the persistently reckless driver who is a real menace to the public.

The principal deficiency of Mr. Hazen's program does not lie in its application to the motorist, but in its lack of any control over the pedestrian. According to the traffic director's report for the fiscal year 1934, 75 per cent of the people killed in street accidents were pedestrians. Moreover, 68 per cent of these victims lost their lives because of their own carelessness. More than half of them were struck while jay-walking; 21 per cent were playing in the street; 11 per cent stepped into the path of a vehicle from behind a parked car; 10 per cent were intoxicated, and 7 per cent disregarded traffic signals. Others not included in these groups are held to have been partially responsible for their own deaths.

It is difficult to see how more rigorous enforcement of traffic rules against motorists is going to affect substantially this chief source of fatalities. Of course, the control of pedestrians is not an easy task. Doubtless it would be impractical outside of the congested areas. But the awareness of danger that would be developed by such control downtown would make people more cautious everywhere.

A city with as much traffic as Washington can not become a model of safety unless strict rules are imposed upon pedestrians as well as motorists. And such rules must take into consideration the menace of cruising taxicabs, drifting around corners in a way which often makes it impossible for pedestrians to cross on the green light.

The Road To Compromise.

Hopes that the Administration and the power interests would cooperate in working out a regulatory program for the industry have been somewhat dashed by recent developments. And the acrimony which has been injected into the interchanges between Government officials and representatives of the utilities is far from conducive to a rational solution of existing problems.

The utilities certainly have not strengthened their position in the eyes of the public by insisting upon a speedy test of the constitutionality of Federal power projects, like the T. V. A. Such a proceeding gives rise to a suspicion that the companies are primarily concerned to secure immunity from governmental interference, instead of being anxious to reform properly criticised practices. The case for reasonable regulation is not helped by tactics of this sort. Furthermore, it does not seem wise for representatives of the private power companies to spend much time elaborating familiar arguments and propaganda in defense of their practices.

The facts are already matters of record and the immediate question at issue concerns the proper remedies for abuses that are known to exist, and the means for preventing their recurrence. Impartial consideration of such matters is not encouraged in an atmosphere of mutual hostility and suspicion such as now prevails. If electric power rates are too high, they can be reduced in more than one way. It should not be necessary, for example, to employ PWA funds to construct a power plant for New York City merely to lower present charges if they are, as alleged, exorbitant.

In any municipality or any region adequately supplied with power facilities, it is socially wasteful to create superfluous equipment merely because an existing company is overcharging. It is, indeed, an ironical reflection upon governmental efficiency to assume that abuses can not be corrected except by permitting the Government itself to engage in competition with private exploiters.

In developing and supplementing existing power facilities, there is no inescapable conflict between public and private interests. Moreover, in eliminating evils due to overcapitalization and excess profits, it is not necessary to hold the threat of governmental competition over private industry. Terroristic methods of this sort provide no test of the relative efficiency of public and private ownership, nor do they solve the regulatory problems that must be faced.

With proper governmental protection for consumers, the future of the power industry may safely be left to take care of itself. The vested rights of the owners of power company securities would not be injured by a fair, nonsubsidized, Government exploitation and control of power. On the other hand, consumer rights can be fully protected by regulatory laws and regulations without resort to Government "yardsticks," if legislatures and regulatory authorities function efficiently.

The basis for compromise exists and a cooperative solution of the country's power problems is possible. It is only necessary that both sides should be really concerned to see that the public is served at fair costs, under whatever form of ownership is best adapted to the requirements of the situation and the wishes of the people.

Impeachment Of Judge Lynch.

Two dead, half-a-dozen wounded and the destruction of a $150,000 courthouse. Such was the price paid for the prevention of a lynching in Shelbyville, Tenn. That price, if it helps to stop this cowardly and barbaric practice, is not necessarily exorbitant.

National Guardsmen successfully whisked away a Negro accused of attacking a young white girl and stood their ground when a rapacious mob, robbed of its prey, rushed the courthouse. Tear gas not availing, bayonets and finally bullets were called into action with the above horrible results. Late reports indicate that the blood-letting has greatly calmed the temper of the community.

The sordid episode again calls attention to the sentiments expressed by the organization of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching, which claims to represent a membership of a million. That association will be remembered as the group which last year declared that lynchers have no commission to protect the virtue and honor of its members, thereby repudiating the traditional plea of extenuation and condemning its hypocrisy.

These women, who may be taken as representative of the finest citizenry of the South, are on record as condemning the lack of equal educational opportunity for Negroes and urging action to eliminate constant inter-racial friction. Lynching, the association describes as "the logical result" of racial oppression, coupled with the exploitation and intimidation of a weaker element for economic gain.

Whether or not such valid generalizations apply to the Shelbyville case is not reported. It may be assumed they were at least contributory. The important point is that 500 temporarily deranged men were there prevented from taking the law into their own savage hands. The impeachment of Judge Lynch and the maintenance of constitutional procedure, at whatever cost to rioters, is a welcome contrast to the customary course of lynchings.

Test Of NRA.

Despite bitter complaints and deserved criticism of certain aspects of the recovery legislation, the great majority of business men seem to favor some kind of legalized organization of competitive industries along the lines contemplated by NRA.

The latest evidence to that effect is provided by the report of the conference on business recovery which has been in session at White Sulphur. The conference recommends enactment of new emergency legislation for the year following expiration of the present act. Due deference was paid to the presence of doubters by urging postponement of a decision regarding the form to be taken by permanent legislation, but it seems plain from the subsequent statement that many of those present were outlining a program which they considered a proper basis for a permanent plan.

Particularly arresting is the fact that the industrialists were prepared to admit the need for an external administrative agency to pass upon codes. They asked for much greater latitude in the formulation of such codes, recommending that their adoption and continuance be made contingent upon voluntary action by the industries concerned. But this request would not greatly restrict the scope of activities because it is fairly safe to conclude that few industries that can be effectively organized would choose to operate without the protection of codes of fair practice. That would be especially the case if provisions as to minimum rates of wages and maximum hours of labor are made applicable to all industries, whether codified or not.

The members of the conference did not even propose that the labor and collective bargaining provisions of the recovery act should be separately administered, although such a segregation would have many advantages. They were, however, careful to avoid attempts at a precise definition of section 7(a), whose retention they appear to favor in its present form. While the conference was evidently convinced that the small intrastate industries should be excluded from consideration, its suggestion that codes be applicable only to businesses engaged in, or affecting, interstate commerce would embrace a gigantic field of activity. Furthermore, the report asks that approved codes of fair competition should be binding upon all members of an industry. It also calls for mandatory assessments of members subject to administrative approval, unless a voluntary system of financing is in force.

In brief, the recommendations look toward reenactment of the main provisions of the recovery legislation in so far as they have proved to be practicable, with supervision by governmental authorities somewhat modified. That is very good evidence that the assumed preference of business men for the principles of laissez faire has in fact been superseded by reliance upon a large measure of control over competitive practices, under the guidance and supervision of the state.

Postprandial Charity.

With New York already writhing in a welter of nettlesome sales taxes, the Board of Aldermen finds the yield too low and proposes to extend the levy to apply to restaurant checks of $1 or more per person.

Regardless of the merits of the tax in general or the restaurant assessment in particular, there appears to be a possible silver lining in the clouds which mar the fiscal serenity of the metropolis. We have in mind the matter of tips.

Since the war, in many parts of Europe the practice of tipping has been eliminated by the simple device of adding a 10 per cent surcharge to all restaurant bills. By this extra payment employes' wages are placed on a comparatively secure basis.

Meanwhile in this country it is assumed that men and women can keep their self-respect while wheedling gratuities from their patrons. Not only does a long-suffering public endure tipping as a necessary evil, but the NRA even seems to regard it as inevitable, judging by the fact that minimum wages of service employes have been declared approximately 25 per cent lower than those set for nonservice employes.

New York City has now an excellent opportunity to change this. Let the Society of Restaurants agree to levy a surcharge on all imposing checks from which the necessary tax could be extracted, the remainder being applied to the wages of waiters and waitresses. Such a move would not only relieve the confusion of every diner, but would do much to free thousands from the necessity of depending for their livelihoods on the existing system of fumbling, postprandial charity.

Thespian Memories.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In most American cities, among persons with fads or hobbies are some who have collected old theatrical photos. This has been my hobby for the past 30 years, and I have what is considered one of the most complete collections, in private hands, in New York City. I would like to get in touch with anyone in Washington who has old theatrical photos, to compare notes and perhaps exchange specimens. I believe in former years all the great stars acted in Washington, and the Capital is the home town of various notables, including Billie Burke. Ruth Chatterton first acted in Washington.

I have old photos of Booth, Barrett, Lester Wallack, Joseph Jefferson, Charlotte Cushman, Mme. Modjeska, E. L. Davenport, etc., and I am always seeking additional photos of Lotta Crabtree, Kate Claxton, Clara Morris, Corinne, Adelaide Neilson, Christine Nilsson, Fanny Davenport, Mrs. Langtry, Mrs. Chanfrau, Mary Anderson, Ada Rehan, Patti, Maggie Mitchell, and Laura Keane (who was acting at Ford's Theater when President Lincoln was assassinated there). I am also always seeking additional photos of Herbert Kelcey, Harry Woodruff, Hamilton Revelle, P. T. Barnum, Buffalo Bill, Tom Thumb, etc., and stage stars down to Elsie Ferguson, Hattie Williams, Edna May, Lulu Glaser, Pauline Frederick, etc. And such old-time pugilists as John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett, Tom Sharkey, Terry McGovern, Peter Jackson, Bob Fitzsimmons, etc. What memories these old names evoke!

Only cabinet-size photos, mounted on pasteboard, interest me. Not the larger unmounted size that gained favor in later years, and not prints, engravings, books, magazines or programs, such as other collectors may desire. The collection is in my home, 150 East Thirty-ninth street, and I can see visitors only by appointment, as I have not been well for months past, slowly recovering from a nervous breakdown. Sometimes strangers, hearing of my hobby, call at my home and are disappointed when I can not receive them.

Unlike various other "old-timers," I do not scoff at the movies. Though I have applauded Olga Nethersole, Mrs. Leslie Carter, Julia Arthur, and Julia Marlowe, I now enjoy the screen performances of Claudette Colbert, Kay Francis, Joan Crawford, and Myrna Loy.

HAROLD SETON.

Self-Support.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since everyone agrees that the "relief" plan of supporting thousands of people indefinitely in idleness in this high-rent town is putting a very heavy burden, indeed, on the taxpayers, why, then, is not some action taken toward putting these unemployed in a position to support themselves?

For a very small amount of money advanced at this time, families could be put on a piece of ground where their own labor would produce their shelter and grow their food. Less than the price of a year's "relief," advanced in a lump sum, would provide shelter and food permanently, and the original investment, secured by land value, would be repaid over a few years' time.

Other communities are providing this constructive assistance for their unemployed—why not Washington? Hundreds of families are anxious for this opportunity. B.
Washington, Dec. 19.

Hold-Ups.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What is the matter with the police force of Washington? Have they or it outlived their usefulness or are they just "laying down on the job?" It is said that there is more crime of all description—murder, theft, hold-ups—day and night here than in any city of similar size in the United States. It has come to such a state of affairs that it isn't safe for a man or woman—especially a woman—to walk on the streets alone at night. They are liable to be assaulted or robbed before they can get back home.

It is the writer's opinion that if the police force would put in more time trying to catch and punish the really dangerous crooks, murderers, thieves, pickpockets, hold-up men, etc., and waste less time on the "numbers racketeers," horse-race fiends, etc., they would accomplish more real good for the benefit of the residents of Washington and vicinity.

It is said that there have been eight or ten murders committed in the City of Washington during the past ten years and that the culprits who committed the aforesaid murders are still at large. Perhaps when Mr. Hoover, of the Department of Justice, gets through cleaning up the Dillinger gang, he might be persuaded to lend some of his "go-getters" to Maj. Brown and they would show him how to clean up the crooked gang that is and has been terrorizing the citizens of Washington during the past three or four years.

S. MAGRUDER SIMPSON.

Sundry Alarms.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In scrapping the Naval Treaty, Japan can not see that her elevation to equality with England and the United States will actually give her predominance in the Pacific Ocean. Under her terms we could be on equality with Japan only by retaining every ship we own in the Pacific Ocean. If we divided our fleet into several units she would always be more powerful than the United States because of her Pacific Ocean sphere of influence.

The Japanese have the war complex and, among their soldiers, some wild idea of world dominance. The only way to cure them is to outbuild them. Any temporizing is the height of folly. They have set up a puppet state and in a short time you'll see them building warships for Manchukuo. We must fortify our possessions or deliver them over to the ambitious Japanese. EUGENE HUDGINS.
Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 19.

The Jobless.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The relief authorities have developed a peculiar situation this year. Last December at this time, there were many projects being opened in Washington whereby the jobless and needy had an opportunity to make a little Christmas money a few days before the holidays. This year there is nothing in view for those without jobs.

An elaborate set of examinations was given last May by the Labor Department, whereby the jobless situation was to be obliterated by scientific planning. Many of us out of work took the opportunity to study for the examinations at considerable investment of time and some expense.

The only thing that seemed to eventuate from those examinations was a raise of salaries in June (when living expenses were low) for those very fortunate people who already held jobs as managers and interviewers. Many of these lucky people have husbands employed in the Government or elsewhere. In some instances, several members of the same family have never known one day of unemployment. Scientific planning seems to have accomplished little.

ONE OF THE JOBLESS.
Washington, Dec. 15.

The Cat's Smile.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To conceive of a grinning Cheshire cat slowly disappearing, until there was nothing left but the grin, must have taxed the imagination of even a Lewis Carroll. In this modern "Blunderland" of ours, however, our imagination is subjected to an even more severe test, when we are told that our disappearing dollars—28,000,000,000 having already vanished—will leave the grin of prosperity upon the national countenance. In other words, to believe that any nation can restore prosperity and happiness to its people through prodigious borrowing and waste is almost inconceivable to conservative, thinking people.

Now Mr. Ickes comes forward with a gorgeous plan to spend $100,000,000,000 over a period of years. How this stupendous sum will be paid has not been revealed, but a lot of us are of the opinion that the already heavily assessed taxpayers will be forced to shoulder the colossal burden.

As an extra straw broke the back of an already heavily burdened camel, it does not require much vision to picture Uncle Sam dropping in his tracks, especially if billions of extra borrowed dollars are saddled to his shoulders.

E. K. G.
Washington, Dec. 18.

After Hitch-Hikers.

An Associated Press survey reveals that the legislatures of many States are determined that the thumbs of hitch-hikers be given a rest if the wayfarers on the roads of the country are to stay out of trouble.

Virginia's new laws are the most stringent of all. In that State the penalty for thumbing a ride is 30 days in jail or a $50 fine or both. There are stringent regulations in Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and the District of Columbia. In Wisconsin, a State official was slain by a hitch-hiker in 1931, and that State now punishes the thumbing of a ride as a misdemeanor. Minnesota, Utah, Kansas and Montana have anti-thumbing laws.

Legislation may go far in discouraging the hitch-hikers, but the strongest influence is believed to be the impressions made upon drivers of automobiles by crimes perpetrated against motorists. Today the wise motorist passes the hitch-hiker. In earlier years few pedestrians who sought rides were ignored. Passing the hitch-hiker today is considered by the motorist as a necessary safety measure.

The Post Impressionist

"The Inevitable Conflict."

Post Office, Friday.

UPTON SINCLAIR hasn't been in the news since that election, last month, which left him, after two attempts, still outside of the California Governorship. This is almost a record of silence—for him.

What's Upton up to?

For our part, we hope he's writing the second novel of his trilogy on the Civil War. It is really about time he did write it. He stopped the first volume—with a tantalizing and never thereafter explained "To Be Continued" at its inconclusive tail—30 years ago.

* * *

You didn't know about it? Hardly anybody does—now., Few did then. It's long since out of print. But it was published in 1904, when Upton was 26 years old.

We think that, though it wasn't great as a novel, it was great as literature of another sort, being the best attempt at a novel yet made to portray the Civil War on a really large canvas. It is far better than its successor, "The Jungle," whereon its author's popular reputation rests. It was the fifth of his—so far—47 books.

And it is the best of them.

* * *

There probably was a pretended hero—but he didn't matter. He probably had a heroine—but neither did she. We've forgotten them. The real hero and heroine were several generations of a family. The real scene was the whole U. S. A. between Colonial Times and Bull Run—and those, as Sinclair presented them, we'll never forget. Through them, he made the approaches to the Civil War entirely intelligible and entirely alive. He did them, from the point of view of their inevitable approach to the inevitable conflict, in a manner which—

Well, to compare "Manassas" to "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse"—a World War novel that would never have been written had not Zola first written about the Franco-Prussian War—is like comparing Wagner's "Tristram" with Matthew Arnold's . . .

* * *

The brotherhood of literature and life is nowhere more strikingly visible than in the process through which all great historical events must pass before they attain their full significance. To the esthetic sense of every really civilized man—however little in evidence that sense may usually be—the event assumes finality only when it has gained a worthy literary envisagement. You may or may not believe that

"Ages of heroes fought and fell
That Homer in the end might tell;"

but we are all of us fairly certain that even the Isles of Greece would have cared very little, a century later, about the ten years' siege, had not the Blind Man of the Seven Cities been moved to sing the wrath of Achilles, son of Peleus.

It is this feeling of suspended climax—or, at all events, of incompleteness—which is responsible for the frequent iteration of the riddle: When are we going to have the great novel of the Civil War? The years pass, and the many try their hands. Steadily the glorious company of the apostles of the Union disappears. Steadily the noble army of martyrs of the Confederacy vanishes. And meanwhile, though men write good fiction about a thousand other things, first-rate fiction of the Civil War remains unwritten.

The common explanation of this phenomenon, and of the same phenomenon in regard to the Revolution, is that the artist requires a longer perspective than, in these instances, has yet been attained. The date of the Trojan War, it is argued, was 1335 B. C.—according to Clemens, 1148—whereas Prof. Mahaffy is certain that Homer's date was not earlier than 800 or 700.

But here the fallacy is so apparent as to make one wonder why it was ever adopted. Centuries were necessary for the building of a myth, whereas our Revolution and the Civil War were hard facts. Waterloo was fought in 1815, yet "Les Miserables" was published in 1862. After the Crimean War, Russia had not long to wait for Tolstoy's masterpiece—nor did France have long to attend for "Le Debacle."

* * *

Well, even if "Manassas" wasn't written by a Hugo, a Tolstoi or a Zola, we still recall it as a chef d'oeuvre insofar as it untangles that mass of tangled threads which, from this country's start until shortly after the middle of its first century, drew it step by step up to and over the brink of civil war.

The great novel of our great conflict may, indeed, never appear; but the task of making that period vivid and real to the reader of subsequent generations, was accomplished up to the end of the first battle by Upton Sinclair.

* * *

Isn't it possible that here, after all, is merely a case of long suspended animation? Isn't it possible that now Upton Sinclair will leave politics and return to a love of his youth?

The Post Impressionist sincerely hopes so. We are very fond of Upton. But we would far rather read the two concluding volumes of that trilogy than peruse his inaugural address as Governor of California.

Soviet Peace Needs Produce Odd Allies

Forced To Join Anti-Revisionists In Hope Of Staving Off World Conflict.

This is the first of two articles treating of the political and cultural developments of Russia written by Mr. Grattan for The Post. The second will be published tomorrow.

By C. Hartley Grattan.

THE notion that the Russians are preternaturally solemn folk fanatically bent on destroying not only the major but also the minor arrangements of what we grandiloquently call civilization—really meaning bourgeois capitalistic civilization—has been receiving some rude shocks lately. Critics of all kinds are rejoicing or complaining that the Third International is dead and that the prospects of a world revolution are, so far as the Russian encouragement is concerned, nil.

And while the Russians emphatically deny that they have abandoned international communism to play the sedulous ape to bourgeois nationalism, the fact remains that as Soviet Russia waxes strong and draws more and more close to the capitalistic governments of the west, the Communist parties in those countries are more and more purely local phenomena. For Russian encouragement has been substituted the pressure of events: the continuing crisis and the prospect of war. The Soviet Union is a point of reference for them, but it is no longer their sole excuse for being or even their chief support.

The international note is dying down all along the line. The nationalistic outlook of the Soviets finds expression more concretely and measurably in the kind of diplomacy indulged in than anywhere else. At the present time one of the outstanding diplomats of the world is Litvinov. His words carry enormous weight whatever the occasion of their utterance. In his hands is power which bourgeois diplomatists eagerly seek to exploit to their advantage. It becomes available when they offer something to his advantage. But whichever way it really works in specific instances, it is perfectly plain that the ties between the Communists and the theoretically hostile countries of the West are being multiplied. The Soviet vested interest in the status quo increases in importance day by day.

The impassioned drive for peace to which the Russians have dedicated themselves springs in large measure from the ideology of which they are the chief exponents: Marxism. It is also and in the present connection, more importantly, a necessity which arises inexorably from their national situation. A sizable war into which they might conceivably be drawn would be a disaster of the first order, particularly if by some unlucky chance they became involved on two fronts. It is imaginable that while engaged by Japan in the East, the opportunity might be taken further to weaken them by an attack in the West, say under German-Polish leadership or some other.

TO OBVIATE this difficulty, the prospect of which they keep in the foreground of their minds, the Russians have shown a strong disposition to take over and adapt the characteristic diplomatic pacts and other paper arrangements of traditional European diplomacy. The idea seems to be that the necessity of playing for time to strengthen the internal economy—Stalin's program of "socialism in one country"—justifies all kinds of accommodations with bourgeois governments. They have found nonaggression treaties particularly useful and have signed them with practically all of the countries bordering on the Soviet Union. Recognizing, however, the insufficiency of the protection thus afforded, they have launched themselves on the larger sea of European politics with a most curious and disturbing result.

Long the most forthright advocates of total, partial, any kind of disarmament, the Soviet government has lately taken steps which imply that with the failure of the disarmament movement, it is prepared to play the game of the dominant powers of Europe and reinforce the oppressive arrangements which all students agree are basic in any explanation of European unrest in the international sphere.

The Versailles Treaty was quickly recognized to be a punitive instrument and the countries of Europe ranged themselves into two groups: the revisionist group, which aimed to bring about a change either by peaceful negotiation or, as a last resort, by war; and the anti-revisionist group which proposed to maintain the status quo. Publicists more interested in justice than in the writing of mere commentary on "what is" have long argued that no peace can come to Europe until the treaty—and the confirmatory subtreaties growing out of it—is revised. This movement in public opinion is in a large measure responsible for the impassioned debate over the origins of the World War, the intensive study and denunciation of the Versailles Treaty and its consequences, and the sympathetic attitude taken toward most of the revisionist governments.

TO be sure there has been fairly constant criticism of the violence, verbal and in action, of some of the revisionist countries, Italy, Hungary and Bulgaria, for example, but it has been reckoned forgiveable violence and more or less "explained away." The path of conciliation and negotiation followed by the German Weimar Republic received constant applause and support.

On the other hand, the anti-revisionists led by France and including Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia, have been subjected to a constant barrage of criticism, since they have been reckoned to stand in the way of a peaceful solution of Europe's difficulties. Moreover, the French are alleged to have captured the League of Nations and made it into an organization for the preservation of the status quo, an organ to legitimatize oppression.

In spite of the wrangling, the criticisms, the shifts and turns of power, the anti-revisionists have remained the top dogs of Europe since 1919. It is the revisionist states which have suffered the consequences, for it is they which have fallen into fascism. The anti-revisionist attitude is argued to be the chief political causes in the international sphere explaining the rise of fascism. It is argued to be in a very considerable part an emotional kick-back against the repressive features of the peace treaties.

The Russians have come on the scene just precisely at the moment when the Central European pot is boiling most furiously. What line have they taken? Superficial reasoners might expect them to look with intense suspicion on the anti-revisionists, the winners in the imperialist grab at Versailles, and to sympathize with the victims of the grab. Alas for simplicity! The Russians are seeking to preserve the peace and are willing to take advantage of any situation which promises to stave off war even temporarily.

• • • •

CAREFUL evaluation of the present European set-up makes it plain that strengthening the hands of the revisionists, now that all hope of a peaceful, negotiated adjustment has passed, would simply increase the likelihood of immediate war. Moreover, having stayed out of Europe until the revisionists have been driven to the extremely anti-Communist position of fascism, the possibility of cooperation between the Russians and the revisionists has become a thing of the past. They have been forced, therefore, to join with the oppressors of Europe, the antirevisionists: they have joined the French and play much the same role as the Czar's government played in the balance of power of 1914.

Fascists, domestic and international, are far worse menaces to Communism than triumphant imperialist robbers. It is an old bromide that politics makes strange bed fellows, but it hardly seems likely that anyone ever expected the Soviet diplomatists to get into bed with one set of "enemies of the proletariat" to humiliate another set.

To complete the amazing picture, the Russians have now been introduced into the League of Nations so vigorously and forthrightly denounced by the Soviet publicists in times past. Without the slightest theoretical desire to preserve the present order of Europe, domestically or internationally, the Russians have become a major power in its actual preservation.

Should they not be encouraging rebellion against oppression in the hope that out of the shambles of war, Communism will triumph among the revisionists and the anti-revisionists alike? Have they not gone soft, become fearful of risks, lost their pristine vigor and proved to be just about like all other established nations in this wicked world? Have they abandoned their picturesque and dangerous phase, the program of world revolution, to the exiled Trotsky and his Fourth International?

Turkey Agrees to Pay $1,300,000 War Claims

Istanbul, Turkey, Dec. 20 (AP).—Agreement for payment of $1,300,000 to American citizens in settlement of their claims against Turkey for property and business damaged in the World War was signed today by representatives of both nations.

Claims against Turkey for property damage incurred during the war were presented by 405 American citizens. The claims were examined by a mixed commission on which Fred K. Neilsen and John W. Connelly were the American representatives.

Theis Resigns Post As Farm Executive

Frank A. Theis, chief of the Farm Administration's grain processing section, resigned yesterday to return to his former position with a Kansas City, Mo., grain firm, the Associated Press says.

A. J. S. Weaver, associated director of program planning and former chief of the sugar section, was appointed to the vacancy.

Dictatorship And Demagoguery.

THE business men up from White Sulphur Springs yesterday to give the President their well-considered views if he had been thoughtful enough to receive them, are in favor of the dole instead of made work because the dole is cheaper. It would not be at all surprising if their preference isn't also prompted by the present use to which the made work is being put. It is being used, as Congress never contemplated, to bend the power companies to the President's wishes. If need be, and unless the President is bluffing, it will be used to put them out of business.

It so happens that there are utility regulatory agencies scattered all over this country. It is their business to pass upon the rates charged by the utilities, to pass upon their service and, in general, to keep them under effective control.

• • • •

Of course, it has been the contention of the proponents of Government ownership that these various bodies are either inefficient or crooked, that the power companies have had no trouble in controlling them and the various State legislatures. Somehow it is thought that if these officials are transferred to the wholesome atmosphere of Washington they will immediately become quite efficient and honest and resistant to the blandishments of the power moguls.

Then there are also the holding companies which are not subject to State control and which we have always understood were the real dirty workers at the switch.

Indeed, Mr. Roosevelt says even now it is they who are the malefactors, that the operating companies themselves are all right. It had been assumed before this outbreak of Administration viciousness that the next Congress without much ado would pass legislation lopping the holding companies off, a very easy matter in these days and times.

• • • •

But this is not what we see. We see, instead, Mr. Roosevelt lashing out at the operating companies to make them reduce rates. The regulatory agencies have nothing to say about it. In the case of New York City, Mr. Roosevelt and Mayor LaGuardia have suddenly constituted themselves as the regulatory agency. Mr. LaGuardia says the rates are too high and Mr. Roosevelt, overhearing him, so to speak, tells him to come down to Washington and he will give him enough money to build a municipal plant. Not only will he do this for the New York Mayor, but he will do it for any other mayor who thinks the rates are too high, and the President agrees with him. The chances are that he will agree in every instance.

There is no direct authority for the President to do any of these things. But Congress thought that a way to bring about recovery was to set up a public works building fund of more than three billion dollars. This would, it was thought, provide direct work for the unemployed and also a lot of indirect work through the boosting of business in the industries supplying the material.

Mr. Roosevelt is to use the money, though, to put the power companies out of business if they do not meet his terms. It ceases then to be a "building" fund.

It would be pretty hard to convince the power owners under the circumstances that we are not being governed by a dictatorship. To the crowd, of course, it is the functioning of a glorious democracy. Lambasting of the power companies has been a popular political endeavor ever since Hector was a pup.

If Mr. Roosevelt carries through with this phase of the more abundant life our electricity bills will be reduced every bit of $1 a month. So you see how the so-called made-work form of relief can be diverted not only to dictatorship but the worst of demagoguery.

And, of course, anyone who thinks this way is either in the pay of the power trust or a subversive element.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall.

IF you were brought up on a "white Christmas" and find little of that anticipatory tingle in this mild weather, here's a book to prime you with all the Yuletide spirit you could wish.

In "The Story of Christmas" (Macmillan, $3) Canon R. J. Campbell, of Chichester Cathedral, England, touches gracefully upon every side of the old story and tradition. He begins with Scripture; tells us of tributary feasts from other religions; and chats on the pagan survivals (fir tree; Lord of Misrule; even the boar's head, which the old Celts ate as a symbol of conquering evil). Here are the origins of all Christmas games and sports from the ancient "Tilting of the Quintain" to the old mummers' plays and "Wait-singing." Santa Claus and the child festival have their fully story. Tales of modern Christmases in many odd places (including Christmas in the trenches) are told, and the canon tops it all off with the text of several nativity plays and a splendid section on Christmas carols and poems.

Add the fact that eight of the finest "Nativities" painted by old masters are reproduced, and we have a book which would make the best of Christmas remembrances for youngsters and grandmas alike.

• • • •

Julia Peterkin writes a heart-warming little description of Yuletide in the South—"A Plantation Christmas" (Houghton Mifflin, 75c). It's a slim volume, handsome and cheery as a Christmas card—as which it could well serve for the one person on your list you forgot and didn't mean to. Even the preparations for the great day have their poetry: "The shoats are growing fatter each day on the sweet acorns falling from the live-oak trees." Doesn't that touch it?

• • • •

Here are a few items on the "Just the Thing" shelf, which will serve as last-minute reminders.

For the "difficult" person who loves modern art but "has everything," this book would be a joy. Strictly, "Modern Works of Art" (Museum of Modern Art—W. W. Norton, $3.50) is a catalog of the fifth anniversary exhibition now at the Museum. But the notes on modern painting, by Alfred H. Barr, jr.; on modern architecture, by Philip Johnson, the brief biographies of the artists, and especially the fine abundance of the plates, all combine to make it a valuable book in its own right, apart from the exhibition.

Ryder, Cezanne, Demuth, Klee, Maillol, Despiau, Brancusi, Le Corbusier and Gropius, and many more, are all represented in their various arts by illustrations which are almost perfect. As a matter of fact, you probably won't want to give it away.

• • • •

That old word, "unusual," is pretty well worn by now, but it should have been saved for "Fun and Flutes" (U. of Chicago Press, $1.50) by David Dushkin. Here, in a trim, slim little volume, is a brief history of flute playing, a series of plain directions for making your own flute, a course of the essentials in playing it, and several pages of simple flute music (printed in black for the piano and blue-green for the flute part).

It looks like the "open sesame" into a world of pure delight, and though it's meant for 12-year-old boys, I'd try it on any middle-aged man who's always wanted to pipe his own music but who's never got around to it.

For the Army officer, here's a little book of poems centering around West Point—"The Crow's Nest" (W. F. Roberts Co., Washington), by Lieut. Col. Frank W. Halliday, J. A. G. D. Col. Halliday, now stationed in town, was for five years professor of law at the Point. In these pages he catches well many an aspect of military life which will please the service. Here is one:

"The nervous shadows on the river shine.
The morning sun moves from a yesterday;
Cadets stand shivering in a steady line.
What are the orders for the breaking day?

"The dawn has cleared the skies from dusky night,
The leaves of oak and elm impatient shake;

• • • •

Here are tales of sea service, European service, command in Guam, and recollections of days at the Academy, sprinkled with names which will be familiar to the Navy and told with a quiet, reminiscent chuckle. Seasickness in the Gulf of Alaska; drinking bouts with Russian naval officers; hazing at the Academy; irreverent anecdotes of senatorial junkets—it all makes good wardroom chat.

The Once-Over

Christmas Letter to a Little Boy.

Dear Basil: I think we might have avoided many arguments this past week if you had been informed sooner that visiting Santa Claus is a tradition in our family and anything that is traditional, my child, we must continue, whether we like it or not. It all began four years ago. In spite of the fact that your I. Q. is so high, I don't expect you to remember as far back as when you were 2 years old. However, when you were 2 your father and I decided you would just love to see Santa Claus. We found we were mistaken. You hated Santa Claus. You screamed at him, and we were advised by the managers of the store to take you home.

• • • •

The next year papa thought we ought to try again, so we did. You didn't seem to care about Santa this way or that, but you did bring home a find cold. The next year you were 4. (I needn't have mentioned this to a child of your intelligence.) Anyhow, papa suggested that I take you downtown to his office again that year and we'd all go off to see Santa.

• • • •

Don't you remember the beautiful fire engine papa wound up so well that it ran and ran and ran until it snapped? How we all enjoyed that!

• • • •

Yes, darling, you must admit you had a grand time at Santa's last year. For that matter, you had a fine time there every year, and yet this year you refuse to go!

• • • •

You say you were poked in the eye by a fat man in the crowd, and it was hot and stuffy and you hated it. But, darling, don't forget that your dear papa travels in the crowded cars and gets poked in the eye by fat men every day—all for you. And don't you think your dear papa hates to work in his hot, stuffy office every day? Of course, he does, but he wants to earn money so that you can have a nice house to live in and good food to eat. When he tries so hard to make you happy, can't you do a little thing like visiting Santa Claus for your dear papa?

• • • •

How would papa look, a big, grown-up man, if he were to go alone to visit Santa and his toys? Why, if any of your little friends were to see him there without you they'd think your papa childish, and how would you feel then?

So, dear, be a good little boy and come with me to papa's office so that you can take dear papa to see Santa Claus. Your loving mother,
Florence Gersh.

Winter Solstice

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

THREE things can be said about the 21st of December; it is the winter solstice, shortest day of the year, it is the day of St. Thomas, it is the day of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers.

One more highly interesting thing can be said about it, but it concerns only myself and one other person.

The Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, Mass., on December 21, 1620. There were 78 men and 24 women; and over half of them died during the first year. But even those who were dead and buried were no more firmly attached to the new soil than the survivors; they came to stay and they stayed.

• • • •

The winter solstice varies a bit; it is either December 21 or 22. The word solstice is from two Latin words, sol, the sun, and sistere, to stand still—because on this date the sun apparently stands still for a moment, having reached its farthest southern point. The next day it begins to crawl back toward the north, when on June 21, it will reach its most northern elevation.

• • • •

Thus in the annals of the church, December 21 is the Day of St. Thomas; and in the annals of the United States it is the day of the Pilgrims.

One of the most striking passages in literature falls on St. Thomas' Day; it is related to another Thomas — Thomas Hardy—who, in the second chapter of his great novel, "Far From the Madding Crowd," wrote one of the most magnificent night scenes in literature:

It was nearly midnight on the eve of St. Thomas', the shortest day in the year . . .

The sky was clear—remarkably clear—and the twinkling of all the stars seemed to be but throbs of one body, timed by a common pulse. The North Star was directly in the wind's eye, and since evening the Bear had swung round it outwardly to the east, till he was now at a right angle, with the meridian.

To persons standing alone on a hill during a clear midnight such as this, the roll of the world eastward is almost a palpable movement. The sensation may be caused by the panoramic glide of the stars past earthly objects, which is perceptible in a few minutes of stillness, or by the better outlook upon space that a hill affords, or by the wind, or by the solitude; but whatever be its origin, the impression of riding along is vivid and abiding. The poetry of motion is a phrase much in use, and to enjoy the epic form of that gratification it is necessary to stand on a hill at a small hour of the night, and, having first expanded with a sense of difference from the mass of civilized mankind, who are horizontal and disregardful of all such proceedings at this time, long and quietly watch your stately progress through the stars. After such a nocturnal reconnoitre among these astral clusters, aloft from the customary haunts of thought and vision, some men may feel raised to a capability for eternity at once.

Basis For Recovery Stated By Business

Program For Cooperation With New Deal Offered In Conciliatory Spirit.

By Elliott Thurston.

BUSINESS has now presented a platform for recovery which affords a practical basis for cooperation with the New Deal. The hostile attitude with which the report, drafted at White Sulphur Springs, is received by some of the New Dealers indicates that they either have not read it, do not understand it, or are incapable of putting national interest ahead of their own political tom-tom beating.

Anyone who will read the report fairly will recognize that it is a sincere, dispassionate, comprehensive statement of the means by which the overwhelming majority of the thoughtful business men of the country believe recovery can be produced. Regardless of necessarily differing individual opinion concerning some of the recommendations, it must be admitted in fairness that the proposed program is a reasonable, rational statement of the situation as business sees it.

The attitude expressed is conciliatory. It conforms exactly to the true meaning of that spirit of cooperation lately proclaimed both by business and by the President. It was never contemplated that cooperation should mean supine acceptance or surrender by either side. The whole purpose was to approach common problems in a calmer, more sympathetic spirit than had prevailed on either side. The report achieves that much.

To damn it out of hand, as some politicians are doing, by calling it reactionary, conservative or whatnot, gets nowhere and means nothing. What difference does it make whether it is reactionary or radical if it offers a sound plan for recovery? The truth is that the report conforms exactly with Mr. Roosevelt's professed purpose to revive private enterprise. Its recommendations follow closely if not precisely the known or avowed policies or purposes of the New Deal. The chief criticism to be leveled against it is that it is quite as vague as the New Deal is at some points—and evidently quite as divided or confused. Yet altogether it is a remarkably comprehensive, temperate and enlightened statement. Contrasted with the uncompromising, belligerent attitude which has often been adopted in the past by business organizations, it is a triumph of calmness and moderation. Compared with the unyielding opposition to social and economic change so often expressed by business groups in the past, it marks a decided advance.

• • • •

IT can and must be accepted by Mr. Roosevelt as a basis for cooperation if there is to be cooperation and not mutually ruinous conflict. Where the New Deal disagrees with specific recommendations the reasons for dissent ought to be plainly and fully explained. Thus as to relief, which the report puts first of all, the principle is stated that there should be a "return to the States as soon as possible of the burden of relief." Does the New Deal deny this? Is it denied that the most practicable way of handling relief is through "properly organized employment exchanges?"

It may be that business is overoptimistic in stating that there "is ample work to be done to require the employment of all the labor now idle," but certainly this is the explicitly expressed belief and hope of the President. The New Deal may disagree with the statement that public works relief is wasteful. This is not solely a relief question and experts are sincerely divided on the question of stimulation of private business through public works. There is need for complete exposition and reconciliation of opinion here—there is no need for falling out about it.

It is axiomatic that balancing of the budget will contribute to confidence. There surely is no occasion for quarreling on this point. The statement that direct relief payments should be lower than rates paid for work relief and lower than prevailing wages in private business is scarcely assailable. Business recognizes the need for the once-horrifying dole. It embraces the once-resisted program for social security, even to old age pensions.

To say that many business men do not really want these things, that they are at heart opposed, is beside the point. The fact is that business is on record here as accepting these things in principle if not in detail, which remains to be worked out anyway. On labor relations, the report deals in generalities as to which there is no real conflict unless the report is to be construed as opposing the principle of collective bargaining conferred by section 7(a) of the NIRA. Yet that hardly can be a fair interpretation of it. Unfortunately this part of the report does not specifically mention section 7(a).

• • • •

THE report urges budget-balancing "at the earliest possible date." Mr. Roosevelt himself is committed to that. It states that an increase in the public debt beyond June 30, 1935, can be avoided—which is doubtless true but involves debatable political difficulties. It conforms to supposed New Deal purposes in urging exchange stabilization. In urging also a fixed and unvarying gold content of the dollar it takes a stand on a question on which the New Deal's position now is unknown. It recommends private banking, commends the helpful attitude of the securities commission, but judges that modification of the securities act would facilitate expansion of private enterprise. It agrees with the Viner report that intermediate credits are needed. It touches a little discussed subject in suggesting that member banks be permitted to do underwriting "of the British type."

In discussing agriculture, the heavy industries, transportation, the real estate mortgage market, housing, foreign trade and finally the NRA, the report states objectives which are in harmony with the expressed objectives of the New Deal. The report roundly scores Federal competition with private business. Such competition is contrary to the New Deal's own pledges.

In fact, whatever its shortcomings may be, the report provides by far the most reasonable and complete basis for genuine cooperation between business and the New Deal that has yet been offered.

Zinovieff Held InKiroff Death, London Report

Russian's Letter Led to Overthrow of British Labor Government.

London, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Reports were current in London tonight that Gregory Zinovieff, erstwhile opposition leader in the Communist Party, had been seized in the round-up of anti-bolshevists following the recent assassination of Sergei Maronovich Kiroff, at Leningrad.

The Evening Standard published a Moscow dispatch of Zinovieff's arrest, indicating one of the most important developments in bolshevik political affairs in Russia since the exile of Leon Trotsky and the ascension to power of Joseph V. Stalin.

The Soviet embassy in London refused to deny or confirm the reports, which gained wide circulation. The arrest follows the comment of Izvestia, official communist organ in Moscow, declaring that the murderer of Kiroff, Leonid Micolieff, was connected with the Zinovieff opposition group.

Izvestia asserted the "discovery of the connection between Kiroff's physical murderer and remnants of the former Zinovieff anti-party group deserves most careful attention . . . We are dealing here with the regeneration of a remant of the former party opposition into an openly counter-revolutionary Fascist band."

Revelations Expected.

The Daily Telegraph published a Moscow dispatch declaring certain phrases in Izvestia reveal "grave revelations in connection with the Kiroff assassination are expected momentarily." It says an organized Fascist-terrorist group has been discovered inside the former Bolshevist Party opposition, linking this bloc with the German Nazis.

Zinovieff has been one of the stormiest figures in Soviet Russia since the overthrow of the czar, in which he took a leading part. His alleged arrest is part of a swift campaign by Stalin and the "Red Terror" under the Bolsheviks to rid Russia of all opposition to Communism as they practice it. Already 103 persons, including one woman, have been executed, and others are on trial for their lives on charges of terrorism.

Zinovieff has been twice expelled from the Communist Party, the last time in 1932, allegedly because he and others conspired to overthrow Stalin. He served for years as president of the Third International, which preached world revolution for Communism.

Shortly before Lenin's death in 1924, world attention was turned on Zinovieff when he was credited with having written the famous "Red Letter" to British workers, urging overthrow of British institutions. The letter, in effect, advised leading Communists also that a loan of $225,000,000 it was proposed the British Labor government should lend Russia, would be used in communistic propaganda in Great Britain.

Both Zinovieff and the Moscow government denied knowledge of the letter. The uproar caused overthrow of the Labor government of J. Ramsay MacDonald and caused severance for years of diplomatic relations between Britain and Moscow.

Widow to Inherit $200,000 Estate of Isaac Rowland

Mrs. Lillian Irene Rowland, widow of Isaac H. Rowland, former saloon keeper in preprohibition days, was named principal beneficiary of his $200,000 estate, it was shown in the District Supreme Court yesterday when his will was filed.

She will be given a $50,000 trust fund which is to run ten years, with Charles Ford and William J. Staub, as trustees. At the end of that period, the money is to go to Mrs. Rowland. In addition, she will receive all of the estate after a group of bequests are paid.

Ford and James A. LaFontaine, jr., were named executors. Rowland, who lived at 433 Sixth street northeast, died December 7.

Washington Maintains Silence on New Pact

While Washington looked yesterday upon Anglo-American cooperation in naval affairs as a distinct possibility, officially it withheld comment, according to the Associated Press.

Secretary Hull and other State Department officials maintained diplomatic silence on observations made by an American spokesman in London prophesying an accord between Great Britain and the United States if Japan continues to refuse to entertain a new naval limitations agreement.

Hull, however, did deny reports that the United States had under consideration proposals to enter into a gentlemen's agreement with both Japan and Great Britain concerning scrapping of naval vessels during the next two years. He indicated the United States contemplated no immediate action on naval questions.

Hirosi Saito, the Japanese ambassador, is expected to deliver formal announcement of Japan's intention to abrogate the Washington naval pact at the State Department before Saturday, but the embassy was still without any instructions on the subject last night.

Until the denunciation is actually delivered the State Department is taking every care to observe the diplomatic niceties by declining any comment on an act yet to be performed.

British Striving To Win Trade In Manchukuo

Federation of Industries Moves for Agreement With the Japanese.

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

London, Dec. 20.—A surprise move—designed to link Britain and Japan more closely together through trade relations in Manchukuo—was inaugurated by the Federation of British Industries today.

Ignoring the government's policy of nonrecognition of the infant state of the East, the Federation's grand council unanimously adopted a report of the body's recent mission to the Orient, strongly pleading for a "new deal" in trade to spur needed markets in Japan and Manchukuo.

Cooperation Advocated.

The report, a 12,000-word document, strongly recommended the closest economic collaboration to replace the Anglo-Japanese trade war, which has long threatened to wreck the British piece goods industry and textile mills.

Lord Herbert Scott presided over the grand council's session which unanimously approved the mission's suggestions—from a powerful group of men whose word may be expected to carry weight in high places.

The first practical move toward achieving this cooperation was made by the council immediately, by appointment of a permanent committee to discuss with a corresponding committee of the Japan Economic Federation the knotty economic problems affecting Britain and Japan.

Trade Rivalry Taken Up.

Trade competition in the Orient, particularly India, where Japanese mills have gobbled up much of England's piece goods market, will be among the immediate issues to be discussed, together with trade expansion among Britain, Japan and Manchukuo.

The British committee to cooperate with the Japanese is headed by Lord Barnby, chief of the mission which visited the Orient for some months, studying conditions in Japan and Manchukuo at first hand. It includes Sir Charles Seligman, Guy Locock and Julian Piggott, most of them long familiar with Japanese affairs from having lived in that country or having had close relationships there.

The government's reaction to this powerful pressure to solve the growing threat of Japanese trade competition—threatening to throttle British commerce in the East and thus force further shutdowns at home—remained obscure, but observers felt it might result in a renewed study by officials of the possibilities outlined.

Roosevelt to Press Button Illuminating National Christmas Symbol.

Meeting in Lafayette square yesterday at 9 a. m., representatives of the executive committee for lighting the national community Christmas tree conferred with Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and completed arrangements for the ceremonies to be held Christmas Eve at the foot of the tree.

President Roosevelt will press the button that will make the tree flare with Christmas joy at 5:10 p. m., following half an hour of yuletide music by the United States Marine Band. Two Christmas carols will be sung by citizens and visitors gathered around the tree.

The Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Baptist Church, will deliver the invocation. Greetings will be extended the entire Nation by Boy and Girl Scouts at the tree, more carols will be sung, and the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., will pronounce the benediction.

The entire program will last just half an hour from the arrival of the President and the White House party. It will be symbolic of the community Christmas spirit throughout the United States.

DuPontsNetted Quarter Billion In War Profits

Firm Insists Tariff Fight Saved Millions to U. S. Public.

nomical achievements attained "purely as the result of protecting the industry until it could get on its feet." And, he added:

"I am proud of my part in it—even of going to see Senators about it."

His assertion grew from a vigorous cross-examination of R. R. M. Carpenter, a retired vice president of the company, about a letter speaking of "unfavorable legislation by the United States."

Du Pont, always forthright in expressing his opinions, had previously told the committee, in a discussion of the War Department's future war plans, that he thought "the only way to wage a war is to have an absolute monarch at the head of the Government."

"We will have a hell of a time in case of war," he said. "The only way to wage a war is to prepare in advance. If we are well enough prepared we will never have a war."

Had to "Sell" Senators.

On the matter of chemical tariffs, letters from du Pont officials spoke of having "had to sell the Republican Senators who don't know anything about it."

A letter from Carpenter to Irenee du Pont introduced yesterday, brought in the names of the then Senators Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, Watson of Indiana, and Henry P. Fletcher, now chairman of the Republican national committee. Watson is to be called before the committee today.

It suggested the establishment of a Washington office by the du Ponts as a "hiding place for the legislation" if necessary and as a contact point for sales to the Government. Carpenter said he thought a stenographic error had changed "hiving place to hiding place."

"It says 'hiding place,'" Irenee du Pont interrupted, "and we can't go beyond that."

The letter, too, said Watson criticized du Pont legislative methods as "handled the worst of any corporation in the country." It suggested that du Pont "get in touch" with someone who could give advice. One name was mentioned in this connection because "of his very intimate relationship with Fletcher."

Committee members jumped when Fletcher's name entered the discussion.

"What Fletcher is that?" asked Chairman Nye.

"Isn't it the Fletcher who once was American Ambassador to Chile?" said du Pont, with his tongue in his cheek.

"Didn't he have something to do with the National Economy League?" asked Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri.

"I think," said du Pont, still with an air of assumed naivette, "that he always has been somewhat prominent in the Republican Party."

Needy to Receive Aid Of Warrenton Group

Warrenton, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—After the Yuletide program given by the pupils of the Warrenton High School tonight, baskets of provisions, fruit and gifts were turned over to the King's Daughters of Warrenton for distribution to the needy. Several of the churches cooperated with the local circle, and they have also had several private donations.

For years this organization has sent out baskets to many needing them in Warrenton and Fauquier.

Traffic Deaths Here Reach 127

Youth Dies of Injuries Suffered When Car Strikes Tree.

Traffic fatalities in Washington climbed to 127 for 1934 yesterday when a colored man died in Casualty Hospital of injuries suffered when an automobile he was driving crashed into a tree in the 400 block of Sixth street southwest.

As the police gave chase, Lindsay speeded his motor. The smashup came when he failed to negotiate a dangerous curve.

Since the new traffic safety campaign was put into effect Wednesday, police have made 50 arrests for speeding, it was announced yesterday.

400 Toys Distributed Waynesboro Children

Waynesboro, Pa., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—More than 400 repainted and reconstructed toys were inspected this afternoon in the legion home by townspeople and tonight were distributed to needy children in Waynesboro and vicinity and to the children confined to the Mont Alto State Sanatorium.

The toys, banked high in the home, were repaired by pupils of the seventh and eighth grades of Snider Avenue School under the direction of Miss Hazel Craig, art instructor.

350 Will Lose Treasury Jobs In Quota Mix-up

Many Residents of D. C. in Group of 200 Due to Go Dec. 31.

Nearly 350 employes of the Treasury Department yesterday faced loss of their jobs by the Civil Service Commission's enforcement of the apportionment law allocating Government employment by State quota.

Of this number approximately 200, a large portion of which are residents of the District, are to be ousted by December 31, the date on which their temporary service period expires.

The first group to go will be from the Division of Loans and Currency, to be followed by large-scale cuts from the Treasurer's Office. Replacements in some instances already have been made and will continue gradually until State quotas have been adjusted.

Randolph Protests.

The ouster proceedings first came to light when a group of Representatives from nearby States, headed by Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, protested to the commission in behalf of constituents who are being affected because these States are represented on Government pay rolls beyond their quotas.

Harry B. Mitchell, chairman of the commission, told the House members that the employes could be retained as long as their service was temporary, but inasmuch as these positions have continued there was nothing the commission could do but invoke the appointment law. Some of the workers have been employed as long as nine months, he said.

Personnel to Be Pared.

In the division of loans and currency, 73 District employes are caught in the ouster order, 35 from Virginia, 26 from Maryland, and 10 from West Virginia, figures obtained by Representative Randolph showed.

Most of the positions are to be filled from under-quota States, though some reduction in personnel is to be made in view of a let-down in work.

While the work for which the employes were hired remains presumably temporary, persons of higher "permanent" civil service rating must replace those now on the job, the commission said. The "permanent" employes will be classified as "indefinitely" appointed.

Ring Stolen From Former Officer.

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 (AP).—When he was a police sergeant criminals feared the alertness of David McDonald. Today the retired officer walked shamefacedly into his old station to report that while he dozed in his automobile someone slipped a $500 diamond ring from his finger.

Southern FERA Head Is Center In Political Row

Senators Demand Removal of Official, Citing Election Activity.

Walter L. Simpson, Tennessee FERA administrator, last night was the center of a political tempest that threatened to force the hand of the Federal Relief Administration as two Tennessee Senators clashed with FERA officials over retention of Simpson in office.

Charges that the official actively worked for fusion candidates in the last campaign, against the interests Nathan L. Bachman, were countered of Senators Kenneth McKellar and by FERA pointing to Simpson's "clear slate and efficient record."

Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins insists Simpson is a State official and any action will have to come from Gov. Hill McAlister of Tennessee. But McAlister wired Senator McKellar he is taking no part in the fight, and does not intend to.

In authoritative quarters, however, it was said the FERA will find it necessary to take a hand. Simpson may be given another State assignment, or "taken care of" in Washington, and McAlister told to name someone else in his place, to relieve what has become a tense political situation, it was said.

Tennessee friends of Simpson allege the fight in reality is a battle over 2,500 State relief jobs, and relief for 70,000 Tennessee families, as a prelude to the next election. Many newspapers in the State have come to his defense, and the National Magazine of Commerce, in New York, recently praised his "capable" administration.

Busby Gets Federal Post.

Representative L. Busby (Democrat), Mississippi, has accepted a position with the legal department of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. He was defeated for re-election from the Fourth District of Mississippi by A. L. Ford.

Hawser Breaks As Rescue Ship Tows Freighter

Coast Guard Craft Fights Towering Seas to Aid 'Cripple.'

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Coast Guardsmen fought their way to the rescue of another rudderless freighter tonight as the angry Atlantic, whipped into a fury by relentless winter gales, held great liners on the ship lanes days late.

Fighting a towering sea, the Coast Guard cutter Champlain succeeded in lashing a steel hawser aboard the disabled Boston freighter Severance, 18 miles south of Fire Island Light. With the freighter and her crew of 41 in tow, she started a rough 50-mile trip for New York Harbor.

A half hour later, however, the hawser parted because of the terrific strain exerted by the pounding waves. The Champlain reported to Coast Guard headquarters here that she would stand by and resume rescue operations in the morning.

At least eight queens of the ship lanes, bound for United States shores with tons of Christmas mail from other lands, were delayed from one to four days by the recurring storms, which already have wrecked two freighters on the north Atlantic and claimed the lives of 17 seamen.

Pounding the Nova Scotia seaboard, great breakers swept vessels from their moorings and tore wharves apart. Storm flags flew from Eastport, Me., to Delaware Breakwater.

European shipping also suffered. The Dutch steamer Orania went down in Portuguese waters in a collision with the Portuguese freighter Loanda, but her passengers were saved. One seaman was swept overboard from the Orient liner Orford in the Bay of Biscay when the ship heeled sharply in a furious blow, her cabins flooded.

The Cunarder Ascania, which took off survivors of the wrecked British freighter Usworth after a tragic rescue attempt that cost 17 lives, will dock here tomorrow, three days late.

Another rescue ship, the Europa of the North German Lloyd Line, will be two days late in docking Sunday. She stood by, training her searchlights on the sea, while the S. S. New York took off the crew of the sinking freighter Sisto.

Chaco Embargo Violated, British Protest to League

Geneva, Dec. 20 (AP).—A British protest against asserted violations of the arms embargo imposed on the Chaco combatants stirred the League of Nations' Chaco advisory committee today.

Simultaneously, Dr. A. Costa du Rels, Bolivian delegate, lashed out at Paraguay's reply to the league's latest peace proposal, terming it "neither fish nor fowl" and asserting any further delay granted Asuncion would "cause greater shedding of blood and weaken the peace plan."

"If small nations can not get justice from the league," he declared, "they may begin to regard the covenant as a scrap of paper."

W. Strang, British delegate, declared violations of the embargo decidedly unfair to countries like the United States and Great Britain which were trying conscientiously to live up to its provisions. He demanded that steps be taken to make the embargo effective and that "ammunition running to belligerents be stopped."

A Bolivian spokesman said the British were ready to designate as possible violations of the embargo the attitude of Norway and Belgium concerning the sale of arms and Uruguay's stand on the transit of arms.

Granddaughter of Ogden Mills Weds French Count in Ireland

Holiday Is Declared as Notables Gather for Ceremony.

Newton Forbes, Irish Free State, Dec. 20 (AP).—Lady Moira Forbes, 24-year-old granddaughter of the late Ogden Mills, father of Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury, today became the Christmas bride of Comte de Brantes, of France.

Two ceremonies, civil and church, united the ancient Irish and French houses. Tonight this remote Irish village, together with all the country round about, was en fete.

School children were turned out of school today to join in cheering the popular French sportsman. Fifty civil guards had their hands full keeping back enthusiastic crowds that pressed toward the doors of the chapel of historic Castle Forbes and the tiny parish church, where the ceremonies were performed.

Three hours after the second ceremony the newlyweds left for their honeymoon, part of which probably will be spent at the Paris mansion of the Countess of Granard, former Beatrice Mills.

A band of pipers in Irish costumes played them away. The musicians had learned the "Marseillaise" especially for the occasion.

Four hundred distinguished guests, among them American Charge d'Affaires James Odenby and the French minister, packed the church chapel for the wedding. The civil service, in accordance with French law, was performed first, and the Bishop of Armagh conducted the religious rite.

Lady Moira's wedding gown of white satin, though simply cut, was modern of line, with long sleeves and V-shaped neck. The train was covered with rare old family lace. A coronet of diamonds was on her head. The bride had but one bridesmaid, Pamela Packe, an old schoolmate.

A five-tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride after the wedding. She used her husband's sword, which he wore with his uniform as an officer of the French army.

British Duke Seeks Steeplechase Mount

Wellington, N. Z., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Duke of Gloucester, third son of King George and Queen Mary, today applied to the Racing Conference for a gentleman rider's license so he might take the mount on Blackman in the Ladies' Bracelet race at Merton, January 1. He will ride at 154 pounds.

Campaign to Rid Capital of Smoke Gets Under Way

Mrs. Mahlon Pitney yesterday launched a drive against the city's soft coal users, issuing a call to all citizens' associations to join in a campaign for enforcement of the Capital's smoke regulations.

Mrs. Pitney is a member of the Dupont Circle Citizens Association, which already has gone on record favoring smoke abatement.

All persons interested in Mrs. Pitney's project have been asked to submit their names to her, these in turn to be presented to Congress with a petition calling for revision of smoke regulations.

"Before the war," Mrs. Pitney said, "soft coal could not be used in the District. Since then millions of dollars have been expended on Federal buildings, and there is greater reason than ever before for protecting them.

"Prevalence of smoke in the city may be blamed for much of the grimy condition of the Washington Monument, which the Government is now spending thousands of dollars in cleaning."

Sultan's Golden Dagger Drags Truth From Singapore Sailor

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—A holy kris—a small golden dagger once the property of a Malay sultan—was used by officials at Ellis Island today to get the story of a dark young man, who talked in a strange language.

The man produced seaman's papers, and with a few words of English made it known he was a sailor, who had jumped ship. To learn further details, the immigration men started a search for someone who could speak Atjeh, Battak, Bugi, Dyak, Lampong, Makassar, Malay, Nikobar, or Rejang.

They finally found an interpreter in Dr. Cassilo Adams, former curator of the Brooklyn Museum, an Austrian, who had spent years in the Indies. He came, bringing with him the gris which had been presented to him by the Sultan of Solo, a Malay potentate of Java.

The kris, he said, would convince the sailor he should tell the truth, for such a weapon would be presented by the Sultan only to someone whom he respected most highly.

At sight of the kris, the young man's eyes bulged. He said he was a native of Singapore, had jumped ship at Beaumont, Texas, last September, had only $80 left, and was tired of the United States. He identified himself as Umar Thir Ben, 22, former seaman of the British freighter City of Dunkirk.

Rudolph Reimer, commissioner of immigration and naturalization, said application would be made to the British consulate for traveling papers for Umar as a seaman.

Indian Woman, 125, Dies in Oklahoma

As a 15-year-old girl, she rode a pony over the "trail of tears," followed by the Choctaws in 1823 when they were evicted from Mississippi to the land that is now Oklahoma. She never had seen a railroad train.

You're No Citizen, Mrs. Maddox Says

Points Out Washingtonian Can't Vote, Be Elected.

Washingtonians actually are not citizens because they neither have the right to vote nor may they be elected to public office, Mrs. Marie Flynn Maddox, of the District bar, and a delegate to the Federation of Citizens Association from the Columbia Heights Association, asserted last night in a radio address.

"I feel I can not properly address you as citizens," said Mrs. Maddox, "because we who live and pay taxes in the District of Columbia are not citizens, as the term citizen is understood in this country."

Mrs. Maddox based her argument on definiteness of the word citizen contained in Webster's Dictionary and Worcester's Dictionary.

Pupils to Aid Indians.

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.). Pupils of St. Mary's Academy here will play Santa Claus to the little Indians of the Holy Rosary Mission in Pine Ridge, South Dakota. Presents will be sent in answer to letters written by them to Santa Claus, which were forwarded to the school here.

"The Role of Business Interests in Our Government's Formation."

By Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, Professor of History, Howard University.

The role of business interests in the formation of the American Government is made clear through an understanding of the significance of the revolt of the American Colonies from England. In a very definite sense, this American revolt was a continuation of the social revolution which had taken place in England a century before. The rapid economic development of the colonies had given birth to a new middle class, chiefly composed of business men and property owners—traders, shippers, manufacturers and large landholders.

The interests of the members of this American middle class were in conflict with the restrictive and regulative legislation imposed by England in order to protect the interests of British merchants and manufacturers who desired to maintain the colonies as a market.

Revolution Inevitable.

Thus, the Revolutionary War was inevitable, since the colonial commercial industries, and particularly the struggling infant industries of New England, were determined to free themselves of the English yoke. In truth, therefore, the American revolt was a social revolution, built upon the rebellion of the new American middle class against both the King of England and the dominant English middle class which controlled the English government. The successful termination of this struggle paved the way for the phenomenal development of American economic life which has characterized our history.

After the Revolution, however, it was necessary to safeguard the rights and interests won by the American middle class. After a few years of virtual anarchy under the Articles of Confederation, the Constitutional Convention was called, with the purpose of creating a constitution which would draw the separate colonies into a more closely unified organization and which could more effectively support the development of American business and agriculture.

The delegates to the Constitutional Convention were representative of this new and victorious middle class of traders, shippers, manufacturers and large landholders. In fact, these delegates were of the same status and had the same interests as those persons who sat in that English Parliament against whose oppressive measures the colonists had revolted. And these American delegates took the same kind of precautions to safeguard their property and to secure the debts owed them as the English middle classes had taken previously in their own country.

Coastal Towns Led.

It is of no little significance that most of the delegates to the Constitutional Convention represented the coastal towns, which were the centers of wealth, then as now. There was no representation for the small farming and laboring populations. Many of the delegates were themselves either large property owners, or had personal interests in manufacturing and shipping activities. Fifteen of them were slave owners. In consequence, they proceeded to build the new American Government upon the only foundations which they felt could insure a stable existence, i. e., fundamental economic interests. The Constitution, therefore, proceeded to elevate the protection of property interests to equal status with personal liberty.

These same purposes were translated into the legislation of the country subsequent to the adoption of the Constitution. The American middle class, whose interests were thus secured by the Constiution, became the champions of the American ideals expressed in it and exerted the dominant control in the organization and operation of the government established under it.

Du Ponts Saved After Landing in Everglades

Miami, Fla., Dec. 20 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Richard du Pont, socially prominent Wilmington, Del., aviation enthusiasts, spent more than eight hours marooned in their plane in the Everglades before an Army tractor rescued them today.

Du Pont made an aerial survey of the landing spot today, but did not immediately say whether an effort to salvage the plane would be made.

King's Pet Elephant Succumbs to Old Age

Sofia, Bulgaria, Dec. 20 (AP).—One of two elephants which King Boris was offering for sale to an American circus died today of rheumatism and old age.

The Bulgarian monarch, who is a great lover of animals, seemed as grief-stricken over the loss of his gigantic pet as he would have been over the death of one of his own children. He gave orders that the beast, a rare specimen from the Indian jungle, should be stuffed and mounted in the National Museum.

George Parker Is Dismissed From PWA Job

Ickes Says Action Is 'For Good of Service;' Aid Also Is Ousted.

George H. Parker, chief accountant of the Public Works Administration, whose job it was to keep check on a fund of $3,700,000,000, has been "dismissed for the good of the service," Harold I. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, announced late yesterday.

J. E. Fox, an accountant conferee in PWA, also has been dismissed and for the same reason, Secretary Ickes revealed.

Their separation from the service Tuesday, Ickes said, followed an investigation by Louis H. Glavis, chief of the division of investigation of PWA.

Details Withheld.

Secretary Ickes would give no details with respect to the investigation. Dismissal of the men, he said, was to "improve the service" and to "help the morale."

He took personal responsibility for the action, saying:

"It seemed necessary to dismiss them, and so I did it."

Mr. Parker, whose address was given by the Interior Department as Chevy Chase, Md., is well known in Washington, having held several important posts here since the war.

Transportation Work.

During the war he was assistant to the director general of the railroads, and in 1920 he was appointed comptroller of the Railroad Administration. He formulated the "maintenance limitation" imposed on the roads during the six months following the end of Federal control, whereby the Government was enabled to deduct about $100,000,000 in settlements with the carriers.

Just before he went with the Public Works Administration in the summer of 1933, Mr. Parker had concluded a study of the Canadian transportation system and of the Dominion finances for a Government commission.

$400,000 for Seawall.

The Public Works Administration announced yesterday that it had allotted $400,000 to provide for construction that will protect the shore at Colonial National Monument, Yorktown, Va., and Jameston Island, Va.

Choral Group to Sing Part of Bach Oratorio

Two parts of Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" will be sung at the annual candlelight service of the Washington Choral Society this afternoon at 4:30 in Epiphany Church under the direction of Louis A. Potter. The chorus of 80 voices will also present a number of fine chorales and Christmas carols.

The soloists will be Mildred Colvin, soprano; Lily Garritt, contralto; Justin Lawrie, tenor, and Charles Trowbridge Tittmann, basso. Adolf Torovski, organist of Epiphany Church, will give a short recital preceding the oratorio, and organ accompaniments for the chorus will be played by Walter Nash, of St. Alban's Church.

Craft in Distress Off Boston.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The trawler Widgeon reported she was in distress tonight approximately 100 miles east of Boston, Coast Guard headquarters was informed. The Widgeon carries a crew of 22 men.

WHY NOT GIVE

It's straight as a string—made the good old-fashioned way and stored in charred oak barrels. Because of its honest, straight-from-the-barrel bourbon flavor, millions prefer it to any other straight whiskey.

Woman Victor In Rare Suit In Montgomery

County Jury Heeds Plea of 'Abuse of Proceeds;' Awards $500.

A Montgomery County jury last night awarded $500 damages in the suit for $10,000 of Dorothy Tedford, of Fullerton, Md., against Justice of the Peace A. L. Wilson, of Takoma Park, Md., alleging false arrest and abuse of process.

The plaintiff, through Attorneys Vivian Simpson, Joseph B. Simpson and Harold C. Smith, contended that Wilson had caused her arrest on charges of larceny of a stove and other property and then had told her he was going to have her sent to jail for the theft of the property if she did not return it or pay for it.

The property had been given to him, the judge contended through Attorney Ben G. Wilkinson, in payment of a distraint by the woman's husband and later had been removed by the woman after the distraint had been placed on the goods.

The plaintiff's attorneys brought property belonged to her and that she merely had purchased it through her husband's account.

Thep laintif's attorneys brought into court an action rarely used and probably used for the first time in Montgomery County, that alleging abuse of process. Not more than half a dozen citations in support of the action could be found, only one of which was in Maryland. The demurrer filed by Wilson was overruled on the strength of the abuse of process action.

Culbertson on Bridge

A Married Couple Agree on Bridge Ability.

I am told that the favorite indoor sport of married couples all over the world is trying to convince themselves, each other and the world at large that the other member of the married partnership is by far the inferior member of the Bridge partnership. Most wives think that their husbands play atrociously and the husbands delight in picking out wifely Contract Bridge flaws and dwelling on them at great length. I receive some 500 letters daily from the "other half" ofa pair united by holy wedlock but not in Bridge beliefs.

I was therefore delighted when Sidney J. Brown, of Jacksonville, Fla., sent me the following beautiful example of expert bidding and play, with the simple comment that "Mrs. Brown played it." Since I am known to believe my wife a master of all departments of the game of Bridge, I am happy to find another man who has the same high regard for his own wife's ability.

Mr. Brown neglected to state the bidding, but I assume that it was along this order, with North as dealer:

| North. | East. | South. | West. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 C | Pass | 2 D | Pass |
| 2 S | Pass | 3 H | Pass |
| 4 C | Pass | 4 N T | Pass |
| 5 N T | Pass | 6 D | Double |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

I do not recommend the double, but Mr. Brown did happen to mention that West daubled, and it had a great effect on theplay.

West's open lead was the spade four, which Dummy's King won. South now asumed that the double must have been based on a long suit in diamonds, and preceeded to play the hand accordingly. Two rounds of hearts were followed by a heart ruff with Dummy's singleton trump, after which the Ace of Clubs furnished a discard for South's last heart. A club was now ruffed, reducing South to five trumps. Two rounds of doamonds revealed the fact that West originally held five and East only one. South therefore led a spade to Dummy's Ace, and played a third round of clubs from Dummy. She ruffed this with the diamond seven and was left with two diamonds (the Queen-Ten) and a losing spade, since East's King was now established. West had nothing but diamonds.

At this point, when South led out her losing spade West was forced to ruff it with the diamond Five, and now West was in the lead with no choice but to play from his guarded Jack of diamonds into South's ten-ace and give up the last two tricks.

To make matters more interesting, this hand was played in a team-of-four contest. When Mr. and Mrs. Brown's opponents held the same cards at the other table, they also bid six diamonds. But the Declarer did equal Mrs. Brown's skillful play and was defeated two tricks.

Tomorrow's hand:
West, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

Coughlin Nominated In Cadillac 'Primary'

Detroit, Dec. 20 (AP).—Compilation of votes cast in yesterday's "primary" to select candidates for a collective bargaining board in the Cadillac Motor Car Co. plant revealed today that the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin was one of the 32 nominees.

Members of the automobile labor board, which conducted the balloting as the first of a series of elections in auto plants, indicated the militant priest of the Shrine of the Little Flower would be asked whether he wished to enter the election December 28, when the bargaining board members will be chosen.

Osages Get Yule Royalties.

Pawhuska, Okla., Dec. 20 (AP).—New Christmas finery for the Osages was in prospect today as the holders of the 2,229 tribal headrights received their final quarterly oil payment for 1934, amounting to $750 each. The payment is the largest in recent years.

French Academy Prize Goes to Family of 17

Paris, Dec. 20 (AP).—The French Academy today conferred a prize of 3,500 francs (approximately $231) on M. and Mme. Rambaud for their patriotic services in contributing 15 children to the French population.

The Rambauds, residents of Casablanca, a French colonial outpost in western Morocco, previously have received 10,000 francs (approximately $660) in similar awards.

Hunter Fells 2 Deer With a Single Bullet

Concord, N. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—Here's the best hunting story from these parts this season:

Dr. Hubert B. Sapp, Concord dentist, killed two deer with a single shot while hunting in Pisgan National Forest. The bullet dropped its original target, a large doe, at 150 yards, passing through the deer's neck and entering the head of a smaller doe, which was out of the hunter's view.

Dr. Alice Wynekoop's Appeal Is Rejected

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Illinois Supreme Court today upheld the 25-year sentence given Dr. Alice Wynekoop, of Chicago, for the murder of her daughter-in-law, refusing to grant her request for a reversal or a new trial.

Dr. Wynekoop was found guilty of the operating-table slaying of her daughter-in-law, Rheta Wynekoop. She is now in the Woman's Reformatory at Dwight.

Loved Dogs and Sea, Headstone Will Testify

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 20 (AP).—Even in death, Charles H. Martin wanted to be remembered as one who loved dogs and the sea. His will, read today in probate court, directed that a headstone be erected over his grave with this inscription:

"Charles H. Martin, born July 4, 1885, died December 2, 1934. He loved the sea and all dogs better than he did most people."

Bernard Fay Entertained By Mrs. Keep

French Author Presents Paper on Gertrude Stein.

Distinguished Company Headed by Envoy From Italy.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

There probably is no city in this country which combines the intellectual and the social as well as Washington. This fact was evident again Wednesday evening when Mrs. Frederic A. Keep entertained at her home on R street for M. Bernard Fay, distinguished French author. Following a dinner at which the Ambassador of Italy, Signor Augusto Rosso, was the ranking guest, additional guests were invited to meet M. Fay, who read an interesting paper on Miss Gertrude Stein, before an ably critical gathering.

About 30 guests were received in the handsome drawing room by the hostess, who wore a gown of white. Small groups waited in pleasant anticipation for the talk which was in store, and chatted until M. Fay appeared. After a few words to the Ambassador of France and Mme. de Laboulaye, M. Fay took his place near a small Louis XV console, and as the murmur of voices died down, this dark and keen-looking Frenchman arranged his notes.

Whether the subject was of personal interest to the individual listeners mattered little, such was the art with which this gifted foreigner delivered his reading. The versatile author of the "Biography of Benjamin Franklin" held everybody's attention for three-quarters of an hour with his agile mind and facile style of delivery. His limpid and unaffected French was a joy for it is rare to find an author who speaks as well as he writes. When the smooth flow of language had ceased, the audience showed its appreciation not only by applause, but by urging M. Fay to read more excerpts from Miss Stein's work, among them a word portrait of himself.

Ensconced in a deep sofa near the speaker's table were Mrs. Frank West, the Right Rev. James Ryan, Bishop of Modra and president of the Catholic University, with the Ambassador of Italy. The latter two exchanged quips in a friendly fashion, exemplifying the happy accord that exists between His Holiness and Il Duce.

Nearby sat the sister of the hostess, Miss Mabel Boardman, conversing with Mr. Edward Lowry, and a tete-a-tete was going on between two former United States Ambassadors—Mr. Robert Woods Bliss and Mr. Irwin B. Laughlin. Mrs. Tracy Dows, becomingly gowned in black velvet, was chatting with Mme. van Kaathoven.

As the guests dispersed to the dining room, where a lavish buffet was spread, the Minister of Rumania, Mr. Charles A. Davila, Mrs. Ann Archbold and Mr. Oscar T. Crosby gathered about M. Fay for a few more readings. Mrs. Archbold was quite the most interested listener, since Miss Stein is to be her guest next week. Miss Stein will lunch with Mrs. Roosevelt while she is here, and on December 29 Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips will entertain at a luncheon in her honor.

Others glimpsed were the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, the latter looking very beautiful in a gown of black with a draped bodice of silvery gray, most effective with her silvery hair, which is smartly bobbed; Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Mr. Olin Dows and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer.

Still others were the Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander; Mrs. George Cabot Lodge, Mrs. Bryce Allen, Mrs. William Duncan Herridge, wife of the Minister of Canada; Mrs. Winthrop Chanler, who has written "Roman Spring," her memoirs; Sir Willmott Lewis and Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace.

Maj. and Mrs. Totten Entertain at Tea

U. S. Diplomat and Mother Are Honor Guests.

Maj. and Mrs. George Oakley Totten, jr., entertained at tea yesterday afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock in their home, 2633 Sixteenth street, in honor of the United States Minister to the Union of South Africa, Mr. Ralph J. Totten, and his mother, Mrs. James B. Totten.

Assisting Mrs. Totten was Mme. Bostrom, wife of the Minister of Sweden; Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama; Mrs. Daniel Devore, Mrs. Mary Stewart, Mrs. William H. King, and Miss Ada Totten, of New York, sister of Maj. Totten and cousin of the Minister.

Maj. and Mrs. Totten and their children will leave in a day or two for New York to visit Miss Totten.

Head of Cistercian Order Visits in City

The Most Rev. M. Francis Janssens, head of the Cistercian Order of the Roman Catholic Church, visited in Washington yesterday, and was a guest at the Shoreham Hotel. He was accompanied by the Rev. Romould Pecasse, prior of the American branch of the Cistercian Order, and Mr. Charles B. Forner, of Chicago.

After being received by the Netherlands legation and the Apostolic Delegate, they left for New York to attend the reception at the Hotel Biltmore last night. They will return to Washington today.

Mrs. Jan Williams has arrived at the Martinique to spend the holidays with her son, Mr. Edward B. Williams.

Debs Will Ride In the Pageant At Fort Myer

Sixteen to Be Paired With Army Officers in Special Exhibition.

One of the colorful features of the military pageant opening the new riding hall at Fort Myer January 12 will be the hunt ride, in which 16 Washington debutantes will participate. The young ladies will be paired with 16 officers stationed at the fort, and will execute jumping drill.

The hunt ride will open with the entrance of a tally-ho, the driver and guard in historic uniforms, followed by the young ladies and officers in couples. The girls will be garbed in black riding coats, white stocks, derbies, white breeches and boots, and their escorts will be in the traditional hunting pink, with white breeches and hunting hats and boots.

The tally-ho and couples will circle the hall at the trot. The riders will take up the gallop after the departure of the tally-ho and ride the course in pairs. After taking the long jump in the center the pairs will divide, the girls going to the right and officers to the left, meeting again at the opposite end of the hall and rejoining to take the jump in the center again in pairs. Then they will proceed in pairs around the entire course, to the left hand and down the center.

When this phase has been concluded, alternate pairs will move to the right and left, at the end of the ring, to meet in column of fours at the opposite end and move down to take the obstacle in the center.

The column of fours will alternate to the right and left after the center jump and meet in column of eights at the opposite end of the hall to proceed to the center jump again, taking this obstacle, eight in line, with girls and officers alternating in ranks. When the last eight have cleared the center obstacle the column will break into pairs and proceed over the jumps on the east side and gallop out.

Col. Kenyon Joyce, commanding officer at the fort has been spectator at the rehearsals and anticipates that the hunt ride will be one of the most spectacular events of the pageant.

Army Relief Fund Dance Set Dec. 26

Annual Affair to Be Held at War College.

The annual cadet-midshipman tea dance for the benefit of the Army relief fund will be held at the Army War College December 26 from 4:30 to 7:30.

Among those assisting Mrs. George S. Simonds, wife of the commandant of the War College, will be Mrs. George H. Dern, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt and Mrs. Hugh A. Drum.

Mary E. Damon Is Presented to Capital Society

Dinner Precedes Dance in Chinese Room of the Mayflower.

A large number of Washington's younger set attended the ball given last night at the Mayflower by Dr. and Mrs. William Peter Mull, who presented the latter's daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Damon, to Capital society.

Preceding the dance Dr. and Mrs. Mull entertained at dinner in the Chinese room of the hotel for Miss Damon and her out-of-town guests, including Miss Emily North King, Miss Jane Wilbur, Mr. John Wilbur, Mr. William Wilbur and Mr. North Fletcher, of Warrenton, Va.; Miss Betty Mackenzie, of Providence, R. I., and Mr. Charles Sturgis, of Boston.

An unusual feature of the dance was the selection by the hosts of a group of their friends, headed by Rear Admiral Harley H. Christy, U. S. N., to escort their guests to the receiving line and make the presentations. Assisting Admiral Christy were Capt. Henry L. Dollard, U. S. N.; Dr. Frank Govern, Mr. Donald Deveau, Mr. William Wilbur, Mr. John Wilbur, Mr. Laird Dunlop 3d, Mr. Frederick Hunt, Mr. William Sweet, Mr. North Fletcher, Mr. Humphrey Daniel, Mr. William Blum and Mr. Homer Tatum.

The two tables in the Chinese room were decorated with center pieces of plaques of bright red poinsettias in a nest of green ferns. Later these flowers were placed in that room and the ballroom, the upper end of which was converted into a drawing room for the reception before the ball.

The hostess and her daughter received before a screen of flowers which had been sent the debutante. Mrs. Mull wore a handsome Empire model of black chiffon velvet, with the top of white chiffon covered with rhinestone embroidery. The bodice was cut with a deep decolletage at the back, and the skirt ended in a graceful train. She carried a sheaf of gardenias. The debutante wore a gown of white slipper satin made on Empire lines with the bodice of white chiffon embroidered with rhinestones. She carried an arm bouquet of long-stemmed American beauty roses, with a cluster of lilies of the valley tied to the ribbon streamers.

Supper was served at 1 a. m. in the Presidential dining room, which also was decorated in the Christmas effect, which was carried out in the Chinese ballroom.

Miss Damon, who is the daughter of the late James Graham Damon, of Philadelphia, attended the Holton Arms School, and has been a close student of the history of art, although law is her chosen vocation.

Dance Is Given By Bette Hartz For Debutantes

Party at Columbia Club Honors Miss McMullen and Miss Spinks.

The Columbia Country Club was the scene of a delightful party Wednesday when Miss Bette Hartz, subdebutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barge Llewelyn Hartz, entertained at a supper dance in honor of two of this season's debutantes, Miss Margaret McMullen and Miss Mary Katharine Spinks.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartz, their daughter and the two debutantes received the guests in the lounge. Mrs. Hartz had on a handsome gown of black velvet made on simple lines with straight wide shoulder straps and a deep decolletage which was finished with two brilliant clips. Miss Hartz had on a becoming frock of yellow crepe-striped satin made with a gored skirt and a puffed ruff around the neck. On one wrist she wore a tiny round "cushion" muff of the same material and on it was a spray of brown orchids. Miss McMullen had on a picture gown of Alice blue taffeta made with a gathered bertha effect of royal blue velvet. Miss Spinks was wearing a gown of gold brocade made on fitted lines, the skirt ending in a short train. They each had a shoulder corsage of orchids.

The club was effectively decorated with Christmas greens, berries, and lighted tapers. The palm room, where the guests danced, was decorated with garlands of evergreens. Shortly after midnight a delicious buffet supper was served.

Among the guests were Miss Betty Hutchinson, Miss Marty Barrows, Miss Betty Angus, Miss Mary Winifred Brown, Miss Gladys Broz, Miss Sylvine Clagett, Miss Betty Marsh, Miss Randolph Richardson, Miss Mary Jane Stanley, Miss Louise Waller, Miss Barbara Baker, Miss Kay Pearson, Miss Marjorie Walsh, Miss Betsy Simpson, Miss Mary Senate Howes, Miss Katherine Friant, Miss Mary Ellen Cremen, Miss Margaret Coter, Miss Mary Patterson, Miss Julie Koester, Miss Margaret Speir, Miss Frances Glover, Miss Janet Hartz, Mrs. W. # Deb's Diary

DEAR DIARY:

While in the thick of F street shopping enthusiasts and all but weighed down by packages—whom should I run into but Katherine Harrison—who was, oh, so smart in her brown outfit and proceeding along just as nonchalant and unbothered by the appalling hustling and bustling.

Another old-fashioned pastime (paste time, too, for that matter) that is rapidly regaining popularity, is clipping and scrapbooking. The most recent to apply shears to printed matter with an eye to saving is Dick Johnson, who carefully cut out some interesting items and artistically fixed them to some bright yellow paper. After exhibiting his handiwork to a chosen few, he tucked it away.

Margaret Cotter—whose way with the saddle horses we all admire and envy—and who is simply devoted to those grand animals, had on the most unusual "thing" the other day. It was a chain of miniature hunting horns, bits and crystal-covered colored horses worn across the neck of her frock.

Four Girls Arrive From Vassar Today

Washington Cathedral Distributes Millions of Cards Depicting Religious Art Masterpieces of the Ages

Raphael Picture Most Popular Design This Year

They Are Sent Annually to Various States and Foreign Countries.

By Elisabeth Ellicott Poe.

MORE THAN five million Christmas cards, each a reproduction of Christian art suggesting the real spirit of Christmas, have been distributed by Washington Cathedral in the last few years. Thus have the Cathedral Christmas cards reflected the real significance of the Holy Nativity through the medium of the religious art of the ages.

About a half million of the cards, arranged in attractive sets of 12, have been mailed from Alban Hill this year. The beautiful boxes have gone not only to the States of the Union but to many foreign lands as well where friends of Washington Cathedral have formed the habit of using these cards for their seasonal greetings. The cards are not put on sale, but those using them make free-will offerings for the work of the Cathedral.

Many schools of Christian art are represented in each year's choice, carefully selected by a special committee of Cathedral officials from those masterpieces of the ages that have some phase of the Nativity story as their central theme. This year Raphael's beautiful "Madonna of the Chair" has proven to be the most popular card.

Cathedral Views Included.

The series includes one or two views of the Cathedral. One is of the Twelfth Century Norman Gateway to the Bishop's Garden in the Cathedral Close and the text on the card is taken from a carol, "Upon the Soleum Midnight Hour," written by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, and is as follows:

"All peace on earth and joy abound
On high let glory ring,
'Tis Christmas day for all on earth,
The birthday of the King."

When the trend to semi-pagan, cheap and occasionally art and legend in questionable taste in Christmas greeting cards was called to the attention of Washington Cathedral some years ago, Bishop Freeman and his associates decided that it was well within the missionary purpose of the Cathedral Foundation to take the initiative in offering Christmas cards emphasizing the sacred significance of the Holy Nativity.

An artistic series of cards of this character were offered first several years ago to a selected list of members of the National Cathedral Association and other friends of the Cathedral. The response proved there was a demand for Christmas cards bearing remembrances of the event that occurred in an humble Bethlehem stable. From this beginning, the Cathedral's distribution of Christmas cards has increased nearly 20-fold.

Madonna and Child Theme.

Naturally, Christian art in its Christmas mood found the Madonna and Child theme a great source of inspiration. Especially to the Italian people, painting was as true an expression of the faith within them as music and great Cathedrals. Art has ever been the handmaid of religion and christian artists found a favorite topic in the Christmas story. Most artists of the Middle Ages painted at least one Madonna picture and often were successful in having a series of Madonna pictures outlive their other works.

The Cathedral Christmas card which illustrates this story is the famous painting "Madonna, Child Jesus and St. John," by Botticelli, the great Florentine painter who departed from his usual secular themes to make this appealing group. It has a sweet simplicity and charm of its own. Another Raphael in the set besides the world renowned "Madonna of the Chair" recalls that his Madonnas range from the fair-haired young matrons of his early painting to the dark-haired later ones. His Madonna delineation reached its height, of course, in the famous Sistine Madonna.

A novel card in this year's set is silhouetted in black and white showing Mary and The Child and St. Joseph in the Manger at night. It is very effective with its simple legend "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Still another note is struck in the card called "The First Christmas," by Lerolle, in which is depicted the adoration of the shepherds at the manger side. The scene is strongly portrayed and its dramatic elements upheld.

An Exquisite Version.

Another famous painting "Madonna di Milano," is utilized for the second Botticello. Here the great master has made an appealing mother and child scene, the beauty of which grows on one.

That the Madonna theme is one that attracts artists of every realm and creed is brought out in the two cards bearing reproductions of paintings by Bartholome Murillo, the great Spanish master. Murillo has used the sentiment and great love for beauty and grace for which he is renowned in "The Holy Family," which for centuries has appealed so to the hearts of the people. He painted a number of Madonnas and all have earnest faces and are dark-eyed and dark-haired young matrons. His renderings of child life being always most happy, his Christ Child pictures possess a charming mixture of divine and human expression. The second Murillo card shows the Madonna in a more conventional costume of rich red velvet and the Christ Child is about a year old, older than in most Madonna and child pictures.

Botticelli's "Madonna, Child Jesus and St. John" is one of the most popular themes in the series of Christmas cards commemorating Christ, an art which the Washington Cathedral distributes annually. Most of these cards bear reproductions of famous paintings of the Madonna.

Author in City to Collect Data for Historical Play

Dr. Barbara Ring Writing Fourth Work, Dramatization of Colombia's History, for Presentation in Miami on Pan-American Day.

TEACHING history to those who don't know it, and entertaining those who do, is one of the best functions of dramatic art, in the belief of Dr. Barbara Ring, of Arlington, Mass., and Miami, Fla.

And by way of proving it, Dr. Ring has written a number of historical plays depicting the development of countries south of the United States.

For the last three years her plays have been presented on Pan-American Day under the auspices of the city of Miami. Another will be given this spring, and it was in regard to the coming play that Dr. Ring recently came to Washington to consult officials of the Pan-American Union.

At the Mayflower Hotel, she discussed her plays and told about how she came to write the first dramatic presentation for Pan-American Day.

Studied Life of Bolivar.

"One of the most interesting characters in history, according to my way of thinking, was Simon Bolivar, the Venezuelan patriot who came to be known as the 'liberator of South America,'" she said. "I had done research in regard to his life and work and had supplemented my study with a trip to Venezuela, before a friend suggested to civic leaders in Miami that I was prepared to write a pageant on the life of Bolivar."

Dr. Ring's interest in Bolivar and her historical research, however, were not alone responsible for her being eventually solicited to write the pageant. She had studied dramatic composition at Harvard in Prof. Baker's widely-known "47 Workshop." And she had written a number of one-act, and longer, plays.

So when she set out to dramatize the career of Simon Bolivar, she had two sources from which to draw—her knowledge of history and her knowledge of playright technique.

"I'm sorry to say that first presentation fell more into the realm of the pageant than the play," she said, "and I loath pageants. But the audience seemed to enjoy it, and the success of that performance led to an entirely different approach and the use of more dialogue and less pantomime for the play for the next year."

(As a token of appreciation for this play-pageant, the Pan-American Union decorated Dr. Ring later.)

Mexico's History Dramatized.

Her next play, called "The White Gods," was a dramatization of the history of Mexico from the landing of Cortez at Vera Cruz.

"That subject, also, required a tremendous amount of research," she said. "I went to Mexico and spent a number of months studying there and also managed to buy some codices (books of Indian picture writing), from which suitable and authentic representations of Indian apparel of the past could be designed."

Last year her third play, "Cuba Libre," a dramatization of the history of Cuba, was given with much success and created such a wide interest that the play is to be repeated this year.

And now, Dr. Ring is working on her fourth historical play to be presented April 14 (Pan-American Day), 1935.

"It is to be a dramatization of the history of Colombia," she said. "I have already worked out the first part of the play, but I still have much to do before it is finished. In order to get every detail correct, I am going down to Colombia in February. I shall probably complete the play while I am in Cartagena or Bogota."

Auditorium Seats 14,000.

The play, in which a number of students from the University of Miami take part, will be given in an auditorium seating 14,000 persons.

"I am particularly happy in doing this type of work because the auditorium is always filled. This is proof many persons are interested in learning more about our Southern neighbors. Then, too, I feel the plays promulgate a greater sympathy between the people of North and South America."

Dr. Ring's experiences have been as varied as those of almost any person, turned playwright. A doctor of medicine, she has been an important part of the staff of the Ring Sanatorium (of which her husband is head) in Arlington, Mass. Although she is no longer engaged in active practice as a physician, she is treasurer of the corporation and principal of the training school of the Ring Sanatorium.

What Today Means

"Sagittarius."

IF DECEMBER 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. until noon, from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 12:15 to 2:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m.

Affectionate demonstration and good-natured teasing can be expected on this December 21 from family and friends. If you accept things good-naturedly as they occur, you should find at the end of it that it has been a very enjoyable one. Married and engaged couples, and those amorously inclined, to avoid creating a sense of irritability will do well to show no sign of impatience over tardiness or protracted delays which are likely to occur.

If December 21 is your birthday, and you are of the fair sex, you are essentially a home-loving character, but with sufficient stamina to be able to face the world successfully if forced to earn your own livelihood.

You are either very mathematical or artistic. If the latter, painting or music may prove the medium through which you will make an enviable reputation. Teaching, bookkeeping, secretarial work, as well as short-story writing, may also enable you to find agreeable employment. Marriage will probably be the best means through which to find the greatest amount of contentment.

The child born on December 21, when it arrives at elementary school age, should be taught that school discipline must be observed and complaining about it at home will do no good. Its parents should cooperate 100 per cent with its teachers, if satisfactory results are to be had.

If a man and December 21 is your natal day, you probably possess an unusual amount of public spirit, and take a keen interest in either religion or politics. You should have the ability to express yourself in a most convincing manner. The courtroom or pulpit, as well as the lecture platform and stage, offer excellent opportunities for the exercising of your talents.

Belief Prodigies 'Burn Out' Early Exploded by New York Educator

THE PREVALENT belief that child prodigies "burn out" early, coming to no good end, has been exploded by a prominent educator, Samuel Goldberg.

The child with astounding mentality, far from losing his brilliance at an early age, retains it as he matures, according to a recent article by Mr. Goldberg in the New York Herald Tribune. Not satisfied with his own research as a member of the educational clinic of the College of the City of New York, the author of the article has made a symposium of the findings of leading psychologists.

This symposium points out that not only does the exceptionally brilliant child retain his brilliance, but actually is stronger physically than the average child. The prodigies also rate higher than the average in trustworthiness, social attitudes, character tests and personality tests, it is said.

Nor is there any basis for the belief that prodigies are more limited than the average in interests, the symposium indicates.

Persons who look upon exceptionally brilliant youngsters as unfortunate have taken too seriously the publicity given extremely rare and isolated cases, Mr. Goldberg states in his article.

Even in those few cases the failure to attain the expected has not been due to any arrest of mental development, but to a lack of social and emotional adjustment, the article further points out.

And many times, Mr. Goldberg continues, the child prodigy is later regarded as a defeated adult simply because he fails to amass a fortune or surround himself with luxury or attain a high professional position.

"It should be obvious that vocational placement and success, so-called, are conditioned by incalculable factors other than mentality," says Mr. Goldberg.

What Can Wife Do With Husband Who Lies About Pay Check?

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: What do you think of a man who lies about his pay check? My husband lies about his. Should I let him know that I know he makes more than he tells me he does? I'll appreciate your advice.

CHEATED.

She Can't Do Much.

DEAR CHEATED: I think the man who lies about his pay check is suffering from social maladjustment, which expresses itself in fear and distrust of his fellowman. In keeping a presumably secret margin of his earnings for himself he is trying, I suppose, to throw up an additional bulwark of protection between himself and necessity of self-denial. The person who is unwilling to practice necessary self-denial is cowardly and immature.

• • • •

I have never known of an instance where much good was served by confronting a liar with his lie. I doubt if letting your husband know you are aware of his deceit would change the vital aspect of the situation much. What you seek, of course, is fair play. But the husband intrinsically averse to fair play can seldom, if ever, be coerced by his wife into observing the rules of the game.

• • • •

If your husband could be inspired to question himself: "Why do I believe it necessary to lie to my wife about my income?" the answer to which only an able psychiatrist could supply; if he could find the strength of character and the objective honesty to accept the truth thus afforded; and if he could then proceed to develop compensatory traits of conduct to overcome his subjective weakness, real purpose might be served in bringing your discovery into the open.

• • • •

Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" will be sung by the Washington Choral Society at a special candlelight service at 4:30 o'clock today in the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G street northwest.

This Nightgown Is Simple, Becoming and Easily Made

Pattern No. 756.

A DAINTY nightgown is a luxury all women love. And it is one of those nice luxuries that can be indulged in because pretty nightgowns are easily and inexpensively made.

This one, for instance, has only five pieces (including the belt and pocket) in this version of the pattern. The pieces go together so very simple that it almost seems like a miracle. And the finished nightgown, with its youthful ruffle, is very becoming and a pleasant change from the stereotyped V-neck variety.

The pattern is cut in small (32 to 34), medium (36 to 38), and large (40 to 42) sizes. The medium size requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

Girl Reserves Will Hold Song Service Sunday

"Why the Chimes Rang" to Be Presented Again at Barker Hall.

"WHY THE CHIMES RANG" will be presented again by the Girl Reserves at 4:30 p. m. Sunday in Barker Hall of the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

The carols "Hush, My Dear" (Southern mountain melody); "The Christmas Rose" (Catalonian); the "Westminster Carol" (English); "Bring a Torch," "Jeanette," "Isabella" (French); "March of the Kings" (French) and "Gloria Patri" (Palestrina) will be sung by a choir of 40 junior high school Girl Reserves.

Assisting with the music will be 35 members of the Girl Reserves Glee Club, who will sing from the balcony during the service. The club will sing a Swedish Christmas chorale and "The Nativity Song" (old Latin), by Lucy Plympton.

Sigma Tau Lambda Convention.

SIGMA TAU LAMBDA Fraternity, a national organization having chapters in Washington and Baltimore, will open its annual convention at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Kennedy-Warren.

Immediately following the sessions, a banquet will be held in the main dining salon when the members of the ooard of trustees and the board of regents will be installed.

The convention will close with a dance from 9 to 1 o'clock tomorrow night.

Each year since its organization in March, 1926, Sigma Tau Lambda has held its convention and reunion at Christmas time.

Lecture on India.

BURTON HOLMES will lecture on "The Glamour of Netherland India" before the Geographic Society at 8:15 o'clock tonight at Constitution Hall.

Motion pictures used to illustrate the lecture will include views of a sailing trip to many of the islands of the East Indies, including Sumatra and the Celebes. The wild and primitive life of the little-known island of Nias and scenic Bali and Java also will be described.

Club Reelects Miss Corwin.

NEWLY ELECTED officers of the Montgomery County Soroptimist Club are Miss Blanche A. Corwin, of Rockville, reelected president; Miss Anna Rhinehardt, of Kensington, first vice president; Mrs. Dorothy Stewart Schott, of Rockville, second vice president; Mrs. Winona Reed, of Chevy Chase, recording secretary; Mrs. Betsy E. Scott, of Rockville, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Helen Schaeffer, of Chevy Chase, treasurer.

SHY CINDERELLA

By WILSON COLLISON

Lillian and Anne, two jobless chorus girls posing as mother and daughter, have hired out as housekeepers to Jimmie Grenville, whose wife has left him. Jimmie only vaguely suspects that there is something unusual about this mother-and-daughter team. His friend, Colin, on seeing Anne, confirms that idea.

IT would be better for her to get a fresh pot of coffee, the cups and saucers, and not make two trips upstairs.

She went into the kitchen and then upstairs with the tray. When she arrived at Mr. Grenville's door she saw that it was open. Mr. Grenville was sitting in the chair before the window and Mr. Belden had thrown himself on the bed and was smoking a pipe which smelled like burning straw.

Anne Was Relieved.

Anne tapped upon the door casing. Mr. Grenville turned and smiled and said, "Come in."

Anne went in. She said, feeling slightly embarrassed, for Mr. Belden seemed to be looking through her, "I've brought more coffee, sir."

Mr. Grenville said, "Fine. Will you have a cup, Colin?"

Mr. Belden said soberly, "Thanks."

Anne cleared the other tray away and placed the second one upon the table. Mr. Grenville had eaten all the waffles. Anne felt a great sense of relief. Lillian must have made them so that they tasted all right, or Mr. Grenville wouldn't have eaten them.

Mr. Belden said with a wicked twinkle in his eyes, "Is this Miss Martin, Jimmie?"

Mr. Grenville looked at him a little reproachfully and answered, "Yes, this is Miss Martin. Anne."

Mr. Belden sat up on the bed and said, "How do you do, Anne. I hope you'll do well by this fellow. He's been starving to death for weeks."

Anne said nothing. She smiled faintly. She glanced at Mr. Grenville. He was looking at her.

Frank Admiration.

She said, with the tray in her hands, "Will there be anything more, sir?"

He answered, "No."

She went down the stairs.

After he was sure that the maid had got beyond hearing, he said, "Boy, that's a pretty girl!"

"Didn't I tell you," said Jimmie, with a note of enthusiasm in his voice.

"Of course, you know," said Colin, "that that girl is no more a maid than you are."

"What do you mean, she isn't a maid?" Jimmie demanded, fiercely.

"Don't try to make me think you're a sap," said Colin. "I've been looking at servants for years, and I've never seen a maid who looked like that girl."

"Why isn't it possible for a maid to be pretty?" Jimmie asked without much conviction.

Colin smiled pityingly. "She may be hiring out as a maid now and she may have hired out as one before, but she certainly wasn't born to be a maid."

"What does her mother look like?" Colin asked abruptly.

Jimmie got out of his chair and went to the window and stood looking out at the falling rain. He puffed at his cigarette and remained silent, while Colin surveyed his back with obvious suspicion in his eyes.

It seemed to Jimmie that he couldn't tell Colin what her mother looked like. Colin would want to go into the kitchen and see her mother, and Jimmie had made up his mind that he wasn't going to let Colin embarrass the new servants.

"What does her mother look like?" asked Colin sharply. "Answer or I'll hit you with this cup."

Jimmie said, without turning around to look at Colin, "She's quite tall."

"Yeah?" said Colin. "Go on from that point."

"Quite tall," said Jimmie. "In fact, much taller than Anne, and lighter. I suppose you'd call her a blonde."

"Don't you know a blonde when you see one?" Colin asked grimly.

"Well, yes," said Jimmie. "She's a blonde."

"A tall blonde and a little brunette," said Colin. "You're a fine guy. No wonder you hired them without references."

Mother Pretty, Too.

"They're doing well," said Jimmie, a bit sheepishly. "Mrs. Martin is a good cook. And Anne has got the whole house cleaned and she's going to rearrange this room. It's out of balance."

"You don't say?" said Colin, sarcastically.

"Of course, it may prove a little embarrassing to me to have two pretty women working in my house," said Jimmie.

"Oh, so the blonde's pretty, too!"

"I suppose you'd call her pretty."

"How old do you think she is?" Colin inquired.

"Oh, I don't know," said Jimmie, evasively.

Colin said suddenly, "I'll run down and get a glass of water. I want a drink of water."

Jimmie whirled around. Colin was disappearing through the door. Jimmie heard him clattering down the stairs. Jimmie ran after him.

Jimmie, as he went down the stairs after Colin, felt a sense of consternation. He called, "Stay out of the kitchen!"

Lillian Was Smoking.

Jimmie said, "Don't bolt in like that! You'll frighten them to death."

Colin stopped before he pushed open the door and gave Jimmie a look. Then he very carefully and somewhat mockingly adjusted his tie and smoothed his hair. Jimmie glared at him and wanted to swear at him.

Anne was at the table in the dinette, eating her breakfast. Lillian was making marks on a sheet of paper and smoking a cigarette. Anne looked suddenly horrified, and turned pale. Lillian swung around in her chair and with amazing swiftness ducked the cigarette into a coffee cup.

Colin Was Startled.

Colin said very gravely, "I'd like a drink of water."

Anne leaped from her chair and went to the huge electric refrigerator. Lillian gave Colin one look and continued writing words upon the sheet of paper.

Wanted! Dolls To Make Needy Children Happy

Bring Them to The Post's Santa Substation; Some Gift Suggestions.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

DOLLS, dolls, dolls! Wanted, even more dolls, any kind, rag, rubber or china, old dolls or new. Thousands of needy children are waiting and watching for Santa, and Santa in turn is waiting and watching for your contribution. His load is heavy this year, and his budget is already strained to the breaking. But the jolly little fellow chuckles because he knows that Washingtonians will see that he has enough gifts to go around, and that not a single fireside in the city is going to be desolate on Christmas Day.

In a recent interview Santa suggested that you bring or send what toys you can muster to his substation, sponsored by The Post at 1418 H street. And if you can't come, he says, just call the Terminal Cab Co., and they'll call for your contribution and deliver it.

Most Girls Requesting Dolls.

Dolls, explained Santa, are particularly needed. Most of his letters from little girls read, "Please, Santa, won't you bring me a doll? I do so want one more than anything!"

So, of course, Santa is on the outlook for dolls. He suggests that you rummage through the discarded toys in the attic and see what you can find there, or when you purchase toys for your own brood, pick up just one little something for some other child who isn't as blessed as yours.

Besides dolls, he needs books. There are loads of children between 12 and 15 who are just at the age they want to read, but if they haven't the books——. There must be books in your house, dozens of them, that you really don't need any more. Here's the grandest time of all to give them to someone who'd really apprecia e them.

Santa beamed when he spoke of his babies, "toddlers," he calls them. "Why they have to have rattles, balls, tops, toy animals, blocks, or it just won't be Christmas for them!" he says.

Shiny Noses and Their Causes.

Count noses sometimes and see how many are shiny. Trace the cause of the shine and in nine cases out of ten you'll find it's the result of wrong facial treatments. The skin is either too oily, or else so dry it won't retain a powdery finish.

The majority of women who do not give their skin the proper care, haven't a complete treatment line to work with. They might have this or that cream or lotion, but not the proper follow-ups.

No use denying that any woman with vanity the size of a mustard seed would simply love a kit which contains not only a complete treatment set, but make-up as well. But when you start looking around for something like this, you'll be surprised to see how difficult it is to find.

However, in an F street store, there's a certain pink cosmetic counter given over to the display of one of our best known cosmeticians. Here you'll find a set which includes four essential creams, astringent, skin tonic, rouge, lipstick, powder, mascara—and a small bottle of "no-shine" which is proof against shiny noses.

The set is exquisitely packaged, and complete in every way.

Black and White Scarfs.

A vast number of women wear black. They find that it is a becoming color which is practical for any occasion. If they choose to be utterly devastating according to a formula of an American actress, they will contrast this black with a touch of white. A scarf, for instance.

A local store has white silk scarfs reduced for the time being from $1 to 79 cents. They also have black and white appliqued initials which you can have sewn to your scarf.

Open-Faced Pies Offer a Change From the Commonplace 2-Crust

Don't always obscure a pie filling with a blanket of crust, whipped cream or meringue. Consider how much more attractive your cranberry pie will be if the top is of lattice rather than in one golden-brown sheet. The same is true of a lemon sponge left free of meringue, or a chocolate, whose surface is dotted, rather than evenly spread with whipped cream.

The Effect Will Be Like Shedding Cloak to Show Dress.

By Dorothea Duncan.

DON'T ALWAYS hide the face of a pie behind a double door. Use your own ingenuity and let your guests get a peep at its inside as it is served. There isn't any reason why a pie shouldn't show the color of its filling once in a while, as it does add to the charm of the picture it creates.

Do away with the top crust entirely or in part, and you will find that you can devise many ways to make your pies take on new appearances. The effect will be something like shedding a cloak to reveal a gay and beautiful dress. Take the criss-cross cranberry pie, for example. The scarlet filling peeps out between the creamy latticework to give a startling contrast of light and dark that is far more entrancing than a flat, golden-brown expanse of crust. Leave the smooth, satiny surface of a chocolate pie partially uncovered. Instead of covering the rich brown filling entirely with a flat, uninteresting topping of whipped cream, pile the cream in scattered, fluffy mounds. A lemon pie likewise decorated with little splashes of snowy meringue offers a pretty color contrast of gold and white.

A Delightful Change.

Open-faced pies, that reveal their fillings entirely, offers a delightful change from the two-crust variety. The filling may be richer, too, because of the absence of the top crust. Deep dish apple pie, delicately seasoned with nutmeg and cinnamon, and generously flavored with butter and brown sugar, will make a perfect ending for any meal. Light, frothy lemon or orange sponge pie will create a fervor even after a substantial dinner.

English Deep-Dish Apple Pie.

6 to 8 tart, juice apples (greenings are excellent)
¼ cup water
1 cup sugar (half brown and half white)
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg, if desired

Invert a heavy china cup or custard cup in the center of a baking dish 2 or 3 inches deep. Line the sides of the dish with strips of pie paste, letting the paste come a little above the edge of the dish. Do not put any paste on the bottom. Fill with apples, pared, cored and sliced. Add sugar, spice, and water and dot with bits of butter. Cover the dish with pie paste, slashed to allow the steam to escape, and pinch its edges to the edge of the paste that lines the sides of the dish. Bake for three-quarters of an hour, or until the apples are thoroughly cooked, in a hot oven (450 degrees F. for ten minutes, then 425 degrees F. for 30 minutes). When serving, slip the knife under the cup to allow the confined juice to mix with the apple. Serve hot with hard sauce.

3 squares unsweetened chocolate, cut in pieces
3½ cups milk
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¾ teaspoon salt
1 egg, or two egg yolks, slightly beaten
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 cup cream whipped
½ cup raisins, or ½ cup dates, seeded and chopped.

Criss - Cross Cranberry Is an Interesting Illustration.

3 tablespoons flour
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 baked 9-inch pie shell
½ cup nut meats, coarsely broken.

Add chocolate to three cups of milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Sift cornstarch, flour, sugar and salt together; mix with remaining one-half cup milk and add to chocolate mixture, stirring occasionally. Add butter and remove from fire. Add egg and vanilla and beat well. Turn into pie shell. Before serving dot with mounds of sweetened whipped cream to which fruit and nuts have been added.

Apricot Crisscross Pie.

1½ tablespoons quick cooking tapioca
¼ teaspoon salt.
2 cups dried apricots, cooked and drained
½ cup pineapple juice
1-3 cup sugar
1 cup hot apricot juice
½ cup crushed pineapple, drained

Combine tapioca, sugar and salt. Add apricots and juice and let stand 15 minutes or while pastry is being made. Line a 9-inch pie pan with pastry, rolled to one-eighth thickness. Add pineapple and pineapple juice to apricot mixture and turn into pie shell. Arrange lattice of pastry strips across top. Moisten edge of pie with cold water and finish with arrow strip of pastry. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 10 minutes; then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees F.) and bake 30 minutes longer. Serve with or without sweetened whipped cream.

Bureau Solves Date Problem At University

THE PROBLEM of loneliness among college students is being solved successfully at Toronto University by means of a date bureau operated by the editors of the undergraduate daily, The Varsity.

In order that there may be no mistakes in pairing off couples for social and cultural events, full information concerning tastes and personality is sought of each applicant. Not only the usual statistics concerning age, height, weight and color of hair is sought, but the applicants are asked such questions as:

Would you be willing to share expenses for the first date?

What amusements do you prefer?

A fee of 10 cents is charged each applicant. This helps meet the expenses of the bureau.

Tuesday Club Gives Program Of Carol Music

Old English Songs Given at University Club by Musicians.

The spirit of Christmas centuries ago in England was reproduced last night at the University Club when the Tuesday Evening Music Club, under the direction of Florence Howard, gave a program of Christmas carols. Marjorie Davis was accompanist and Evelyn Scott, violinist. The carolers wore old English costumes against a background of lighted Christmas trees and a backdrop designed by Hugo Inden.

The lounge in which the program was presented was filled to capacity, many guests having entertained at dinner parties beforehand. Among the hosts were Dr. and Mrs. William A. Kinnan, with a party of eight; Dr. and Mrs. James G. McKay, party of four; Mr. Appleton P. Clark, jr., party of seven; Mrs. Marvin A. Custis, party of six; Dr. and Mrs. Hugh B. Meloy, party of four; Mr. Arthur M. Shepard, party of three; Mr. Albert E. Stephan, host to eight, and Col. Burke H. Sinclair, party of four. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley P. Smith, Commander F. W. Southworth, Mr. Lewis Lofton Moneyway and Mr. Alvin C. Birdsall also were hosts.

Mr. Moneyway, chairman of the entertainment committee, was host on behalf of the club at a buffet supper for the artists after the program.

Chas. Newman To Wed Sunday

Son of Washingtonian to Marry Nancy Loewi in New York.

Miss Nancy Loewi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fisher Loewi, of Woodmere, Long Island and Lake Placid, N. Y., will be married Sunday to Mr. Charles Malvin Newman, son of Mrs. Sidney H. Reizenstein, of Washington, and the late Mr. Herbert B. Newman, at Sherry's, by the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise. A reception will follow.

Miss Joan Alice Loewi, sister of the bride-to-be, will be maid of honor. The flower girl will be Miss Mary Ann Newman, sister of the bridegroom.

Mr. Walter Kahn will be best man for Mr. Newman, and the ushers will be the bridegroom's cousin, Mr. Herbert C. Newman, and his brother, Mr. Malvin Claude Newman, and Mr. Andrew William Loewi, and Mr. Roger William Loewi, brothers of the bride-to-be.

Counties Ask For Control Of Tax Share

Commissioners Vote in Maryland Against Reassessment.

Committee Will Draft Gasoline Levy Bill for Group.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 20.—Resolutions opposing a general reassessment in 1935 and favoring county control of 1.5 cents of the State gasoline tax were adopted today by the Maryland County Commissioners Association at its meeting in Annapolis.

The gasoline tax resolution was adopted by a vote of 13 counties to one, with three not voting. At the last session of the Legislature, 1.5 cents of the State tax of 4 cents was allotted to the counties for upkeep of the lateral roads. Actual expenditure of this money was left in the hands of the State roads commission, who were to spend it on roads recommended by the county commissioners. Since then, the commission has reported that a number of counties have overdrawn their allotments and may have no more money for a year or more.

Nine counties voted against the reassessment, which was due in 1932 and postponed until next year. A resolution to make the county assessor wholly responsible to the county commissioners, by giving the county board power to appoint him, also was adopted by the association. The vote on this measure was 11 for county control, one against, and three not voting. A motion that the association work for legislation returning fines for motor vehicle violations to the counties where they were collected, to support the county courts, was carried by acclamation.

Vote by Counties.

The vote by counties on the proposal that the gas tax revenues go directly to the county boards was: Allegany, for; Anne Arundel, for; Baltimore County, for; Caroline, for; Carroll, for; Cecil, for, with the county commissioner against; Frederick, for; Kent, against; Montgomery, no vote; Prince Georges, no vote; Queen Anne, for; Wicomico, for; Washington, for; Howard, for; Harford, for, and Talbot, for the change.

The vote on the reassessment resolution was: Allegany, no vote; Anne Arundel, against; Baltimore, against; Carolina, against; Montgomery, no vote; Prince Georges, no vote; Howard, for; Talbot, against; Carroll, for; Cecil, against; Frederick, for; Kent, against; Queen Anne, against; Wicomico, against; Washington, for, and Harford, against.

On the resolution favoring greater county control of the assessor, the vote was: Anne Arundel, no vote; Baltimore, for; Caroline, for; Carroll, for; Cecil, for; Frederick, for; Howard, no vote; Harford, for; Kent, for; Montgomery, no vote; Prince Georges, against; Queen Anne, for; Wicomico, for; Washington, no vote, and Talbot, for.

Committee Named.

One man from each of the counties present at the meeting yesterday was appointed to a special committee which will consider the whole reassessment project and report back to the association later. The members are: Temporary chairman, Thomas J. Cullimore, Anne Arundel; Allegany, Nelson W. Russler; Baltimore, James Kelly; Caroline, J. Frank Lane; Carroll, Charles Melvin; Talbot, Roy M. Harrison; Frederick, A. H. Derr; Kent, G. E. Leary; Montgomery, Frank H. Karns; Prince Georges, Joseph H. Blandford; Queen Anne, Joseph George; Wicomico, Carroll Bounds; Washington, John Ankeny; Howard, H. Grafton Penny, and Harford, C. C. Spencer.

Mr. Blanford, of the Prince Georges County commissioners, introduced a resolution favoring a State income tax to take some of the tax burden from real and personal property. His motion was lost for want of a second. J. H. C. Legge, of Queen Anne, president of the association, warned the meeting against the proposal made by the State planning commission to alter present counties into more homogeneous administrative units.

A gasoline tax bill meeting the approval of the association will be drafted by a committee of nine to be appointed later by Mr. Legge. This committee also will draft the bill to give the counties a full-time, county-paid assessor. Another committee will be appointed to call on the State roads commission for a statement of how much money was spent on county roads, when it was spent, and how.

Court Aids Get Raise In Berkeley County

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Berkeley County Court here yesterday approved, by a 2-1 vote, the restoration of 10 per cent decreases in salaries, voluntarily taken three years ago for economy.

The increases, affecting subordinate executives in the offices of the two courts and that of the sheriff, came in the course of budget estimates submitted by those departments to the court for the coming year.

High School Gives Play.

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Margaret Brent High School gave a Christmas play at the school near Helen tonight, which had a large attendance. After the play a general entertainment was held for the pupils and school patrons, with singing of Christmas carols.

Insurers Urge Nice to Support Reform in Law

Would Forbid Public Office Holders in State From Selling Policies.

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (AP).—A delegation of insurance men, representing all branches of the industry and various sections of the State, today asked Gov.-elect Harry W. Nice to use his influence for the passage of a law to prohibit public office holders from selling insurance—a practice they called widespread.

The delegation also suggested Nice appoint as insurance commissioner a man with experience in the insurance business, and procure a law which would require such appointments in the future.

Many of the delegation's suggestions were similar to planks in the Governor-elect's platform.

The Suggestions.

Included were:

That the State insurance department be required to make a complete inventory of every out-of-State company applying for a license to do business in Maryland, rather than accept the company's own statement of the book value of assets and its declaration of solvency.

That deputy insurance commissioners be appointed and assigned to the natural geographical divisions of the State—such as the Eastern Shore, southern and western Maryland—rather than a single deputy in Baltimore.

That the authority of the commissioner be increased to include the power to summon books and papers and to swear witnesses.

That the license fee for dealers be increased.

Delegation Personnel.

Members of the delegation were: Richard Dallam, Bel Air; J. Edward Cochran, Hagerstown; Avery Pukhall, Salisbury; Jesse W. Holmes, Cumberland, and B. S. Tongue, W. Stran McCurley, W. C. Carter, Warren K. Magruder, B. C. Thurman, Clayton Demarest, C. I. Jamieson and Jacob Gross, of Baltimore.

Nice told the committee that he would refer to its suggestions when drafting his message to the Legislature.

The Governor-elect conferred last night with Dr. R. V. Truitt, University of Maryland professor, with regard to conservation problems confronting the State. Nice said they did not discuss Truitt's possible appointment as conservation commissioner. He declared Dr. Truitt to have a "wonderful grasp of the problems facing the people of the tidewater area."

Yule Services Set At Leonardtown

Several Churches to Hold Christmas Eve Rites.

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Midnight service with communion and singing of Christmas carols will be held at St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Chapel here on December 24. The Rev. Jesse M. Woodrow is rector in charge.

Midnight mass will be celebrated at St. Aloysius' Catholic Church here, the Rev. Sheridan J. Knight celebrant.

Carol singing services will be held at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church here at 8 p. m. on December 24, after which visits will be made by the carol singers to other parts of this county. The Rev. Milton B. Crist is the rector.

The Leonardtown Volunteer Firemen have erected a 40-foot cedar tree in the park in the center of Leonardtown, which will be lighted each night for several weeks.

Price Made Chairman For Memorial Fund

Richmond, Va., Dec. 20 (AP).—James H. Price today was named chairman of the organization for the John W. Williams memorial fund, in memory of the late clerk of the House of Delegates. The fund will finance an annuity for the widow of Col. Williams. The House of Delegates and five former speakers, Harry R. Houston, Richard L. Brewer, jr., Thomas W. Ozlin, W. D. Cardwell and Judge Edwin P. Cox. Price, a former member of the House, now presides over the Senate as lieutenant governor.

Holiday Season Ushered In With 3-Act Comedy

'Along Came Peggy.'

Frostburg, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—The senior class play of Beall High School, an event which always marks the close of school for the Christmas vacation, this year called for two casts, selected, according to Mrs. M. Alice Kearsing, chairman of the faculty committee on dramatics, to give more members of the class an opportunity to portray dramatic ability.

The first presentation of "Along Came Peggy," was last night, with Gertrude Carter as Peggy, the heroine. Tonight the play was repeated and Patience Porter as Peggy, headed another complete change of cast.

Others making up the two casts were Rae Thomas and Margaret Winner, Francis Kenny and William Elvin, Marie Yates and Aleda Blair, George Eisentrout and Marshall Sterry, Eleanor Livinstone and Leona Edwards, Virginia Blank and Grace Whetstone Earl Meager and Walter Powell, John Brown and Max Robeson, Violet Jenkins and Thelma Dennison, Samuel Sacco and Charles Hill, Fern Griffith and Marian Yates, Llewella Sperry and Ruby Adams.

Five Arrested In Girl's Death

Conspiracy Charged Against Four Youths and Woman in West Virginia.

Beckley, W. Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Five persons, including a woman, were held today in connection with the death of Ella Barker, 18, who was shot to death Sunday at the home of an uncle at Artie.

They are Clovis Williams, 18; James Pugh, 18; Anderson Barker, jr., 19, cousin of the dead girl; George Posey, 20, and Mrs. Samantha Baker, her aunt.

The five were held on a warrant sworn out by Deputy Sheriff Jess Thompson charging that the group "conspired together and did feloniously shoot and kill" the girl, a resident of Lincoln County. Williams told officers the girl killed herself after threatening suicide.

John R. Lewis to Head American Legion Post

Students Hold Reading Test In Albemarle

Scottsville and Earlysville Win in Competition at Charlottesville.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Scottsville and Earlysville won in the annual reading contest conducted for the high schools of Albemarle County at Crozet last night. Each of the seven high schools sent a boy and a girl reader to compete.

The selections for this reading were made at the extension department at the University of Virginia.

Miss Mary Leake, of Scottsville, was awarded first place for girls and Miss Rose Moore, of Red Hill, second. Dwight Corey, of Earlysville, was the champion boy reader, while second honors went to Harry Kilpatrick, of Crozet.

The judges were Miss Isabel Allegree, Miss Marian Merritt and K. B. McCutcheon.

The contestants and their schools were:

Girls—Yates Carr, Meriwether Lewis; Rose Moore, Red Hill; Frances Munn, Greenwood; Nannie Sandridge, Crozet; Louis Huckstep, Stony Point; Mary Leake, Scottsville, and Willie Via, Earlysville.

Pythian Sisters Name Officers at Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Manhattan Temple, No. 8, Pythian Sisters, last night elected the following officers to serve during 1935:

Past chief, Genevieve Wagner; most excellent chief, Marie Franklin; excellent senior, Ada McColey; excellent junior, Edith Graham; manager, Grace Alderton; mistress of records and correspondence, Valma Biggs; mistress of finance, Irma Moore; protector, Licinda White; guard, Emma Smith; three-year trustee, Anna Jenkins; installing officer, Josephine Biggs; past correspondent, Ada McColey; representative, Fay Lee Burner; alternate, Martha Athey.

Classes Are Cut Short By Scarlet Fever Cases

Chambersburg, Pa., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—The Buchanan School was closed two days before the opening of the Christmas vacation period because of spread of scarlet fever among pupils.

Twenty children are under quarantine in town, a majority of them pupils at the school. Nine persons in nearby townships are under quarantine.

Post State Editor

Perhaps one of the oddest is the painting of artificial windows in barns. The custom first started during the days of superstition, when it was believed that to have many windows would allow the evil spirits to depart more easily and thereby insure good luck.

Five years ago Leonard Ramaciotti, of Hagerstown, Md., was stationed at the Pearl Harbor Naval Base in Hawaii, but why a postcard should have gone there when it was addressed to Hagerstown is a mystery to Hagerstown postal authorities.

The post card, which was mailed from Washington, November 26, has just reached him at his Hagerstown address. Post marks show that the card had taken the long journey to Hawaii and then returned to him in Hagerstown.

Petitions are being circulated in the vicinity of Luray, Va., requesting the game and inland fisheries commission to allow night gigging (fish spearing) in the Shenandoah River. It is contended that the raising and lowering the gates of the hydroelectro plants on the river has such an effect on the level of the water that the present gigging laws have become obsolete.

Report comes from Mingo, W. Va., that Peter Polveino had shot a rabbit and was in the act of skinning it. His shotgun was leaning against his body. His dog, running up, knocked over his gun, causing it to discharge into his left shoulder.

Old-timers of Westminster recall that the road dates to pre-Revolutionary times, when it was known as the "Salt road." It was used to transport salt from mines in New York to Baltimore.

The cobbled road was the third roadbed encountered, as a plank road was found beneath the present surface.

The skeleton of an Indian has been found by a Boonsboro, Md., hunter, partially buried in a cliff overhanging Antietam Creek near the State penal farm at Roxbury. The Indian, believed to have died early in the eighteenth century, was buried with his tomahawk and two arrowheads. The body had been interred, as was the custom, in a grave 3 feet by 2. The teeth showed a remarkable state of preservation, as there were only two cavities.

West Virginia Official Dies In Hospital

Appendicitis Is Fatal to State Commissioner George Watson.

Public Funeral Held for Fire Chief Killed in Line of Duty.

Fairmont, W. Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—George T. Watson, 53, outstanding coal, utility and business executive of this city, died today in a hospital at Charleston, in which city he had been residing since his appointment last year as State workmen's compensation commissioner. His death followed an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. Watson, a graduate of the State university, was a son of the late Sylvanus and Jane Fleming Watson, prominent northern West Virginia citizens. He served as general manager of the Fairmont & Clarksburg Traction Co. and of the West Virginia mines of the Consolidation Coal Co. He was formerly president of the local chamber of commerce and promoter of the Monongahela Valley Association.

Surviving are the widow, formerly Miss Elizabeth M. Bussing, of Cincinnati, and three children.

B. C. Downing, of Logan, today was appointed by Gov. H. G. Kump as acting compensation commissioner.

Services for J. S. Jackson.

Danville, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—A public funeral, attended by the mayor and members of the city council, was held tonight for James S. Jackson, assistant fire chief, who was electrocuted Tuesday night while combating a grocery store fire. The rites, at Shelton Memorial Presbyterian Church, were conducted by the Rev. Paul Hodge. Burial was in Leemont Cemetery, where Ramah Lodge of Masons conducted their service.

Mr. Jackson, 57, had been a member of the fire department 28 years. He leaves a daughter, his wife having died some years ago.

Other firemen with him in the smoke-filled interior suddenly saw his batter lamp go out, then they heard his voice:

Mrs. Alice Small Dies.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Mrs. Alice Gertrude Small, widow of Alexander J. Small, for years a well-known resident of the county, died yesterday at the home of Mrs. R. W. Mackreth, at Ivy, and the funeral was held today in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, at Ivy, the service being conducted by the rector, the Rev. Beverly T. White. Interment was in the church cemetery. Mrs. Small was a native of Devons, England, but had resided in Albemarle County for 50 years. She is survived by two daughters, Misses Marjorie and Elsie Small, who reside at the Small home, Locust Hill.

Miss Fretwell Is Dead at 80.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Miss Bettie L. Fretwell, member of a prominent family of Albemarle County, died yesterday at her home on Montrose avenue, Belmont, after an extended illness.

Miss Fretwell, a daughter of the late Thomas and Eveline (Brown) Fretwell, was 80 years of age. She was a sister of the late John T. Fretwell.

The funeral was held this afternoon at Mount Moriah Methodist Church, at White Hall, the service being conducted by the Rev. J. C. Johnson. Interment was in the family plot in the cemetery at the church.

I. W. Singers Dies.

Three days ago Mr. Singer, accompanied by his wife, came to Luray to assist his son-in-law, Carl Duncan, in the killing of three hogs. Overexertion is believed to have brought on apoplexy.

His wife and three daughters survive. Interment was in Green Hill Cemetery, Luray, today.

Burial for Mrs. Ward.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Burial will be in Hedgesville, near here, tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Ella Virginia Ward, 72, widow of Dr. E. A. Ward, who died Wednesday at her home in Hedgesville after five months' illness. She was a resident of Hedgesville 40 years. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Lawrence Lemaster and Mrs. Moses Robbins, of Hedgesville, and Mrs. Scott Rush, Winchester, Va.; and a sister, Miss Florence Oates, of Hedgesville.

Services Held for M. J. Orr.

Newburg, W. Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held this afternoon for Morgan J. Orr, 71, coal operator, who died Tuesday of pneumonia. He was paralyzed four months ago. Mr. Orr was a son of the late Maj. Hugh M. Orr, who served in the Union Army. The coal mining town of Hiorra was named for his family. Surviving are his widow and the following children: Mrs. Charles Goodbough and Mrs. F. H. Densmore, Newburg; Mrs. Anthony W. Cozad, Cumberland, Md.; Mrs. Hugh McConagia and Mrs. George Herman, Pittsburgh, and Dayton Orr.

Maryland Educator Upholds Scientific Work of the French

Mistaken Theory Blamed by Prof. Ford on 'Propaganda.'

Chestertown, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—The scientific work of Frenchmen has suffered in reputation in the United States and is not properly appreciated partly because of propaganda spread by American professors educated in Germany who have written text books under German influence, Lawrence C. DeN. Ford, associate professor of modern languages in Washington College and former faculty member of Dalhousie University at Halifax, told assembled members of the chemistry club of the local institution in an address today.

"Since France is less of an industrial country than Germany," he said, "and since the arts and letters are considered more important to Gallic civilization, the French public has failed itself to stress and advertise the genius of its native scientists. Consequently there has resulted, particularly in this country, an intensive publicity of Teuton achievement along scientific lines while little is known of the truly great work of Frenchmen.

"Moreover there is a mistaken notion over here that French science was once great, but that little has been done in recent years. To contradict this misconception it is only necessary to mention Nobel prize winners among French scientists from 1903 to 1928. Among them are four physicists, three chemists and four physiologists and medical scientists.

"Graduate schools in this country were originally modeled after the German idea, as witness Johns Hopkins University, a pioneer in this direction. The majority of early American scholars went to Germany for their training and returned impregnated with Teutonic ideas of scholarship. They naturally stressed the work of German scientists in their books and lectures and the idea that Germany was preeminent in this general field naturally followed.

"That such is not the case and that the few French men and women of scientific achievement known in this country are not exceptions to the rule may easily be proven by pointing out many Gallic scientists who have contributed largely to human welfare but who are comparatively unknown on this side of the Atlantic."

The speaker named more than 100 important French scientists who are not known here except to specialists in their respective lines, merely, he said, because France has taken them for granted and has not exploited their work while American scholars are talking about German achievements along similar lines.

A graduate of Columbia University, Prof. Ford has studied in France and is well known in Canada. He took his undergraduate degree at Hiram College.

Bell Attorneys Study Decision

Court Ruling in Poison Case Takes Counsel by Surprise.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 20 (AP).—Attorneys who defended Edward C. Bell, prominent Fredericksburg resident, on a wife poisoning charge, today continued to study the situation brought about when Bell was sent to the State Hospital at Marion for observation after the jury trying him had deadlocked. Bell arrived at Marion last night.

The order issued by Judge Frederick W. Coleman, on the ground that he should not release on bail or order another trial for a man after defense expert witnesses had declared him insane, took Bell's attorneys entirely by surprise.

Prosecutor Albert Bryan contemplates no action unless the State Hospital should declare Bell sane. In that case Bell will be subject to trial, the poisoning indictment still standing against him.

Albemarle Adds 35 Miles of Road

33 Bridges Built in Last Two Years.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—A preliminary report submitted yesterday to the Albemarle County Board of Supervisors by W. F. Goss, highway engineer, showed that during the two years from July 1, 1932, to July 1, 1934, 35 miles of hard surfaced road had been added to the county's road system.

During this period 33 wooden bridges have been built and 34 bridges repaired. Road work has included 35.82 miles of road surfaced or resurfaced, 22.45 miles new bituminous road built, and 19.17 miles of bituminous resurfaced. At present the county has 677.53 miles of road in its secondary system.

Funds spent during the two years totaled $236,913.57. A total of $95,364.14 has been used in maintenance, and $45,782.63 in PWA funds was used in construction.

Flames Take $50,000 Toll At Hancock

Fire Perils Business Section; Baltimore Church Wrecked.

Damage of $25,000 Is Estimated in Brantly Baptist Blaze.

Hancock, Md., Dec. 20 (AP).—The business section of Hancock early today was threatened by fire which wrecked the steel and brick hardware store building of Harry Exline and badly damaged the properties of Mrs. Etta Daniels and J. Ellis Grove adjoining. The loss was estimated at more than $50,000.

The fire raged during a high wind which carried blazing embers for several blocks, endangering a number of properties. The Exline building stood on a corner on the main street and housed the plant of the Hancock News, a weekly newspaper published by George C. Huber, which was destroyed.

During the fire gunshells stored in the Exline warehouse exploded, making the work of the firemen hazardous, but no one was injured. Fire companies from Hancock, Hagerstown and Berkeley Springs, with an abundant water supply, got the fire under control in less than two hours.

$25,000 Church Fire.

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (AP).—A four-alarm fire wrecked the interior of the Brantly Baptist Church here today and caused damage estimated at $25,000.

The fire broke out in a soft-coal bin in the church basement, firemen said, and probably was started by spontaneous combustion.

Trolley traffic was tied up and scores of office-bound Baltimoreans watched the firemen fight the blaze from extension ladders and hack holes in the roof of the 46-year-old building.

Two alarms were sounded shortly after the fire was discovered, and two more were turned in when it was feared the wind would whip the flames out of control.

The colored janitor of the church told firemen no one had been in the building since Sunday, but that a low-banked fire had been kept burning in the furnace.

Ministers Start Anticrime War In Dorchester

Action Follows Acquittal of Mrs. Melvina Rose in Murphy Slaying.

Cambridge, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—The Dorchester County Ministerial Association has called upon the people of Cambridge and Dorchester County "to help break up the wave of lawlessness which has swept this section recently."

The action followed the exoneration of Mrs. Melvina Rose, 50, in connection with the fatal shooting of James Murphy, 31, Cambridge trucker and son of William Murphy, former member of the Maryland House of Delegates.

Mrs. Rose was given her freedom in what was called an accidental shooting, after a coroner's jury heard 16 witnesses testify that there was no quarrel and no drinking at the Sandy Hill Country Club, where Mrs. Rose acted as hostess.

Proprietor Rearrested.

William Smith, proprietor of the inn, told of buying the pistol the day of the shooting and loading it without the knowledge of Mrs. Rose. He has been rearrested and is held in default of $1,000 bond in the Cambridge Jail on three charges of selling liquor and one of operating gambling devices.

The public statement, issued in the name of the officers of the Ministerial Association, composed of the Rev. O. B. Newton, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church South, president; the Rev. T. C. Mulligan, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Protestant Church, vice president, and the Rev. Theodore Fisher, of Immanuel Evangelical Church, secretary, declares that "it has meant the shedding of blood to arouse a sleeping community to the terrible moral conditions of the county." Referring to the President of the United States as the leader in a movement to suppress crime, they have challenged the citizens of Dorchester to back him.

All citizens are called upon to report violations of the law to the authorities, and the ministerial body asked that copies of such reports be sent them in order that there may be a check on these activities.

Slot Machines Hit.

The statement continues by saying: "We would like to know why slot machines are brazenly operated; why beer licenses are issued to back-lot saloons; why slot machines, once found, are not destroyed; why licenses are not revoked when the owners are found violating the Sunday law, closing law, selling to minors and bootlegging; why paying for drinks before midnight permits the drinkers to take them hours after; why the hotel law is not enforced and why the minority lawless element has so paralyzed the law and the better element that these conditions exist."

Virginia Projects Granted $400,000

Yorktown and Jamestown Island Get PWA Fund.

PWA made an allotment yesterday $400,000 to the National Park Service for shore protection construction at Colonial National Monument, Yorktown, Va., and Jamestown Island, Va., the Associated Press reported.

A loan and grant to Norfolk, Va., og $100,000 for construction of a gymnasium were announced also.

A loan and grant of $1,400,000 to Clarksburg, W. Va., for constructing sewers and a sewage treatment plant where rescinded because the city has abandoned the project.

Motion-Picture Players Seem to Gain Rather Than Lose by Equity Affiliation

Autonomy Safe By Terms of a Just Contract

Film Folk Now in A. F. L.; Col. Ratto Entertains; Amusement Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

The degree to which the motion picture players forming the membership of the Screen Actors Guild, Inc., have safeguarded their independence in affiliating with the Actors Equity Association is fully defined in the terms of agreement published in the December issue of Equity, the official organ of the Actors Equity Association.

President Frank Gillmore, of Equity, having fallen something short of complete success a few years ago in an attempt to interest Hollywood in "unionization," it came as a bit of a shock to the theater world to have the Guild voluntarily apply for affiliation with both Actors Equity and the American Federation of Labor.

The reasons advanced, however, were sound. It was a protective move on the part of the film artists to escape from certain dictatorial procedures allegedly indulged in with some persistence by the studio executives in control of the salary rolls.

One of the prime factors in the decision to "join the union" is reported to have been the imposition of unfair practices in the partisan heat of the recent gubernatorial campaign in California. Compelled by considerations of expediency seemingly to subscribe to and support with contributions political views with which they were not always in sympathy, the actors, through their president, Eddie Cantor, took the final step that solidifies "show business" in the United States to a greater extent than has ever before been the case.

Terms of Agreement.

With the effectiveness of the contract between Actors Equity and the Screen Actors Guild, the Guild is pledged to apply to the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, a voluntary association affiliated with the A. F. L., for a charter. This charter will grant the Guild exclusive jurisdiction in the picture actor's field in the United States of America, its dependencies, possessions and in Canada.

Equity retains all of its present jurisdiction except the motion picture field. The Guild has complete autonomy, its own officers, basic documents and by-laws.

Neither party will have the right to call a strike of the members of the other party.

The parties to the contract shall create a conference board to consult from time to time on mutual problems.

Members of either party who are also members of the other will pay dues to both organizations and Guild members who wish to act on the legitimate stage will be compelled to join Equity. Equity members wishing to go into pictures, similarly, must join the Guild. Suspension from one organization automatically entails suspension from the other.

These are the major provisions of the contract under which the Hollywood acting profession becomes a part of organized labor.

It would appear from a cursory surface examination of the contractual obligations which the Guild has assumed that it has sacrificed nothing and perhaps gained much.

Marvin Schenck, manager of Loew's booking office in New York, and Irving Yates, a producer of acts for the Loew time, were week-end visitors in Washington, concerned principally with the early-week conferences on the code authority for the motion picture industry. They made their headquarters in the executive offices of Loew's in the Fox Theater here while in the city. They returned to Broadway and side streets Wednesday night. But the boys at the Fox knew they were here!

The Drama Editors Dine!

Speaking of the Fox, that luncheon party tossed yesterday noon by Carter Barron for his executive associates and the dramatic desks of the local press was another example of his generosity and good taste in such matters. Utterly informal, it was proportionately a period of fine fellowship and camaraderie, from which the ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the press emerged with a copy each of Burns Mantle's valuable book on "The Best Plays of 1933-34" and other substantial tokens of the warm spirit that actuates everything Division Manager Carter Tate Barron does.

He and Mrs. "Chic" Barron leave the Capital this afternoon for Richmond and, in turn, will depart Richmond tomorrow afternoon for their home in Georgia to spend Christmas Day with Mr. Barron's parents. Immediately following the Christmas Day festivities, they will return to Washington, the present expectation being that they will arrive here late Wednesday or early Thursday.

Merry Christmas, happy landings and then Happy New Year!

One of the features of yesterday's breaking of bread, celery sticks and the pledge was the entertainment feature contributed by Col. Orangelo Ratto, manager of Loew's Palace Theater, who unlimbered his piano accordion and made that gyro, Hintzo, look like a beginner still struggling with the complexities of Exercise No. 2.

Col. Ratto, having partially outgrown his instrument during the period of its climax, was compelled to remove his coat to get the contraption properly anchored to his ample and slightly convex facade, but once he got going it was the merts.

Now are we aware of Col. Ratto's virtuosity and it takes a bit of doing to get him to please it on display, but the reward of "Cielito Lindo," "O Sole Mio" and a few other Italian folk songs and ballads I do not know by name is worth the effort. To cap the climax of his artistic performance, the good colonel played a little thing he wrote himself that was the best number of them all. He may be playing yet, for all I know, for it was just then that I had to leave to meet the inexorable demands—if that is what I mean—of a busy and slightly complicated Thursday. Or was it Friday?

"A Curse On——."

The cast has been chosen and rehearsals are well under way for the production of Maxwell Anderson's Pulitzer prize play, "Both Your Houses," which the Drama Guild of Washington will present on the stage of the Wardman Park Theater the evenings of January 16, 17 and 18.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the Drama Guild production by reason of the fact that it has never before been done in Washington on either the professional or amateur stage.

Gerald Miller is directing.

"The" Haviland, former student at the Clifford Brooke Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts and member of the Roadside Theater Company, will present a program of illusion and magic at the Christmas party of the Georgetown Branch Boys Club tonight at 7:30. The piece de resistance of Haviland's program will be his baffling "Mystery of the Haunted House."

An Idea to Toy With.

One of the outstanding Christmas parties of the Yuletide season will be celebrated at RKO-Keith's Theater tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when The Washington Post, with the cooperation of Manager Hardie Meakin and the RKO-Keith executives, will present an elaborate program to which the admission charge will be a new toy—or as many as you like—for The Post's Christmas Toy Fund, which this year is proving the most successful of all these seasonable enterprises.

Featured on the screen bill will be Buck Jones in "The White Eagle," a picture made to order for the wholesome entertainment of youngsters of every age from 6 to 96, and, among other subjects, "Babes of the Sea," a new natural-color cartoon comedy of the first rank—of such excellence, in fact, that it comprises an important part of the regular daily program.

In addition to all this, the indoor program will be preceded at 8:45 o'clock by a 15-minute concert in front of the theater by the Boys' Cadet Band.

Scurry around and get your toy, or toys, and have the time of your life doing something worth while for the underprivileged children of the District. It will give you a pleasant feeling around the heart.

Yesterday afternoon at 3, in the Warners' private projection room in the Earle Theater Building, a scant majority of the dramatic desks were accorded a preview of "Sweet Adeline," the new musical production in which Irene Dunne reputedly scores the most sensational triumph of her career before the cameras and microphones, not even barring the fabulous "Cimarron."

How true this may be, I am not as yet aware, since the screening came so close on the heels of Mr. Barron's luncheon that I was unable to be present. It was probably planned that way by the Warner executives in the fear that if I saw "Sweet Adeline" I might feel tempted to sing it!

However, there is a scheme afoot that will put me even on this particular picture, so watch this space closely from now on and when the time comes, order your copy early. (Advt.)

Champing-at-the-bit Note.

I wish Monday afternoon would hurry up and come so that I can perpetuate a lifelong custom of doing my Christmas shoplifting—early Christmas Eve!

Begin Brief Screen Runs Today

Straight From the Studios

One Honeymoon Couple Circumvent Studio Slavery Days; W. C. Fields Explains His Sudden Pining Away; Oddments and Remainders of Coast Gossip.

By Speed Kendall.

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—The honeymoon bugaboo isn't going to affect one film couple. Of all the recent Hollywood brides, not one, as yet, has been able to take an extended after-marriage trip, on account of work.

Flaming-haired Jocelyn Lee and her fiance, James Seymour, associate producer at Warner Brothers, intend to make all of their arrangements a bit differently.

They are not going to the altar until they are sure of a honeymoon.

KAY FRANCIS.

Seymour, it seems, has a long-awaited vacation coming to him. As soon as studio executives tell him that he can have it, he and Miss Lee will be married and utilize the vacation period for an extended honeymoon.

The nuptials, they said yesterday, are tentatively scheduled for the first week of the new year.

Villagers More Successful.

Ordinarily statistics make dull reading, but some picked up yesterday revealed an interesting story.

This is that there are more successful players on the lot who were born in places other than New York—the goal of all the acting profession.

Only 12 of 42 leading players saw the light of day in the metropolis. These include Joan Blondell, James Cagney, Patricia Ellis, Ann Dvorak, William Gargan, Allen Jenkins, Jean Muir, Anita Louise, Phil Regan, Barbara Stanwyck, Dorothy Tree and Florence Fair.

Odd and Interesting People and Events.

Whew! But that June Knight-Paul Ames separation was surprising . . . Dorothy Libaire's mutt dog ran away from home, and George Durkin sent it back to her in a taxicab . . . Mary Ellis, singing actress, started out her career to be a painter.

Ann Harding is really enjoying her sojourn on that Reno dude ranch . . . Every time she gets a rest away from Paramount, Mary Boland puts in some new improvement on her home. The latest is a studio where she can take lessons in sculpturing . . . To get Charles Laughton to drink beer for some scenes in "Ruggles of Red Gap," the prop man had to scour the town for a particular imported brand.

Ralph Bellamy spent a lot of time at Palm Springs, just to get a tan for his next picture. But the opus was delayed so long he lost it all . . . Richard Dix is doing his own Christmas shopping . . . And from London, Fay Wray's friends get word she will do all her shopping over there . . . Billie Burke is one of Hollywood's busiest—playing in one picture, rehearsing for another and also for a stage play in which she will appear.

Coogan Has New Girl Friend.

Since his romance with Toby Wing cooled, little has been mentioned of Jack Coogan's amours. We learned yesterday, however, that little Anne Shirley is now the center of attraction and has been, for that matter, ever since Thanksgiving. Anne even ran out of an important picture-taking appointment the other day because she had to keep a date with Jackie. So that's how it is.

Fields Explains His Decline.

So rapidly is W. C. Fields reducing that even his old friends won't tell him. He is wasting away to a mere shadow of his former self.

His dietician, of course, attributes it to the food routine. His trainer takes credit and attributes it to the tennis he ordered for Fields' daily exercise. Even some of his intimates are trying to share in the glory for some recipe they gave.

Ever since he moved from Toluca Lake to his new home in Encino, he has been a lonesome man. The four swans at Toluca Lake had been his buddies. He even paid them a call at 2 a. m., one morning recently, and plotted to take Egbert, his favorite, home with him, but a watchman thwarted him.

The Aztecs fought with wooden swords so that they would not kill their enemies—but it was no humanitarian impulse that prompted them to spare the lives of their opponents. They wanted to take them alive so they could be offered as human sacrifice to the Aztec war god, Huitzilopochtli.

While the Aztecs were warring with their neighboring tribes they found it not difficult to wage successful battles with wooden swords. The fewer of the enemy they killed in battle the more they were likely to take captive—the more captives the greater the sacrifice—and the greater the sacrifice the greater the pleasure of their blood-loving god.

Against the Spanish, however, the primitive warriors of Mexico fought at odds they never dreamed could exist. Unlike their other enemies, the Spanish were quite willing to kill the Aztecs on the field of battle—they having no gods to sacrifice captive Aztecs to after the battle.

Strange as it seems, hair can be grown on the crystal of a watch—and, presumably, on a billiard ball as well. The watch glass hair was grown by an experimenter in England for the Wool Industries Research Association. During the experiment bits of guinea pig skin were attached to the glass and then fed with blood plasma in special preparation. The skin remained alive and the hair actually grew.

Indiana Five Overcomes Maryland's Early Lead, Triumphs, 30 to 25

Mecadon Gains Unanimous Decision Over Furr in 10-Round Fight

Terrapins' Late Rally Nipped

Foe's Passing, Superior Floor Work Win Out; Fourth in Row.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

INDIANA opened its annual Eastern invasion last night at College Park with a 30-25 victory over an inexperienced Maryland quintet that had a lot of spirit but was sadly lacking in court finesse. It was the Hoosiers' fourth win in five starts.

Neither club exhibited much in the way of basket ball in the first half. The passing was only mediocre and the marksmanship even worse. Maryland could have used a Chase, a Vincent or a Bucky Buscher.

But the Terps were good enough to hold an advantage of 15-13 over their guests at the half. At one stage of the game they led by a 10-2 count. But Indiana, with its sharpshooter, Will Kert, showing the way, gradually cut down Maryland's lead.

Assume 30-to-19 Lead.

The greenness of the Old Liners was palpably demonstrated in the second half, when Indiana's passing and superior floor generalship not only stopped the home team, but sent the Hoosiers away to a 30-19 lead.

Both teams used the zone defense, but the veteran Midwesterners were more adept at it. They blocked Maryland's every attempt to work the ball in close for snow birds and the Terps could not find the range at long distance.

Fred Fechtman, Indiana's 6-foot 9-inch center, controlled the tap-off, a tremendous advantage, and early in the fray Vic Willis, Maryland's little 6-foot 3-inch jump artist, was shifted to forward. Bill Andorka went into center, but it was only a gesture.

Held to One Point.

Despite Fechtman's tremendous height, he was held scoreless from the field and counted only once from the free-throw line. Kehrt and Bill Stout, another forward, were Indiana's leading point-getters.

Indiana had prodded its total to the eventual 30 points, with only five minutes to go, when Maryland launched a counter-attack that brought it from 19 to the final 25. Willis, with two successful free throws and a double-decker, and Waters, who dropped a short snowbird, were the ringleaders.

Desperately trying to close the gap, Maryland resorted to long, but usually erratic, potshots the few times it came into possession of the ball. The Hoosiers, now clicking on all cylinders, froze the sphere just over midcourt and were in possession of the cowhide when the final whistle cut short the Terp rally.

Meets Colonials.

University of Maryland officials last night announced the addition of Washington and Lee to its court schedule for the current season. The game will be played at College Park on February 16. The Generals won the Southern Conference championship last season.

Byrd to Play Left Or Center for Reds

Cincinnati, Dec. 20 (AP). — Sam Byrd, understudy to Babe Ruth in the outfield for the New York Yankees, will play left or center field for the Cincinnati Reds next year. He was acquired by the Reds in a deal made known last night reported to involve $25,000, part in cash and the rest in players, whose names were not made known.

Basket Ball 'Lab' To Be Set Up Here

You may send your boy to school now where he'll learn the fundamentals and science of basket ball as completely as he did the multiplication table. A basket-ball laboratory will be set up shortly in one of the junior high school or boys' club gyms, where, without charge, every phase of the game will be taught.

The tutor will be James E. Scully, former Niagara University basket ball player and coach, now connected with the athletic department at Emerson Institute. The classes will be open to all, from youngsters in their early teens to coaches of college teams.

Scully held a similar school in Buffalo, N. Y., where he had classes of night school proportions. His plan includes regular home-work assignments to the students. Scully expects to start the school shortly after the first of the year. Foremost in significance in his course is the descriptive material making evident to the laymen the vast intricacies and details of basket ball, of which the average person has only a superficial knowledge.

Stanford Pushed; Grayson Returns

First Lengthy Practice Is Held for 'Bamans.

Stanford University, Calif., Dec. 20 (AP).—For the first time since the regular football practice season closed, Stanford's big red machine put on full steam ahead today for the Rose Bowl game with Alabama.

Coach C. E. "Tiny" Thornhill celebrated the end of the final examinations period by sending his touchdown troupers through a two-hour workout.

For the third day since he went out of the California game November 24 with torn rib cartilages, Bobby Grayson, keyman of the attack, played at full back. His appearance has brought fresh inspiration to the squad, which as late as last week numbered seven injured and ailing. Only Stan Anderson, first replacement for Grayson, remains in a weakened condition, recovering slowly from a severe cold.

Cruickshank Winner at Nassau

Richmond Pro Rallies; Butler Falters; One Stroke Decides.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Dec. 20 (AP). Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, Va., came back to win the $5,000 British Colonial Open Golf Tournament today with a score of 287 after being 5 strokes behind Tony Butler at the turn on the final round.

Butler, a Harlingen (Tex.) professional, faltered badly on the last 9 holes, going 4 over par and finally finishing in second place, a stroke behind Cruickshank.

Third place in the sensational tournament that saw the course record lowered by two strokes and the early leaders unable to stand the torrid pace, was taken by Leo Mallory, of Norton, Conn., whose 72-hole score was 269.

Takes $500 Prize.

Steady golf, 5 under par for the route, brought Cruickshank the $500 first award. On no round did he exceed par. Playing in conventional figures, he finished the first round six strokes behind Joe Turnesa, of Hartford, Conn., who smashed the course record with a 62, but then dropped out of the lead.

The halfway point found Cruickshank tied for second place with Turnesa and two strokes higher than the 132 of Jack Thompson, of Youngstown, Ohio. The long-driving Thompson could not hold the top through the next round and Butler and Mallory were bracketed at the top at 54 holes, with Cruickshank trailing by a single point with a score of 200.

Butler Stages Spurt.

Then Butler started a whirlwind pace that carried him far into the lead as 63 holes were finished. Cruickshank played that nine in 35, one over par, but strengthened as Butler wavered, and shot the home nine in 32, while the latter took a 38.

Butler won $350, Mallory $250.

The winner's score on the four rounds was 68—66—66—67.

Stonehouse Is Fourth.

Cruickshank's score was 18 strokes better than the 285 posted jointly by Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen in tying for the lead in the last major tournament here in 1928.

The scores for each of the two final rounds and the final score:

Zimmerman Tops Field at Pasadena

Portland Pro Shoots 69 to Lead Mangrum and McSpaden by Stroke.

By Paul Zimmerman.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 20 (AP).—Slender, youthful Emory Zimmerman thundered out of the Northwest today to shatter par by two strokes with a 69 and lead the field of first-round qualifiers for the Pasadena $4,000 open golf championship.

The blond Portland, Oreg., pro, Washington open champion and runner-up in the Oregon P. G. A. title event, missed a 3-foot putt on the fourteenth to take his only 5 of the round. He had three birdies and pars the rest of the way.

Tied for second, with 70s, were Dick Metz, Chicago; Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, and Harold McSpaden, Kansas City, Kans.

A tie also resulted for fifth place among Art Krueger, Beloit, Wis.; Frank Williams, Pasadena pro; Sam Parks, Pittsburgh; Mark Fry, Oakland, and MacDonald Smith, veteran Scotch campaigner, now of Los Angeles, all with 71s.

Scores Surprisingly High.

With the tees back and the pins set at uncomfortable positions on the greens, the scores were surprisingly high. Most of the players encountered putting difficulties, not because the greens were particularly fast, but due to the placing of the pins. As a result cards of 79 and better qualified for Saturday.

Only half the field of more than 200 were accommodated today. The remainder will tee off tomorrow, with the low 60 for both days going into the second round Saturday. The final 36 holes will be played Sunday by the surviving 57.

Except for two three-putted greens, the fourth and eleventh, Metz might have taken the lead today, for he had three birdies, due to accurate approaching. Mangrum passed up a chance to tie for the lead on the eighteenth when a 7-foot downhill putt missed the cup by an inch.

Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles City champion, set the pace among the amateurs with a 35—38—73. This gave him a starting edge over such simon-pures of renown as John Dawson, Chicago; Cliff Baker, Vancouver, Wash., who have 75s.

Colonials Trim Wittenberg, 47 to 33

Dave Goldfadden Leader in Last-Half Attack After 21-20 Lead.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S basket ball team encountered Wittenberg College last night and continued its sensational point-a-minute record, but emerged with a scare as well as its fourth consecutive victory at the Colonials' gymnasium.

The little Ohio lads threatened seriously to interrupt the winning streak of the Colonials before accepting the 47-33 defeat. Early in the second half, Wittenberg led G. W., 23-21, with little evidence that its clever attack would subside, but at this point the Colonials resumed with an irresistible offensive that rapidly swept them into the lead.

George Washington was visibly handicapped by the absence of Walter Bakum, clever-shooting guard, and the little Ohio team, featuring a flashy passing game, matched the Colonials virtually point for point in the first half. Intermission found the Colonials enjoying only a 21-20 lead.

Goldfadden a Hero.

Dave Goldfadden provided the spark for the G. W. quintet in the second half, first putting the Colonials into a 24-23 lead with a shot from near midfloor and continuing a sensational scoring spree to place the game beyond reclaim by Wittenberg. He scored nine points in the final half.

Before he was ousted on personal fouls, Tuffy Leemans, G. W. football hero, featured the Colonials' first-half attack in collaborating with Kiesel, who ultimately tied Goldfadden for high-scoring honors with 14 points. Sun and Schoenfeld were keeping the Wittenberg team in the running with clever shots from near and far.

Visitors Take Lead.

Shortly after the start of the final period, Elwood Pitzer sent Wittenberg into a 22-21 lead with a field goal after a long dribble and he added another point after he was fouled on the play. Here Goldfadden contributed the first of his second-half field goals and added two fouls to put G. W. in the lead, which it never relinquished.

Capt. Jimmy Howell was held to his lowest point total of the season when he could make only three field goals and a foul shot for seven points.

Olney High Quintet Downs Upperville, 18-13

Upperville, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Olney High School inaugurated its Northern Virginia League season tonight with a stubbornly contested victory over Upperville High, 18 to 13.

While a clever Olney defense held Upperville's forwards and center scoreless from the floor, Warren led the Olney attack with seven points. Seven foul goals for Upperville, as contrasted with Olney's two foul goals, aided in keeping the losers in the running.

Berwanger Wins Honors in Big Ten

Is Voted Conference's '34 Outstanding Star.

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—Jay Berwanger, the University of Chicago's one-man football and track team, is the outstanding athlete of the Big Ten for 1934.

The 19-year-old star from Dubuque, Iowa., the one big reason for Chicago's renaissance in football, won the honor with votes to spare in the second annual poll conducted by the Associated Press. Athletic directors, coaches, officials and sports experts around the conference cast all the ballots, 22 of them going to Berwanger. Duane Purvis, Purdue's football and track star, who won the poll last year, was second with 14. Willis Ward, of Michigan was third with 12. Both Purvis and Ward lost votes because of injuries which greatly handicapped them during the past season.

Rivals' Plot On Johnston Revealed

Col. Fitzpatrick Bares Poison Pen Letters, Fake Job Bids.

By Jack Miley.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (Spl.).—A plot to discredit Boxing Promoter Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden, carried on by poison pen letters, mysterious phone calls to sports editors and presentation of fake job offers to wire services, was uncovered today by Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Garden Corporation.

"Johnston is our agent and we will stand by him and his record," said Kilpatrick. "We receive letters and phone calls carrying the most absurd charges. Men who have no connection with us walk about the streets and circulate rumors that they are to take over Johnston's job. We have made no such offer to any one."

Dictated by Board.

Kilpatrick said all of Johnston's actions in the negotiations between the Garden and Charles Harvey, manager of Steve Hamas, were dictated by the Garden's board of directors. Hamas signed to fight Max Schmeling in Germany on March 10 and the loss of this bout by the Garden caused Johnston's enemies to circulate anew stories that he was to lose his job.

"The Garden directors told Johnston he positively could not give Harvey any such an offer as a $25,000 guarantee," said the Garden. "That is why Johnston is smiling today and his critics are confounded. The directors dictated Johnston's every move. Florida will not support a big fight gate—it never has. If the German government wants to lose money that is its business, not ours."

There is a certain clique of jealous rival promoters who are out to "get Johnston," Kilpatrick declared, adding that the Garden is aware of its propaganda and pays no serious attention to it.

From Various Sources.

Kilpatrick revealed that he had received poison pen letters from various sources. Johnston was accused in some of them of maintaining a monopoly; others contained charges of graft and extortion and others disclosed blackjacking propaganda tactics of the opposition group of promoters.

Editors of leading wire services Tuesday night received mysterious telephone calls, in which a voice representing itself as belonging to an out-of-town promoter declared that Johnston would be out of a job by New Year's Day. Investigation proved that the rival clique had attempted to put over a fake story on the news services. One such service ran the story and later published a retraction for Col. John S. Hammond, of the Garden management.

The Garden today declared that due to Johnston's work in tying up the services of leading heavyweight contenders, including Champion Max Baer, the situation was well in hand for 1935.

D. C. Welter Is Soundly Trounced

Dougan Knocked Out by Rivers ni 5th of Semifinal.

Furr was weary and slowed down to a walk in the last round from the onslaught of the battering by McCadon.

On The Post score sheet Furr took only two rounds, the fifth and sixth, in which he had his left hook working like a piston to McCadon's head and body.

The tenth was even as McCadon protected his lead and Furr was too tired to effect any serious damage.

Furr apparently was on his way to victory after the fifth round when he seemed to have found an antidote in his left for McCadon's boring tactics.

The cut eye gave the Newark lad the edge from then on and he was quick to take advantage of his opponent's injury.

Bob Lowry hammered out a unanimous decision over Mike Scipio in a six-round semifinal. The rugged welterweight kept tossing almost continuously, but Lowry beat him to the punch in almost every instance, never allowing Scipio to get set to deliver his heavy wallops.

Mickey Flannigan, a blond Irish fighter from Pittsburgh, outknocked Oscar (Knockout) Riley, of Washington, to take a split decision in a bristling six-rounder. Flannigan bottled up poor Oscar's right-hand sleep producer and belabored the local knockout artist from pillar to post throughout, almost flooring him a couple of times with hard rights to the head and body.

Buckey Taylor, of Baltimore, and Frankie Litt, of Newark, struggled six rounds to a draw in another preliminary. Neither fighter was mussed up too much until the last round, when they both opened up. Litt, who had been behind, received the round and a draw and Taylor was rewarded with a bloody nose.

California Joe Rivers, Mexican featherweight, made an auspicious debut into the local ring ranks by winning on a fifth round technical knockout from Leroy Dougan in an opener scheduled for six. The winner sent Dougan to the floor three times with rights to the jaw, twice in the first round for counts of six and once in the fifth for a one count. Dougan was being badly battered when Referee Muggsy Morris called a halt.

State Normal Wins, 37-33, Over A. U.

ALAST-HALF rally by American University fell four points short of overcoming a big lead held by Maryland State Normal at the end of the first half in their game at the A. U. gymnasium last night and the Teachers held on to win, 37 to 33.

Maryland State took a 20-to-10 lead at the half but with Skippy Edwards, fast American forward, leading the attack, the Eagles rallied only to have the Teachers fight off the challenge and squeeze through for the victory. Rankin was the big gun for the visitors, tallying 7 baskets and 3 fouls for 17 points and scoring honors.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

NOW that the status of Babe Ruth is settled—or hadn't you heard? The immediate baseball future of the Babe was shredded of its last shred of mystery the other day when the Yankees dispatched Outfielder Sammy Byrd to the Cincinnati Reds.

BABE RUTH.

Baseball people now require but half an eye to discern the portly form of the Babe in the outfield of the Yankees when the shootin' starts in the big leagues next April.

Barring the St. Louis Browns, the Yankees are the American League club which can least afford to dispatch an outfielder anywhere except to the outfield of the Yankees. The sale of Byrd is tantamount to an announcement that Ruth will return to the Yankees as a pinch hitter and week-end outfielder. With three or four days' rest per week, the Babe is no drawback to anybody's outfield, much less the Yankees!

The Yanks' outfield, as currently constituted, boasts only one able-bodied, big league outfielder—Ben Chapman. Earl Combs has slowed to the pace of a rheumatic snail, Dixie Walker may never recover from his injured arm and is at best a poor risk; Joe Selkirk is still in the rookie stage, and Meryl Hoag never has fit into McCarthy's scheme of things.

So, when the Yankees part with an outfielder, the finger of doubt points positively at the announced retirement of Ruth. The Yankees still have title to the Babe, there is no managerial berth for him in either league, and the Yanks have need of him. At this point, it should be quite easy to draw your own conclusions.

AS manager of the Red Sox, Joe Cronin no longer will address Lefty Grove as "Mr. Grove," a salutation he has always reserved for the big southpaw and other star pitchers on rival teams in the league. As Grove's boss, Lefty will be just plain Bob to Cronin, the new manager of the Red Sox smilingly announced yesterday in a fanning session at Griffith Stadium.

Since breaking into the big leagues, Cronin greets all star pitchers as "Mr.," but there is a method in this formality of the canny Cronin. In explanation, I am turning the rostrum over to Cronin himself:

"A fellow has to keep on good terms with these good pitchers. There's no sense in antagonizing 'em. They'll only bear down on you harder when you're up there at the plate. They are all 'Mr.' to me—Grove, Gomez, Bridges, Ferrell and the other stars. If they don't like a guy, they're out there in the box turning loose all their stuff against you, and making it plenty tough.

"But, now, they're just Bob and Wes to me. Come to think of it, I've gotta remind myself of the idea when Boston plays Washington next season. Hereafter, it's Mr. Whitehill, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Weaver, and Mr. Burke. There's nothing like keeping on good terms with those pitchers.

THE daily pinochle game broke up an old-fashioned bull session at Griffith Stadium yesterday, but not before Clark Griffith had contributed the season's prize story. He told it on himself.

"Old Joe Cantillon was umpiring a game I was pitching against the Giants and John McGraw, and McGraw was riding Cantillon unmercifully. Cantillon was calling everything I threw at McGraw a strike, but I finally walked him on a couple of wild pitches. Joe moved behind the pitcher's box, as umpires did in those days when a man was on first, and whispered to me:

"'Pick McGraw off first base.'

"I made a false motion and then caught McGraw off base with a perfect balk. Old Joe waved him out. McGraw stormed and raged about the balk but Joe stuck to his decision. He had got even with McGraw.

"A couple of innings later, with another Giant on first, I tried the same thing. 'Here! Here!' whispered Cantillon, 'you picked that last man off base for me, don't try any of that stuff for yourself.' And he waved the runner down to second on the balk."

Griffith received a letter from Schacht in yesterday's mail demanding a part of the purchase price received from the Red Sox for his coaching contract. Griff laughed. "I can't convince that guy Schacht I gave him away to the Red Sox."

Falls Church Tossers Swamp Herndon, 22-9

Herndon, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Falls Church High School easily defeated Herndon High here today, 22 to 9, to hand the home team its second straight defeat of the season. Taking a 10-1 lead in the first half, the visitors coasted through the last two periods and were never threatened. The Herndon High girls' team partially atoned for the defeat by beating Falls Church, 43 to 20, in the preliminary.

Roosevelt, at Full Back, Leads Mythical All-Official Team

By Dillon Graham
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, former tackle and full back at Groton, might call signals for a very, very mythical "All-United States" eleven that could be assembled from officials "now playing for Uncle Sam."

Congressional gossip around luncheon tables during the closing weeks of the football season mentioned almost a score of governmental and congressional leaders eligible for posts on such a fabulous team.

One genuine All-American would be among its members. He is Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, Harvard tackle, who was named on Walter Camp's All-America teams in 1908 and 1909.

But the President always sits at the head of the table. He was a regular at Groton Prep and played on scrub teams at Harvard, but he would share the captaincy with Fish.

On the basis of sports chatter around the Capital, an All-Government team might shape up something like this:

| Position. | Name. | School. |
|---|---|---|
| End | Rep. Wallter (Pa.) | Georgetown |
| Tackle | Rep. Fish (N. Y.) | Harvard |
| Guard | Justice Stone | Amherst |
| Center | Rep. Rogers (N. H.) | Dartmouth |
| Guard | Rep. Reed (N. Y.) | Cornell |
| Tackle | Secretary Dern | Nebraska |
| End | Asst. Sec. Robert | Georgia Tech |
| Quarter | Rep. Lambertson (Kans) | Ottawa |
| Half back | Rep. Bankhead (Ala.) | Alabama |
| Full back | President Roosevelt | Groton |

Representative Lambertson, of Kansas, who did his playing at the University of Ottawa, was named quarter back, but the full back might call the signals.

It's been a long time since the President played, but he knows each man's duties well and often refers to himself as "quarter back of the Government team."

The half backs are Representa-

Biff Jones Seeks Army Job; 'Not Interested' in Coaching

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 20 (Spl.). Capt. Lawrence (Biff) Jones is not interested in an offer to coach football anywhere.

The man who resigned as head football coach at Louisiana State University this week after a row with Senator Huey P. Long today answered questions concerning his plans for the immediate future.

"I expect to be out of football for at least two years," Jones stated. "I am trying to get an appointment from the War Department at Leavenworth. That is the appointment I turned down last year to remain at L. S. U."

Capt. Jones admitted that he had received several offers to coach football teams, but said that he thinks he will insist on confining himself to his Army duties. Asked about a report that he had been asked to become coach at Northwestern University, Capt. Jones said, "I have not been communicated with yet, but will admit I've received offers from at least four institutions."

Capt. Jones has received thousands of telegrams congratulating him on his action in resigning rather than accept the dicetation of Long. One telegram came from an 80-year-old Confederate at Natchez, Miss. Capt. Jones would not give out its text, but the old veteran is said by several friends of Capt. Jones who read the telegram, to have wired: "It took a Yankee to tell the polecat whereto get off. I fought your ancestors, but now I am fighting for you. I am ashamed of Louisiana that it doesn't show Huey Long the gate, like you did."

It developed here today that Coach Bernie Biermna, of Minnesota, has refused to be considered as a coach at L. S. U. He sent a wire to New Orleans saying: "I know nothing about it at all. I have received no communication from Huey Long and will not consider going to L. S. U."

Weir Rides Golden Play to Victory in Charles Town Feature Run Over Heavy Track

Royal Lassie Second by Length

Flower Time Awakes to Bring Backers Pay-Off of $17.40.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Writer).

CHARLES TOWN RACE TRACK, Dec. 20.—Fritz Weir, the Baltimore boy who prefers to make a living in the saddle, turned in another brilliant exhibition of jockeyship today in the feature race on the Charles Town Jockey Club's program here in the mountains. Weir, who has ridden more feature winners than any other boy at the track, had the mount on Golden Play and he guided the veteran son of Golden Guinea to the wire a length in front of the favored Royal Lassie and six more lengths ahead of Miss Catalan.

Although he was painfully cut on his foot in a race here last Friday, Weir has stuck to his riding guns and he outgeneraled his rival, Sammy Palumbo, today. Palumbo was in charge of Royal Lassie and, as the field began the mile-and-a-sixteenth contest, he took his charge to her customary position in the front of the field. Weir, who had broken away from the gate first, appeared to await Royal Lassie's rush into the lead.

Royal Lassie In Front.

Reaching the stretch the first time, Weir seemed content to rate Golden Play just off the pace set by Palumbo and kept his mount a little to the outside in the better going. Royal Lassie bobbed along in front, but it was apparent that Weir had double wraps on Golden Play. He did not ask for real speed until the stretch run. Young Fritz finally turned Golden Play loose and began a kicking, hustling dash for the wire.

Palumbo did his best to keep Royal Lassie up, but somehow that combination lacked the punch that was apparent in Golden Play and Weir. Just inside the sixteenth pole Golden Play slid to the front and the race was all over except that $9.60 pay-off down under the stands. Miss Catalan viewed the battle of the first two at some distance, but she held the show money safe.

$28,299 Bet on Races.

The weather was mild and the usual week-day crowd was in attendance. The betting was $28,299 and both favorite players and long-shot backers had their innings.

The track was heavy and sticky after yesterday's rain, and only the stout-legged horses with a leaning to mud were reaching the money circle. The day's principal wake-up horse was Flower Time, which won easily in the fourth race at a $17.40 mutuel.

Eastern Triumphs Over Tech, 53-32, in Annual Battle of Alumni Basket Ball Stars

Maroon Five Spots Foes To Lead

Referee-Baiting Costly, Stops Losers' Budding Uphill Drive.

COLLEGE stars and former college stars who learned their basket ball either at Tech or Eastern High romped about the Eastern gymnasium last night in the annual game between alumni teams of the two schools, and when it was all over the Eastern grads had a 53-to-32 victory nicely tucked away.

The Tech adults made the big mistake of spotting their opponents to a 22-to-6 lead in the first quarter and then trying to catch up. As reinforcements straggled in, this queer plan of battle began to assume serious proportions, and at one point Eastern had only a 7-point lead, with the Techmen going great guns.

High Point of Game.

With the score 35 to 28, Caruso declared Big Joe had fouled Otts Zohn, former G. W. luminary, and proceeded to give Zahn a free shot. "Why don't ya give 'im another?" roared Joe. "O. K.," said Caruso, "another it is." "Give 'im another," thundered Crosan, and the ref took him up on it again. This occurred four times, and Zahn was given five free shots in all. He sank four of them and the points, together with Crosan's oratorical defeat, so demoralized Tech that it was never able to get along thereafter.

Crosan had been one of the principal factors in closing the big first-quarter gap and helping keep big Bernie Lieb, of C. U., in check. With the start of the second half, Bill Werber, of Tech, Duke and the Boston Red Sox, sank a fast shot to continue the Tech rally which had brought the score to 32 to 20 at the half.

Bruce Kessler, of Maryland and American, and Knocky Thomas, of Maryland, also began hitting the scoring column, but Crosan's oratorical outburst, plus some plain and fancy one-hand ball handling by Tommy Nolan, of Eastern and Georgetown, and a typical Lieb scoring spree offset their efforts.

Even the desperate efforts of Coach Artie Boyd, of Tech, who received his basket ball degree at Maryland, were in vain. Artie gave an impressive exhibition of how long shots should be shot, nesting two without touching the rim from behind the middle of the floor.

P. G. A. Seeks to Avoid Conflicting Golf Dates

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 20 (AP).—In a move to avoid tournament scheduling difficulties such as were encountered this season, President George R. Jacobus, of the Professional Golfers Association of America, has promised blanket dates of December 10 to February 15 for the 1935-36 winter schedule, devoid of counter-attractions in other parts of the country, it was announced here today.

The announcement was by J. A. (Pat) Patterson, secretary of the Southern California P. G. A., who attended a meeting of the national organization.

"Jacobus readily agreed," said Patterson, "that the California winter schedule should be protected against outside competition, such as arose this season."

'Big Time' Football Players Cost W. & J. $40,000 Yearly

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Revelations of the huge expenditures required to maintain "big time" football in a college were made today by Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of Washington and Jefferson College, following that institution's retirement from the national football stage.

The cost of varsity football at W. and J. reached $40,000 per year during the seasons when the Presidents were a national football figure, according to Dr. Hutchison.

This sum was accounted for by free tuition to the players at $350 each; $12 a week paid for each player's board and room and $15 per man for books. The average cost of maintaining each player was approximately $800 and Dr. Hutchison revealed that when he became president three years ago, the college was dispensing almost 50 athletic scholarships.

For years W. and J. was one of the leading football powers of the East. The high point in its history was reached in 1920 when the varsity eleven, coached by Earl (Greasy) Neale, at present back field coach at Yale, won the Eastern championship and was chosen to play against the University of California in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, the game resulting in a scoreless tie. Fans here who followed the teams of that era recalled the story which was widely circulated afterward that on the trip to the coast a group of varsity players had "struck for a bonus of $500 each" and got it by threatening to leave the squad unless it was paid. The report was never verified.

Testa Aids Owls As Running Back

Former Ace Blocker Assumes New Duties.

Philadelphia, Dec. 20 (Spl.).—Danny Testa was the least publicized athlete of Temple University's 1932 and 1933 football teams because he was the blocking back and did not do much sensational ball carrying, but this season, relieved of most of the "dirty work," Danny blossomed forth as a great running back, leading the team in scoring with ten touchdowns, six of which were tallied in the first two games of the season.

Testa, rather short and of heavy build, hasn't missed a game of varsity competition in three seasons and is the only member of the present time, which will play in the Sugar Bowl classic on New Year's Day in New Orleans against Tulane, to perform regularly for three campaigns.

Testa was considered the most valuable back in 1933 and may be accorded the same honor this season. Offense is not his only strong point, however, for he is strong on defense, especially on defense against forward passes.

The ends are Representative Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, and L. W. (Chip) Robert, of Georgia, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Robert also was a star in baseball and track.

George H. Dern, Secretary of War, who was a smashing lineman at Nebraska in the gay nineties, is Fish's running mate at tackle. At guard is Harlan F. Stone, associate justice of the Supreme Court, and Representative Daniel A. Reed, of New York, who also was a member of the crew at Cornell.

Alabama Team Is Off Today For Coast

Concentrates on Offense in Last Hard Practice Before Leaving.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Dec. 20 (AP).—Alabama's Crimson Tide topped off two weeks' hard work today with a scrimmage that lasted until dusk enveloped Denny Field, and tomorrow will embark on the fourth invasion of Rose Bowl.

Another Signal Drill.

"We are in pretty good trim," said Thomas tonight after the workout, "but we'll take another signal drill tomorrow morning before train time."

With the exception of Bob Ed Morrow, big guard, who has a broken nose, the squad is without injuries, and of him Thomas said, "He'll be all right."

Alabama will stop in San Antonio Saturday afternoon for a workout and Sunday will hike over Tucson, Ariz.

Thomas will have about a week in which to put the squad through tune-up drills at Occidental College before the encounter with Stanford in Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Ambitious C. U. Football Stars Toss Christmas Rush for Loss

IF, perchance, you see a group of husky pseudo mailmen handling your Christmas bundles as if they were footballs, don't be alarmed. It's probably part of Catholic University's grid team brushing up on forward passing.

Or, if you should visit a department store and purchase a tie or some socks from a clerk with broad shoulders and a New Jersey brogue, you'll probably be telling your wants to a pretty good tackle.

Abe Rosenfield, Bill Conter, "Shag" Shaughnessy, Babe Gearty, Jim Gemlo and Captain-elect Ed Karpowich are carrying the mail—not in a football sense, but literally.

Dannie Payne, the Redbirds' slugging heavyweight, has gone in business for himself—the Christmas tree business. He'll sell you a nice, bushy spruce or fir tree, tell you how to trim it, etc.

But there's a lad whose gone in business on a large scale—an optimistic lad, at that. He's George Mulligan, the burly end and light-heavy ringman. Mulligan is promoting a dance in Waterbury, Conn. The subscription is $4 a head. Gentlemen, that's optimism!

Versis Nine to Receive Post Baseballs Tonight

Champions of their class, the Versis Food Products midget team will be feted at a banquet tonight at Epstein's, where Spiro Versis will present to the players the miniature gold baseballs awarded by The Washington Post's emblematic of their triumph.

The Versis team last season won the midget championship of the National City League, affiliated with The Washington Post Sandlot Baseball Association.

15 Martinsburg Boys Awarded Grid Letters

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—At the weekly assembly here yesterday 15 members of the Martinsburg High School football squad were awarded letters. Presentation was made by Coach J. C. Cobourn.

Those receiving letters were Tony Tonalli, captain; Joe Morrow, Jackie Clohan, Kenneth Rentch, Lewis Harper and Andrew Psaladas, all of whom have won awards in previous years, and Hubert Shockey, John Beavers, Earl Callahan, Thomas Placino, Lester Myers, Beeson Snyder, Carl Cole, Wesley McDonald, John Kneisley and Billy Thompson.

Alexandria's Five Plays Tonight

Mount St. Joseph Faces Twins; Girls Oppose Buddies on Program.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.). — Alexandria High School will entertain Mount St. Joseph College, of Baltimore, tomorrow night at Armory Hall. The Alexandria girls will meet the Buddies in the curtain raiser, beginning promptly at 7:15 o'clock.

This pair of excellent games is expected to fill the armory to capacity. Mount St. Joseph is rated as one of the best in Maryland scholastic circles. It will also be the last chance to witness the Twins perform until after the Christmas holidays.

To date Alexandria has won three games out of the four they have engaged in. Wednesday night they smothered the National Training School quintet by a score of 51 to 16. They have scored 158 points in their four encounters. Their only loss was suffered at the hands of Roosevelt's high-powered five.

The tentative starting line-up for Alexandria is Apperson and Brewer, forwards; Burrell, center, and Nugent and McMenniman, guards. Others who are likely to see action are Lynch and Jacobson, forwards; Smith, center; Wood and Ennis, guards.

RUXTON RYE has much to recommend it—taste, flavor, smoothness and aroma. These qualities come through a strict adherence to quality, and through the patient ageing which Ruxton Rye undergoes. We could have put out a greater quantity of Ruxton Rye on the market, but we preferred to limit our output to a quality whiskey which was thoroughly and unhurriedly aged. This meant keeping Ruxton Rye in the warehouse longer, but it also meant a far superior whiskey.

An Open Letter to the Motoring Public

The Petroleum Administrative Board—after the receipt of complaints on the part of certain of our competitors and after receiving the recommendation of the Planning and Coordination Committee—has issued an ultimatum.

It has demanded that we discontinue our practice of offering our new product..Aerotype ESSO . . under a cash refund guarantee.

The Petroleum Administrative Board has taken the position . . the opinion of legal counsel to the contrary notwithstanding . . that the cash refund feature of our guarantee constitutes a violation of Rules 3 and 17 of Article 5 of the Petroleum Code.

We do not propose to argue the validity of the Petroleum Administrative Board's claim. The issue involved does not warrant it.

We believe that the public will understand our position in not taking issue with the Petroleum Administrative Board . . despite our feeling that there is no violation of the Code in our cash refund offer.

WHY WE MADE THE CASH REFUND OFFER

As a matter of company policy, we have been definitely opposed to the common practice of making unsupported claims regarding product.

At the same time we were convinced of the superiority of Aerotype ESSO over any other motor car fuel marketed today.

Therefore, we felt that through the medium of our cash refund guarantee we could offer this new product to the public without making extravagant claims concerning its merits by giving all motorists an opportunity to determine for themselves its superiorities.

We made no reservations. We left it entirely to the public to pass judgment upon the product after giving it a thorough and impartial trial.

HALF A MILLION BOUGHT . . .
ONLY 36 ASKED FOR REFUNDS

It is significant to note that during the first 10 days following the introduction of Aerotype ESSO, some 500,000 motorists purchased approximately $1,000,000 worth of this new premium motor fuel.

Of these half million purchasers, only 36 have asked for a refund.

We do not feel that this insignificant amount creates an issue of sufficient consequence to warrant a controversy with the Petroleum Administrative Board.

On the other hand, we believe that public acceptance of Aerotype ESSO and the ability of this fuel to make good on every score have been established beyond every reasonable doubt, as evidenced by the fact that less than a hundredth of 1% of the users requested a refund.

We want to take this opportunity to thank the thousands of motorists who have purchased Aerotype ESSO to date for the fair and impartial judgment which they have passed upon it.

Subsidization Under Sternest Surveillance Since '29 Following Cornell Blast

Competition For Stars Is Keener

Leads to Development of Three Schools of Thought.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP).—Despite the reluctance of Eastern college athletic leaders today to discuss publicly Cornell University's blunt, though unofficial, challenge to the "hire and fire" system of conducting the varsity football business, it is known that the subject is under more serious consideration now than at any time since the Carnegie Foundation delivered its blast against the subsidizing and recruiting of athletes five years ago.

It has already led to the formation of opposing "schools of thought," not only in the East but throughout the country. It is a vigorous topic within certain major conference groups, where conflicting viewpoints exist as to the ways and means of handling the gridiron sport, the profits from which feed the entire college athletic system.

Increasingly Keen.

No doubt exists in the minds of well-informed football men that the competition among major colleges for star high and prep school talent has been increasingly keen during the past few seasons, due to alumni demands for winning teams as well as the financial urgency common to most big universities.

This has resulted in the development of at least three separate groups comprising (1) those which have frankly gone into the open market and bid high enough to get the desired material for successful football teams; (2) others which have employed more subtle but not the less attractive inducements, meanwhile wearing the cloak of academic dignity but achieving the same winning results, and (3) those which have stood their ground on the scholastic rocks but suffered the inevitable consequence of mediocre teams and dwindling gate receipts.

Efficient System.

Cornell may, like a number of others, prefer the alternative of making its fine old traditions more attractive than any other inducements, but winning teams will continue to follow the standards of rival universities, which, if they do not actually buy football material, otherwise develop an efficient recruiting system. This leads to the other two possibilities, as mentioned in the Cornell Alumni News, namely: "Take it and like it" or "drop it." Indications are that Cornell will do neither.

Commenting today on Cornell's frank statement of existing conditions, George Little, athletic director at Rutgers University, urged that subterfuges be discarded in seeking desirable athletic talent.

Opposes Contacts.

He expressed opposition to a system whereby the coaches make contacts with prospects and talk over finances with schoolboy stars, suggesting instead that athletic authorities work through the regular university channels in making prep school contracts.

"The healthiest way to conduct intercollegiate athletics is to take students who come to you and provide for them a well-rounded program of intra-mural and seasonal intercollegiate sports," said Little.

Gives Optimistic View.

Officials at Princeton, Yale, Harvard, Pittsburgh, Carnegie, Columbia, New York University and Dartmouth either were unavailable or declined to enter the discussion raised by Cornell's frank statement of existing problems and prospects. Meanwhile, the Harvard A. A. News, in connection with Harvard's quest for a new head football coach to succeed Eddie Casey, gives voice to the optimistic view that the "old order," by which a plentiful supply of talented young athletes came with the job, is passing. Generally well-known facts do not bear out this suggestion.

Cornell apparently has no intention of seeking the scalp of Gilmore Dobie. Like Howard Jones at Southern California and Harry Kipke, at Michigan, where football fortunes also sagged this year, Dobie's job has not hinged upon production of all-winning games. Over a stretch of years, the former Minnesota quarter back has demonstrated he can get results with good material. His record at the University of Washington, the Naval Academy and Cornell has proved it.

American U. Boxing Draws Squad of 22

American U. athletes are going in for boxing.

A squad of 22 men is being whipped into shape by Joe Carlo, tackle on the football team, and a schedule is being arranged. A match with Hampden-Sydney, scheduled February 2 at American University, already has been arranged.

Voted Nation's Greatest

Miss Van Wie Voted Best In 1934

Wins Over Helen Jacobs and Lenore Kight in National Poll.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP).—Virginia Van Wie's all-conquering march through the golfing year, including her third successive national women's title, today brought her the added distinction of being voted 1934's outstanding feminine sports star.

Thirty-seven of 102 experts voting in the fourth annual Associated Press poll decided that her feat in winning the South Atlantic, Western 72-hole medal derby, and National titles and her matches against Great Britain in Curtis Cup competition rated her above Helen Hull Jacobs, the national tennis champion; Lenore Kight, Katherine Rawls and other prominent women of the year.

In all, Miss Van Wie piled up 177 points to 131 for Miss Jacobs, who won the award in 1933; 89 for Miss Kight and 72 for Miss Rawls.

More First Places.

Miss Kight, outstanding free-style swimmer, gained more first-place votes than Miss Jacobs—19 to 16—but the latter was selected more often in second and third places. Points were scored three for first, two for second and one for third.

A surprising result of the poll was the number of votes for Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, who turned professional last year. Her sterling play in a golf tournament in Texas—a sport in which she retains her amateur standing—was given as the reason for her selection by several voters. Four picked her for first first place, above Miss Van Wie and Miss Jacobs.

Divided as to sports, golf also headed the list there with five representatives, followed by tennis and swimming, four each; field hockey and trapshooting, one each.

Palace, Marion Elevens Prepare for Grid Battle

With both camps veritable hives of activity, the Palace and Marion gridmen tonight begin final preparations for their big game Sunday at Gonzaga Stadium. The kick-off will be at 2 o'clock.

Defeated by Palace last season, the Marions, hailing from Southeast, were held to a 6-6 tie earlier this year, and that's a pill too bitter for any Southeast eleven to swallow. Especially if the opposing club hails from the Southeast section of the city.

Practice sessions have been scheduled tonight by both teams at 7:30 o'clock on their respective fields.

Irish Wrestler Signed.

Boston, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Dan O'Mahoney, Irish wrestler, today signed a contract with Promoter Paul Bowser to meet "the best available opponent" in a bout at Boston Garden January 4. O'Mahoney will receive $15,000.

Giants Rated No. 1 Failure Of Year

Carnera Most Disappointing Individual Performer, Poll Reveals.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—The New York Giants' collapse in the National League pennant stretch and Primo Carnera's pathetic title defense against Maxie Baer were voted today the greatest sports disappointments of 1934.

A total of 309 editors in all sections of the country voted on the year's most disappointing team. Of these, 167½ ballots were cast for Bill Terry's staggering Giants, who had the pennant almost clinched on September 7, with a seven-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals, but who frittered away this lead and lost out on the last day of the season. It was one of the most disheartening slumps in baseball or any other sport because it lost a world championship.

A total of 290 editors balloted on the year's most disappointing individual. Carnera won this contest by the bare margin of 1½ votes over Schoolboy Rowe of the Detroit Tigers, who failed as a pitcher in the World Series. Carnera received 70 votes, Rowe 68½.

Lefty Grove, the Boston Red Sox $100,000 "pitching beauty," came third with 48½ votes, because of his failure to turn in ten victories with Tom Yawkey's club.

Calvert Hall Today Faces Central

Last Scholastic Contest of Week Here; Three Suburban Games.

Scholastic Games Today.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase vs. Alumni, at Bethesda, 2 p. m.

Alexandria vs. Mount St. Joseph's, at Alexandria.

THE 1934 year of sports at Central High bows out this afternoon, with the Mount Pleasant basket ball team meeting Calvert Hall on the Central gymnasium court at 3:30 o'clock. The game will be the last scholastic tussle of the week for Washington.

Three suburban teams see action today. Alexandria's strong team meets Mount St. Joseph's, of Baltimore, at Alexandria, while alumni fives of Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Mount Rainier highs face their varsity teams in alumni night features.

For Central, today's game should be its hardest test of the year if Calvert Hall measures up to the standards of other years. Central will be seeking its fourth straight win of the season, having toppled Charlotte Hall, St. John's and Georgetown Prep in quick succession.

Roll Up 104 Points.

The Mount Pleasanters have accumulated 104 points to their opponents' 45. Only St. John's was able to offer them anything in the nature of opposition, and then was trounced soundly by a last-quarter spurt.

Coach Jack Ray is still seeking to form a definite first-string line-up from his large and eager stock of candidates and the performances of the boys in these games prior to the interhigh series will have considerable bearing on the choice of the five to represent Central in the interhigh series.

Alexandria, barely beaten by Roosevelt High last week, will be seeking its third win of the season and is a heavy favorite to trim Mount St. Joseph.

Falls Church Winner Over Aldie A. C. Five

Aldie Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—The Aldie Athletic Club boys' basket ball team lost to the Falls Church Young Democrats here last night, 22 to 19. The Aldie girls' team won from Falls Church, 24 to 8.

Outstanding players on the girls' team were B. Warren and A. Larrick, of Aldie. In the boys' game Falls Church took the lead in the last quarter.

Dream of Cross-Eyed Enemy Brings Shudders to Ice Goalie

By George Dixon.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (Spl.).—A hockey goal tender who can't see the eyes of a player bearing down on him is as helpless as a boxer fighting blindfolded. In the early hours of Wednesday after the disastrous game in the Garden here Tuesday night in which St. Louis won by two of the goofiest goals on record, Roy Worters, the pugnacious runt who guards the net for Bill Dwyer's New York Americans, fell into a horrific nightmare. Thrashing about like a beheaded rooster, he backhanded Red Button, his room and teammate, smack on the nose.

"Red! For heaven's sake Red, wake up!" he screamed. Mr. Dutton, massaging his smeller, sat up in terror. "What's wrong? What happened?" he gasped. Worters drew a long, whistling breath. "Red," he said solemnly, "I just dreamed of something awful. Supposing—supposing some other team got a player who was cross-eyed!"

"You're nuts!" snapped the red-thatched one. "What's there about a cock-eyed guy to frighten you?" Worters glared wildly and took a strangle hold on the sheets. "It came to me in a nightmare," he said. "There was a cross-eyed fellow and every time he'd be looking one way I'd think he was looking another. No matter what I did, I'd be wrong. Every time he came down the ice and looked up for the shot I'd hop to the wrong side and he'd always score. I'm telling you, Red, no goal keeper in the world would have a chance against a guy with offside eyes."

"Funny thing, I never thought of that before," Worters told me this afternoon, recounting his nightmare. "I've been tending goal for nearly 20 years and I just realized in my sleep that a good goalie never really looks at the disk. He's watching the eyes—always the eyes—of the man carrying it. I should have thought of it, because we used to have a chap named Leo Reese playing for the Amerks, and in practice he drove me crazy. He had a glass eye and it always looked straight ahead, no matter in which direction he was going to shoot. Half the time, in the excitement, I'd forget which eye was which. Then there was Frank McGee—he was killed in the Battle of the Somme. He had one eye. In one game he shot 16 goals without any assistance. The goalie was driven almost nuts."

Contrary to popular belief, the hardest ice hockey shot to stop is a straight line from center ice, Worters said. "But," he added, "I don't like any of them. And if I ever have to face a cross-eyed player I'm going to turn in my chest protector and go in for raising nasturtiums."

Tech High Swamps McDonough, 48-18

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—McKinley Tech of Washington smothered McDonough School in basket ball here this afternoon, 48 to 18.

Walt Mason, Himself

One Man's View.

I asked James Dingbat why he drove an ancient limousine; "You've rubles hidden in your stove, large bundles of long green; you can afford," I said, "to drive the costliest of cars, for you have scads in groups of five put down in crocks and jars. If only men who have the price would freely spend their dough, we soon would all be sitting nice, and foundry fires would glow. The rich man doesn't come to bat in sportsmanlike array; and here you wear the old green hat that Noah threw away. Your pants need pressing and your shoes are both in disrepair; and yet your wad—it is no news—would choke an old gray mare." "That is a superficial view," said James, and filled his pipe; "a lot of half-baked saps like you are free with all such tripe. It is my object not to sting or wound the unemployed; class hatred is a grievous thing, a thing we must avoid. If I dolled up in gorgeous rags brought here from foreign parts, the busted men who walk the flags would curse me in their hearts. I do not wish to make a splurge in gaudy limousines, while from the alleys there emerge sad men who can't buy beans. I know I wear a rusty hat that long has ceased to shine, but no one throws a brick thereat because it is too fine. I have no use for vain display in crushing times like these; in humble garb I go my way, and feed myself on cheese. And no one, in a bitter mood, can look at me and cry, 'That piker in champagne is stewed, while children wail for pie.'"

APPLE MARY — Post Comics on the Air—Sundays, 8:45 a. m.—WMAL. — By Martha Orr

CHRISTMAS! AND ME NOT ABLE TO BUY A THING FOR DENNIE — UNLESS I GET A JOB.
I WISH I COULD GET A SLED FOR HIM! THEN I COULD TAKE HIM OUT IN THE FRESH AIR - BUT I MIGHT AS WELL WISH FOR THE MOON—
WAIT A MINUTE APPLE MARY— YOU'RE JUST THE PERSON I WANT TO SEE. I'VE GOT A JOB FOR YOU IN THE STORE.
A JOB? FOR ME?
WE'LL FILL YOUR CART WITH HOLLY AND MISTLETOE — THEN YOU PUSH IT AROUND THE STORE — THAT IS, IF YOU WANT THE JOB —
WANT IT! SAY- I'D PUSH ELEPHANTS AROUND TO MAKE SOME MONEY RIGHT NOW!
IT LOOKS LIKE A MERRY CHRISTMAS FOR DENNIE NOW THAT APPLE MARY HAS A JOB.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — The Countess Is Rough . . — By Harry J. Tuthill

IS SHE GONE, WILTON? YES? FINE STUFF. CALLING ME ALL THOSE NAMES AND THREATENING ME.
YES SIR, THE COUNTESS IS QUITE HIGH-TEMPERED, SIR.
WILTON, THAT TRIANGLE STUFF IS OUT WITH ME. HANDLING BUNNIE'S BUSINESS AFFAIRS AND GOING ON BLIND DATES FOR HIM ARE TWO DIFFERENT THINGS.
YOU DID VERY WELL, SIR. QUITE.
IN SPITE OF ALL, THE COUNTESS DID NOT FOR A MOMENT SUSPECT YOU WERE NOT MR. BUNNIE HIMSELF.
WHAT A TEMPER THAT LADY HAS. WOW!
YES SIR, THE COUNTESS IS QUITE SPIRITED. MR. BUNNIE ADMIRES THAT.
DID SHE BELT WIM, TOO, ON THE HEAD WITH THAT CLASSY HANDBAG?
OH NO! NEVER WITH A HANDBAG. NEVER.
LOOK! AT THAT BUMP! LOOK! RIGHT THERE. GREAT, EH?
SHE'S OF THE NOBILITY. THEY ARE, OF COURSE, ALWAYS QUITE.... WELL... DIFFERENT, SIR.
WELL, EVEN FROM ROYALTY ONE TREATMENT OF THAT ROMANTIC ROUGH STUFF IS ENOUGH FOR ME. I WONDER HOW LONG IT WILL BE UNTIL BUNNIE IS UP AND AROUND?

The Federal Diary

(Trade-Mark Applied For.)

By Morgan Baker.

EMBODIED in the pay restoration measure of the American Federation of Labor wage conference, to be introduced in the House immediately after January 3, are provisions for full pay restoration; restoration of travel allowances on the pre-economy basis; immediate effectiveness of the classification act, and repeal of all "economy" restrictions on promotions.

BAKER.

The wage conference includes representatives of the American Federation of Government Employes, the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, the Railway Mail Association, the National Association of Letter Carriers and of various craft unions represented in the Government service.

The first section of the bill calls for complete restoration of pay as of January 1. The second, providing for restoration of official travel allowances, is an important matter to employes who are assigned to field work which requires considerable traveling, since under present conditions they must undergo substantial reductions from the normal in their compensation for travel expenses.

The third section, providing for strict observance of the classification act, is declared necessary. The conference regards classification as of vital importance, except in "those occupations where, for individual reasons, the employes prefer other methods of wage fixing, and the extension of classification to many field jobs is much desired."

The fourth section provides for elimination of all restrictions on promotions under the economy act, including the repeal of the O'Mahoney amendment adopted last year. The O'Mahoney amendment lifted, to a certain extent, restrictions on administrative promotions, but made them subject to showings of savings in appropriations.

The fifth section would mean in a large degree the repeal of the economy legislation enacted since 1932, and it would solve many of the problems now confronting Government workers, the conference points out.

It is not known yet, a conference spokesman said last night, just what Representative will introduce the bill. However, it was emphasized that the measure has the support of a majority of the members and the bill will bear the name of a powerful leader.

John S. Beach Retires.

After more than 44 years in Government service, John Staats Beach retired yesterday at Civil Service Commission amid speeches of tribute from Commissioners Harry D. Mitchell, Lucille Foster McMillin and Leonard D. White. The venerable retirement specialist was presented with a purse from his fellow workers.

Born in the township of New Baltimore, N. Y., December 4, 1864, Mr. Beach received his early education in a typical "little red schoolhouse." Later he attended DeGarmo Institute. His first work with the Government was with the Census Bureau in October, 1890, and then as statistical clerk for three years. In 1893 he was appointed to a clerkship in the pension agency; was promoted through the various grades, becoming assistant chief clerk in 1902.

Following the passage of the act of August 17, 1912, which provided a Disbursing Office in the Pensions Bureau, Mr. Beach assisted in organization of the new office. Later he was made head of the Retirement Division in the bureau and continued as such until the bureau was merged with Veterans' Administration in 1930. The functions of this division were later merged with Civil Service Commission in September of this year and he continued with the work with the title of retirement specialist.

Mr. Beach, in addition to his brilliant record with the Government, has been active in civic and fraternal affairs.

91 Koreans Arrested In Japan Conspiracy

Tokyo, Dec. 20 (AP).—Vernacular press reports from Jeijo, Korea, said today 91 Koreans had been arrested on charges of conspiring to overthrow Japanese rule in Korea. The prisoners were described as members of the "Heavenly Way Society," a religious cult.

Japanese police were said to have made the roundup last September, the news having been censored until today.

Charlotte Firm Low On Slum Clearance

J. A. Jones Construction Co., Charlotte, N. C., submitted a low bid of $2,095,000 yesterday for construction of the Techwood low-cost housing and slum clearance project in Atlanta, to the Interior Department, the Associated Press says.

The project, first under the Federal housing program to reach the construction stage, will be comprised of 23 buildings, to accommodate 603 families in apartments and row houses, and 308 students in a dormitory.

Stocks Decline Fraction Under Lighter Sales

Little Cheer Is Provided for Traders; Dealings 875,275 Shares.

The drive for lower electric rates and New York City's threatened entry into power production resulted in further liquidation in shares of companies directly affected.

Consolidated Gas broke through 20 to a new low, finishing nearly a point lower, and the preferred dropped nearly 3 points to around 77, also a new low. Brooklyn Union Gas fell more than 2 points.

Rallying Efforts.

Aside from utilities, the market received better support after its decline in the preceding session. But rallying efforts were feeble. As selling lightened, turnover shrank to 875,275 shares, compared with 978,240 yesterday.

On the average, utility shares sagged into new low ground for the year. Losses of 1 to 3 points were recorded in United Corporation, Columbia Gas & Electric and North American Edison preferred shares. Public Service of New Jersey $6 preferred broke 5½ points.

Elsewhere, leading shares reverted to a slow drift. United States Steel common, American Can, Chrysler, General Electric, Montgomery Ward and Westinghouse Electric showed only fractional changes up and down at the finish.

American Radiator Jumps.

A transfer of 20 shares of American Radiator preferred appeared on the tape at 137, up nearly 13 points. American Telephone and Western Union each lost a point. Mining shares ignored inflation warnings, based on the assumption Government spending might get out of hand. Rails idled in the face of estimates of a contra-seasonal gain in traffic last week.

Dividend actions were overshadowed by announcement of a Christmas melon by National Lead, consisting of 14 shares for each 100 held. Having moved up sharply recently, the market for the stock remained about unchanged.

Christmas Trade Ignored.

While waiting for utility clouds to pass, traders paid little attention to reports of bustling Christmas trade. A tendency to mark time for the holidays became more apparent in speculative circles.

Seasonal demand for currency and payment for recent purchases of Treasury bonds accounted for most of the changes shown in weekly Federal Reserve statements. Money in circulation rose $55,000,000 and member bank reserves dropped $169,000,000. Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks increased $161,000,000. Monetary gold stock expanded $18,000,000 to a new peak.

Brokers' loans by New York City banks for their own account were up $25,000,000, to $658,000,000.

(Special Correspondence of The Post.)

New York, December 20.—A growing number of industrialists who are giving thought to the subject of unemployment insurance reserves are veering to the view that labor should not be required to contribute to such funds. Reversing their previous stand in most cases, these business men would prefer to see employers alone make the requisite contributions to unemployment in insurance.

It is generally taken for granted that a number of States will adopt unemployment insurance plans during the next year or two, regardless of the type of measure that Congress passes to encourage or coerce such action. Accordingly, many industrial groups that formerly were flatly opposed to unemployment insurance have changed their tactics. They are now concentrating on a study of the technical details. They expect to have an important voice in the determination of the character of many State systems, and they desire to make them as little burdensome and as effective as possible, thus avoiding pressure for future indefinite expansion and liberalization of such plans as occurred in some European countries.

Until quite recently, the great majority of business men in the country were inclined to feel that the British system of equal contributions from employers and employes was the fairest and most desirable. On the other hand, organized labor leaders, such as President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, were strongly opposed to any contribution from labor, holding that industry alone, or industry and the Government, should bear the cost of unemployment reserves and make the necessary monetary contributions.

Labor May Not Encounter Opposition of Former Days.

There is now good reason to believe that Mr. Green and his supporters will encounter no such opposition from industry as they probably anticipate.

The chief reason for this change in view on the part of employers is their fear of too great labor union influence in the administration of unemployment insurance systems, if employes contribute to the funds. The active participation of labor union officials in the management of the State unemployment reserve funds, it is feared, would introduce an influence that would work constantly for liberalization of methods and principles of operation. This would tend to make these systems more expensive to industry than if labor influence were kept down to a minimum through providing only for employer contributions.

On other major points, too, sentiment among employers is said to be crystallizing, although as yet in no final degree. The reserve rather than the insurance principle is widely favored. It is also reported that those who have been most active in moulding opinion on the subject decidedly favor the segregation of reserves by industries, and even where feasible, by individual enterprises, as opposed to the general pooling of the reserve funds of an entire State. This means that the so-called Wisconsin plan is preferred to the Ohio system. The former, which sets up a separate fund for each plant in the State and halts contributions after a certain point is reached, is viewed as more of an effort to regularize industrial operations than an attempt to insure against unemployment. This idea appeals to many industrialists, particularly in the West and Middle West, it is said. Moreover, injustice is seen in having relatively stable industries and establishments pay heavy premiums, to be drained off for the benefit of unstable enterprises which, in the event of pooling of reserves, would be placed under no great incentive to regularize.

American Employers Are Still Unprepared to Submit Plan.

Despite these and other observable trends of thought in these matters, it remains true, according to those who ought to know, that American employers are not yet in a position to present an effective case in Washington for a particular type of plan. Sufficient time has not elapsed for them to come to reasonably complete collective opinions on many of these points and efforts to reach such opinions are now proceeding rapidly, not to say feverishly, on every side.

In at least one case arrangements are being made for group meetings all over the country to discuss the problems that arise in this connection and to formulate a definite program, for which the trade in question may work both in Washington and in State capitals. Such gatherings are being scheduled by a committee of leading retail merchants under the chairmanship of Samuel W. Rayburn, president of the Associated Dry Goods Corporation. In preparation for these meetings, this committee has now issued a second "study pamphlet" setting forth a number of replies from retail executives to questions embodied in a first such pamphlet distributed some weeks ago.

These replies reveal little indication of definite trends of opinion in the retail trade. These apparently must wait the deliberations now being arranged.

Recent informal meetings of employer representatives have revealed that various large enterprises and in such institutions as life insurance companies are all studying the problem. The National Association of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States are also seeking to crystallize sentiment among their members on the subject.

Bonds Yield Ground Again; Volume Larger

Heavy Utility Liquidation Drives Turnover to $14,140,000.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Public utility loans formed the weak link in today's bond market chain and prices, generally, pointed downward.

The threat of New York City and State authorities to enter into competition with the leading power and light corporations acted as a depressing influence on virtually all groups.

Although there were scattered firm spots, losses of fractions to 2 or more points predominated.

Sales Are Larger.

Due to the rather heavy liquidation in the utilities, transfers expanded to $14,140,000, par value, from $12,392,000 yesterday.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues was off three-tenths of a point at 857.7. This was the largest day's decline since October 26, last.

Kelly-Springfield 6s were again weak, losing 5¾ points, at 46½. Tobacco Products of New Jersey were also off 5½, at 101. Others, down 1 to more than 2, included American & Foreign Power 5s, at 50½; American Water Works 5s, at 93¾; Columbia Gas 5s, at 80⅜; Consolidated Gas 4½s, at 98⅜; Consolidated Gas 5s, at 101; Hudson Coal 5s, at 43½; New Orleans Public Service 5s, at 52½; North American 5s, at 83¾; North American Edison 5s, at 74; Paramount-Publix 5½s, at 63; Philadelphia Co. 5s, at 83, and Utah Power 5s, at 63½.

Puerto Rican Tobacco.

Puerto Rican American Tobacco 6s jumped 9 points, to 5½, and advances of 1 to 2 points were shown by some issues of Denver & Rio Grande, Norfolk & Southern, Rio Grande Western, Great Northern, Consolidated Coal, St. Paul and Santa Fe.

Although United States Government securities were rather quiet, the majority were down one-thirty-second to six-thirty-seconds of a point.

The foreign department was irregular. While some of the Germans got up 1 to around 2 points, various Italian bonds were soft. Colombian issues were active and higher.

Irregularities Dominate in Curb Trading

Utilities Close Steadier as Transfers Drop to 228,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Irregular price trends continued to dominate curb market trading today. Utilities met further selling at the start of the day, but support later developed. A number of wide fluctuations occurred in the miscellaneous list.

Among the power issues, Electric Bond & Share was off slightly to a new low for the year, while American Gas & Electric recovered a fractional decline to close a shade higher. Issues of Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Mohawk Hudson Power were off rather sharply on light offerings.

General Tire & Rubber dipped 2½ points while Pan American Airways was up as much. Among petroleum shares, Humble Oil advanced a point, while Gulf yielded 1⅝. Pepperell & Aluminum Co., of America eased a point each.

Final quotations were steady to a bit higher in Wright Hargreaves, International Petroleum, Swift Internacionale, Sherwin - Williams, Lake Shore, Hiram Walker and Distillers Corporation Seagrams.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Business on the stock exchange was quiet today, operations being restricted in view of the approaching holidays. Gilt-edge securties and Argentine rails improved a trifle, while West African gold-mining shares were strong. Other sections lacked support, and sagged. The marke closed dull.

Paris—Prices on the bourse improved today, especially rentes, despite the financial troubles of Citroen Auto Works. The closing was firm.

Daily Credit of Reserve Banks Averages Nine Million Higher

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve bank credit outstanding during the week ended December 19, as reported by the Federal Reserve banks, was $2,471,000,000, an increase of $9,000,000 compared with the preceding week and a decrease of $216,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On December 19 total Reserve bank credit amounted to $2,477,000,000, an increase of $15,000,000 for the week. This increase corresponds with increases of $55,000,000 in money in circulation, $161,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and $5,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts, offset in part by a decrease of $169,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and increases of $18,000,000 in monetary gold stock and $19,000,000 in Treasury and national bank currency.

The system's holdings of bills discounted, bills bought in open market and United States bonds show practically no change for the week. Industrial advances increased $1,000,000. An increase of $109,000,000 in holdings of United States Treasury notes was offset by a decrease of a like amount in holdings of Treasury certificates and bills.

Changes in the amount of Reserve bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended December 19, 1934, were as follows:

C. & O. Reports Net Income Of $25,782,769

National Lead Company Votes Stock Dividend of 14 Shares.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Net income of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. in the first 11 months totaled $25,782,769 after ordinary charges, equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $3.36 a share on the common. This compares with $26,030,398, or $3.40 a share, in the same period last year.

Directors of the National Lead Co. today declared a stock dividend of 14 shares of common for each 100 shares held, representing treasury stock. The dividend is payable January 15 to stock of record December 31.

A statement issued by the company said more stock had been acquired during the depression than was necessary to supply the needs of employes on the partial payment plan, and, inasmuch as it would be unethical for it to both buy and sell its own stock, the directors decided to distribute the excess amount to stockholders to whom it belonged.

James B. Hill, the newly elected president of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, today said he expected the L. & N. to show a profit for the year of between $2,500,000 and $2,600,000. Net income of the road, after fixed charges in 1933, was $1,795,000.

Directors of MacAndrews & Forbes today declared an extra dividend of $1 and the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, both payable January 15 to stock of record December 31.

Directors of the Pullman Co. declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital stock, payable February 15 to stock of record January 24.

Directors of the Cudahy Packing Co. (Chicago) have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents a share on the common stock, payable January 15 to stock of record January 5.

District Leads In Writings of Life Insurance

28 Per Cent Gain Over Last Year Largest in Entire Country.

By Karl von Lewinski.

New life insurance production in November for the District of Columbia led the Nation, according to figures made public yesterday in Hartford, Conn.

The local gain of 28 per cent stands in strong contrast with the national average loss of 3 per cent.

Last month's record production marks also a notable increase over the average sales gain for the District during the first 11 months of 1934. Washington now stands 13 per cent ahead of its last year's total.

The neighboring State of Virginia stands fourth from the top with a gain of 12 per cent. Maryland was farther behind, with a net increase in sales of only 7 per cent. North Carolina fell a point below the national average, with a decrease during the month of 4 per cent, and West Virginia fell off 7 per cent from the same month a year ago.

Totals computed for the first 11 months of 1934, shows that West Virginia leads in the amount of gain over the corresponding months of last year. It showed an increase of 26 per cent.

Maryland is next with a total of 21 per cent. North Carolina follows with 18 per cent, and Virginia has amassed 12 per cent more sales.

Total of Policies.

New insurance in the Capital totaled $4,211,000, Maryland reported $7,525,000, Virginia totaled $5,875,000 and West Virginia wrote $3,476,000 in new policies.

New production during the first 11 months of 1934, exclusive of revivals, increases and dividend additions, aggregated $7,766,856,000, against $7,097,346,000 reported during the same period last year.

Bankers Close Earlier.

Earlier closing hours will be adopted by local banks on January 2, 1935, the Washington Clearing House announced yesterday.

Under the new schedule, the banks will close at 2 p. m. every day except on Government pay days. Doors will open at 8:30, as heretofore.

Days on which the later closing hours will be observed as a convenience to the Government workers, are the 15th and the last business day of each month.

On Saturdays all banks in the city will close at 12 noon. All arrangements have been completed for the adoption of the uniform hours by every institution.

The new hours were suggested by the Clearing House Association after long and careful study. They have been in operation in Baltimore and Richmond as well as a number of cities comparable to Washington for some time.

Bank officials hail the new hours as representing an opportunity to finish the day's business without interruption. Balancing and closing of the day's books, they assert, takes a great deal more time than is generally realized.

Acacia Christmas Party.

Distribution of more than 150 baskets of foodstuffs to needy families will feature the Christmas celebration of the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. tomorrow.

The annual party, to be held as part of the celebration, will include a minstrel revue and sketches by the employes followed by an address by President William Montgomery. More than 400 home office employes, together with the officials, will attend.

1934 Apple Sales Prove Satisfactory To 5th Bank Area

Crop for Year Estimated 20 Per Cent Heavier Than in 1933.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 20 (Spl.).—R. Maynard Peterson, in charge of Martinsburg field station, U. S. Market News Service, in a brief summary of the 1934 apple sales to December 15, says in a statement issued today:

"The marketing of this season's apple crop, thus far, has proved quite satisfactory to the apple growers of the Shenandoah-Cumberland-Potomac District, as compared with last season. In spite of commercial crop, in this section, estimated to be approximately 20 per cent heavier than that of last season, prices have been maintained at a slightly higher level.

"This heavier crop, however, was offset by the light apple crop in New England and the Central States. Thus, in spite of the increases in this section and in the Pacific Coast States, the total commercial production was slightly under that of last season, according to the November 1 estimate.

"Although this season's prices compare quite favorably with those received last year, they did not reach as high a level as anticipated earlier in the season when a much lighter crop was in prospect.

"The apple crop in the Shenandoah-Cumberland-Potomac District was of much better quality than last year. The stock was of good size, generally well colored, and most orchards packed out a good percentage of U. S. No. 1 grade.

"During harvesting, large quantities were placed in cold-storage in preference to trying to force the stock onto a weak market. As a result, the limited demand caused no serious break in the shipping-point market, and prices held at a fairly steady level, slightly higher than that of last fall."

Pilgrim Setting To Give Michel Unusual Effect

Night Club Will Reopen Under a New Name at Early Date.

By Kay Ware.

Big things are going on at Club Michel. Two days ago Billy Barrington dropped into town to start one of the "biggest innovations" (as he puts it) in his career.

In about ten days' time the club will be called the Pilgrim Club and will be decorated accordingly. Rough hewn logs will cover walls and ceiling, the interior will represent, to the best of Mr. Barrington's ability (and that's a lot), an old Pilgrim stockade. Lighting fixtures will be covered with antique buckets and light will emanate from holes in the bottom of them.

The costuming! Let Mr. Barrington explain: "The orchestra will be dressed like the Pilgrim fathers, the cigarette girls like—the Pilgrim mothers. All the waiters will be Pilgrims, with tall hats, shorts, stockings, patent leather shoes with silver buckles. I think it's the first time night club people have been dressed this way."

The orchestra stand will be like the entrance to the stockade, with rustic pagoda-like top.

Says Mr. Barrington: "I've just been down cellar trying to find cobwebs. I'll have a hard time finding them. I'd like to get some spiders to spin webs for me, but I can't because I can't talk to them."

Mr. Barrington is putting through a job in ten days that would ordinarily take him two months. However, he's working day and night to get it done, mainly because he made a bet with Walter von Herbulis, the manager, that he could complete the job in time.

Ambassador will try a new stunt for New Year's celebration. The management is planning to have a party and dance, the first one they have ever presented. Accommodations will be for 600. A new dance floor will be constructed. Reservations are being made now. Cost: $5 a head, which includes a six-course dinner, in addition to dancing and special entertainment. A band of 20 pieces will furnish the music. Manuel Bofril and his Filipinos will be on hand to entertain.

Ambassador's Hi-Hat draws on visiting theatrical talent for its entertainment. Betty Keane, blonde dancer from a local theater, was first to start this new wrinkle. She shared honors with Ezra, Papy, Zeke and Elton, Hill Billies. Miss Keane has left for Hollywood, which means only one thing—a contract.

Manuel Bofril and his Filipinos are on hand afternoons and evenings. The request number repertoire includes foreign and native songs.

Social list includes Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans; Rene Vicosca and Eugene Stanley, both of New Orleans, and Harvey Couch, former R. F. C. Board director.

Headliner at Maryland Club Gardens l'Hiver will be Grace Morgan, a personality singer. Proof that she is a personality singer: All her songs are made to order by one writer, presumably to fit vocal style and temperament.

Mildred Jordan, Joe and Ernestine are held over at Madrillon this week. They present a new program—exoticism on the part of Miss Jordan and new musical comedy stunts on the part of Joe and Ernestine.

Ray Donahue sings romantically and Jack Schaeffer puts comedy into his numbers. Leon Brusiloff and band furnish the music.

Club Habana has a song writer in its midst. "Moody" and "Pipe Dreams" were written by Pianist Sammy Marks of the Habaneers. Very soulful and melancholy.

Club Troika will present a special feature in a couple of weeks. None other than the six gypsy dancers from the Michel Fokine Ballet, seen not long ago at a local theater. Matt Windsor, who gathers the floor shows, is responsible for this distinguished presentation. They will be here for New Year's celebrations.

Also, Troika plans to celebrate Christmas in a special way, and Russian Christmas, occurring about ten days later, in a still more special way. For the benefit of those who go for the traditional Russian dinner, it will be prepared and served. Beefsteaks and the equivalent for dyed-in-the-wool Americans.

Club Carleton is hard to outsmart. From the color schemes to the music, from one cocktail to the next cocktail, Carlton is the answer to the sophisticate's prayer.

Holiday plans are buzzing. Shoreham buzzes as diligently as any night spot. Gold souvenirs, gay decorations, a special floor show of 20 or more entertainers are promised.

Floor show this week: Marie and Antoinette, sister dance team; Jeanne Goodner, the only girl who dances acrobatically in a long-skirted evening gown; Ewen Hail, tenor, and M. C. Barnee and orchestra. Last, but far from least, the dance team, Carlos and Marchan, who are direct from a South American tour.

Social list—Governor-elect and Mrs. James Allred, of Texas; Turner Battle, assistant to Secretary of Labor; Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll B. Merriman and Representative Roy O. Woodruff.

Singer—Plus Personality

Sunday Hike of Wanderbirds Routed Along Upper Potomac

Historic C. & O. Canal to Be Followed in Sabbath Trek.

By Robert Shosteck.

The Wanderbirds on Sunday will explore the upper Potomac between Seneca and Great Falls, Md., following the historic Chesapeake & Ohio Canal along the nine miles where the Potomac is a series of rapids of unparalleled scenic beauty. At Seneca, where the hike begins, they will visit the famous Seneca sandstone quarry from which the stone used on the old Smithsonian Building was taken. Here, too, near Pennyfield's Lock, President Cleveland held his famous week-end fishing parties.

Again the Wanderbirds Hiking Club invites readers of The Washington Post to join them on this trip. Because of the short days the group will meet in front of The Post Building promptly at 9:30 a. m., the buses leaving shortly after. The round-trip fare will be 75 cents and reservations must be made by midnight Saturday at National 4200. Hikers should bring lunches, cups, and flashlights if they plan to go into the old Maryland gold mine, near the end of the trip. The 9-mile hike will be easy since it will be entirely along the towpath which parallels the canal.

Leaving the buses at Seneca, the group will cross Seneca River on the canal bridge, a stone structure which carries the canal over the river—an eighth wonder of the world. The sandstone quarry is about one-half mile above Seneca lock. The rock used in the construction of the old Smithsonian Building as well as hundreds of the fine old brownstone houses in Washington was taken from this old open quarry, now abandoned. The Potomac is about three-quarters of a mile wide at this point since the dam, about a mile below, impounds the water and has created an artificial lake of the river. An old inlet canal nearby facilitates barge travel between the canal and the Potomac. The boats gathered produce from nearby farms as far as Edward's Landing, 9 miles up, carrying it down to Seneca, where they entered the canal and were towed to Washington.

About half-way between Seneca and the falls the hikers will find the old buildings which were once Pennyfield's Lock and Tavern. It was here that former President Cleveland spent many pleasant week-ends away from the White House. Fishing was one of his favorite outdoor sports and he is said to have preferred the tavern's fish cuisine to White House dinners.

The hikers will have coffee around a campfire near the old Maryland gold mine. Some Wanderbirds plan to carry along about 100 feet of rope in order to go down the main pit. Others can enter either of the two side holes and view the bat roost.

Those preferring the fresh air can sit about the campfire and listen to Dr. Ulke's travel talks.

The writer wishes a Merry Christmas and a hearty and vigorous New Year to the hundreds of Wanderbirds whose companionship has been so well enjoyed on the many trips we have had since our club was formed last April. Let's look forward to many more years of hiking!

The Red Triangle Outing Club announces a rough three-mile trip along the Potomac near Bear Island and up the gorge. There will be plenty of scenery and many rocks to climb. The hikers meet on Sunday at 2 p. m. at Fifteenth street and Constitution avenue, where automobiles will meet to carry the group to the Anglers' Club. Fare is 25 cents.

Scouts Arrange Wider Activity For Press Club

Coming Events.

Wednesday, January 2—Court at Langley Junior High School.

The Washington Boy Scout Press Club has just completed plans for a program of extensive activity until the beginning of the silver jubilee next year when it will combine with other amateur Scout journalists all over the country in covering all jubilee news. The plan was announced by President Howard Ennis at the semimonthly meeting December 6.

Howard Lewis, of the Press Club executive committee, has been placed in charge of the execution of these plans. He is to promote branch clubs in each district comprising the editors and assistants of the troop papers in that district.

Bugle Contest Winner.

Gordon Pool, of Troop 49, won second prize and the honor of being the assistant council bugler for 1934.

C. M. O. Banquet.

The C. M. O. banquet will be held at Sholl's G street restaurant Thursday at 6 p. m. The speaker will be Dr. R. H. Sargent. His subject will be adventures in Africa.

Dr. Sargent will instruct a class in map making beginning January 5 at 7:30 p. m., Scout headquarters.

Troop 79 Parents' Night.

Scouts of Troop 79 celebrated the seventh anniversary of its founding Friday night when they presented a varied program of Scouting to parents and friends in St. Paul's Episcopal Church at 8 o'clock.

Camp to Be Rebuilt.

Camp Jennings, Troop 14's camp, will be rebuilt and improved under a plan prepared and supervised by Scoutmaster W. C. Cronenberg and Assistant Scoutmaster Edward Eberly, camping director.

New appointments announced by Linn C. Drake, Scout executive, are: W. F. Weber, first division; William T. McClosky succeeds Thomas A. King, Rock Creek Division; J. Wesley Loftis, Scoutmaster of Troop 212, Takoma Park-Silver Spring division. He was director of Camp Wilson last year.

Arlington County News.

Advancements made in Arlington County at the court of review and honor held in the Clarendon Methodist Church include: Second class, Eugene Harold, Robert McKinney; first class, John Moore; for safety merit badge, William Dagger.

Troop 149 Trip.

Troop 149, of Cherrydale, Va., H. S. Krider, Scoutmaster, will take a New Year's hike to a spot near Skyland, Va., from December 29 until New Year's Day.

Council Committees Appointed.

A committee for the selection of the recipient of the Silver Beaver award, the highest award a Scout council awards to Scouters, has been appointed.

Dr. Camp Stanley has been made chairman of the nominating committee for officers of the District of Columbia Council.

R. A. Van Orsdel was made chairman of program for the annual council meeting to be held in January.

To Celebrate Anniversary Week.

At a meeting of the board of commissioners Monday, plans were begun to mark the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Boy Scout movement. The anniversary occurs in February.

Langley Court of Honor.

THE DRY MARTINI . . . Recipe by Frank of Chicago's famous Drake Hotel

"Be sure to use a smooth, mild gin—like Fleischmann's," advises Frank of the Drake
"To make a Martini properly you first take a mixing glass partly filled with ice cubes, add a couple of dashes of Orange Bitters and twist in the peel of a lemon. Add one part of French Vermouth and then pour in two parts of gin. (I prefer an American gin such as Fleischmann's.) Stir the mixture slowly with a long spoon and pour into a Martini glass with a green olive. "In making Martinis, it is the gin that counts most. I prefer Fleischmann's because it mixes better with the Vermouth and brings out its flavor."

Why America's Most Popular Cocktail Requires an American Gin

Especially distilled to blend with other liquors and fruit juices . . . Fleischmann's Dry Gin brings out subtle, hidden flavors in a Martini

The Martini Cocktail is America's No. 1 drink today—not only in hotels, restaurants and country clubs—but in homes, too. To mix this popular drink properly, smoothly, requires a mild, smooth American gin—that will blend in mixed drinks.

Fleischmann's is an American gin—specially distilled to blend perfectly with other liquors and fruit juices. Buy a bottle. Mix up a Martini. Your first smooth sip will show you why Fleischmann's—since Repeal—has become "America's Favorite Gin."
